CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

September 21, 22, 24, 25, 26 and 27.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's Office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

September 21, 22, 24, 25, 26 and 27.

STOCKS have been very irregular this week, and traders complain that they cannot make any money. The market keeps everybody guessing by reason of its contrary movements—stocks of the same class and character often moving violently in opposite directions. The market acts as if it wanted to go up, but it does not do so, and there are too many people who feel that it is going down, which under the circumstances would perhaps be the best attitude to assume. Last month the high interest rates for money caused great dissatisfaction, and now the relief given to the market by the Secretary of the Treasury has not on the whole been profitable to stock brokers. As a shrewd observer remarked, "A man who is not already in the market should stay out and watch it for the next few weeks." But there are, nevertheless, some encouraging features in the financial situation. Real estate and building interests have been distinctly benefited by easier money conditions. When Secretary Shaw announced last month that the Treasury would make deposits in national banks to facilitate the importation of gold, accepting bonds pending arrival of the gold, money loaned on the New York Stock Exchange earned as high as 40 per cent. per annum, the maximum rate for September. Call and time money are now ranging from 5 to 6 per cent., so for the time being real estate building and general business are not suffering in any way. Still there are other things than money that are disquieting to the Stock Exchange operator. It had been generally understood that Atchison common stock was to be placed upon a 6 per cent. annual basis. There was great disappointment at the announcement on Wednesday at the declaration of a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. The result was a break of over four points in the stock. It was implied that those on the inside had profited largely by the advance in Atchison by selling extensively, while outsiders who bought in expectation of a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum lost heavily. This little episode had the effect of unsettling the whole market. In view, however, of the great prosperity, such matters as these should not be a cause for anxiety. It is stated on good authority that the value of New York's realty has increased six billions in a period of ten years, the real estate alone during the last five years in the five boroughs comprising the greater City of New York having increased three billions four hundred millions.

RICHMOND COUNTY'S water front extends fifty miles, but is the only water frontage in a borough of New York which is of undeveloped commercial value to the city, though offering vast possibilities of future expansion. In the whole of Richmond Borough the city owns outside of the municipal ferry a dock in the Fifth Ward, valued at $7,500 only. At St. George five thousand feet of water-front is owned by the Staten Island Railway and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. Adjoining is property of the United States Government, the lighthouse establishment at Tompkinsville; the adjoining eight hundred feet belong to the American Docks and Trust Co. The shore from Clifton to the waters of the lower bay is the property of the State of New York or of the United States, and is occupied by the quarantine boarding station and the fortifications on the west side of the Narrows. A comprehensive improvement of the Staten Island water-front following the proposed construction of the Bay Ridge tunnel would greatly inure to the benefit of the city, and towards this improvement the adoption by the Federal Government of its present elaborate plans for the improvement of the harbor channel would contribute.

IT does not seem to be a very happy idea of Mr. John Wanamaker's to turn the site of "Old London" into an arcade. Broadway in that vicinity is so far removed from the shopping district that it will not make a good location for an arcade. An arcade, in order to be really successful, should run between two important streets in the center of a large city and provide a necessary thoroughfare for pedestrians not provided by a public street. We do not believe that any such thoroughfare is necessary between Broadway and Lafayette Place, and we do not believe that Mr. Wanamaker's property, improved in this way, will pay as well as if a tall loft building were erected thereon. It is a singular fact, by the way, that New York City, in spite of its concentrated population and its enormous number of shops, does not contain a single arcade such as those which are so successful in certain foreign cities, and even in certain other American cities. The Windsor Arcade does not properly deserve the name, and neither does the new one at Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue. These so-called arcades lead nowhere and are merely devices in the planning of a building for the purpose of securing more stores on the ground floor. Probably one reason why the device has not been used in New York is that the blocks between two important avenues are usually very long. It is the avenues which are the important business thoroughfares, and they are connected by numerous crosstown streets. If the plan of New York had called, as it should have, for longitudinal thoroughfares every 200 feet and crosstown streets every 600 feet, then a condition would have been created which might in the shopping districts have resulted in the construction of many arcades. It is possible, however, that in the future changes which are taking place will afford an opportunity for more arcades. It is proposed, for instance, to run one from Thirty-fourth street to Thirty-third street, opposite the new Pennsylvania Station, and the plan looks like a very good one, because there would really be need of a thoroughfare at that point between Seventh and Eighth avenues from Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth street. Wherever two parallel and adjoining crosstown streets become of considerable business importance, as in the foregoing case, an arcade wears a promising appearance, and this condition will be created more frequently in the New York of the future than it has in New York of the past. The irregular blocks formed by Broadway's erratic course across the city ought also to offer opportunities for arcades. It is much to be hoped that some successful ones will be constructed, because they constitute an amusing and characteristic variation from the monotony of the streets in a city's shopping district.

THREE MILLION dollars are expended every year by American cities for art galleries, art museums and additions to their contents, this sum being only a fraction of the total expenditures for such purposes, private generosity and civic spirit adding many millions each year. In the year covered by the last Government report, the expenditures of Boston for fine arts (galleries, museums and the purchase of paintings and statuary) amounted to $10,000 only, Baltimore expending $10,000 and Detroit $12,600. Cincinnati expended $170,000, Chicago $100,000 and Philadelphia $175,000. These figures are small when compared with the expenditures of New York for fine arts, which amount to $400,000 a year ordinarily. This year the city's appropriation for the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Museum of Natural History is $320,000, of which the larger part is for the former. Brooklyn is allotted $80,000 in addition for its museums. The importance of works of art in the development of the high capabilities of a large city is not to be lightly underrated. European capitals owe much to the constant development their artistic resources by government aid or private bounty, and whatever makes for the establishment of a great city outside of its purely commercial character is an element of attraction. To New York in great numbers men of wealth from other cities have come to make their homes, and New York enjoys each summer in constantly increasing measure the benefit of the temporary residence here of large numbers of tourists from other cities whose patronage and appreciation have done much to put New York far in advance of all other places as the one place in the United States having all the important attributes of a great city.

Government by Commission.

THE city of Galveston, in Texas, has been making recently an experiment in the machinery of municipal government which is well worth the careful attention of the other large cities in the country. Some years ago, at the time of the flood, the charter of Galveston was of the ordinary American type, according to which authority was divided between a mayor and common council, and when the flood came and left the city ruined and apparently bankrupt the regularly elected officials were wholly incapable of acting as energetically and as efficiently as the situation demanded. Consequently the business men of Galveston, to whom prompt remedial action was a matter of life and death, went to the Legislature and secured the appointment of a commission of five members, in whose hands was placed full executive authority over the city and its citizens. Since then Galveston has been governed by this commission. The highest court of the State did, indeed, declare that the naming of specific men as members of the commission by the Legislature was a violation of the principle of home rule, but at the election which was subsequently held these same men were promptly elected by popular vote, and they have since been re-elected. Apparently they possess the complete confidence of the citizens of Galveston, and they have deserved such confidence. They have converted Galveston from one of the worst to one of the best governed cities in the United States. They have financed and carried out the costly remedial measures necessitated by the flood. They have increased the income of the municipal corporation and diminished its expenses; they have reformed the police department and cleaned out the dives; and their success can be largely traced to the fact that all the authority and all the responsibility are concentrated in this one commission. The Mayor is merely the presiding officer. His vote does not count for any more than does that of any other member of the commission. The other commissioners, each of whom superintends the conduct of one of the important executive departments, represent in the board the interests of that department as well as the general interests of the city. In this way detail work is divided up, while general responsibility is concentrated in the whole commission. The administration of the city is treated as is that of a business corporation, of which the commission is the board of directors; and it resulted in an extraordinary increase of efficiency, economy and honesty in the conduct of its municipal business.

It is not to be supposed that a method of government which serves admirably the needs of a small city like Galveston could be applied without change to the municipal administration of a much larger and more complicated city like New York. Nevertheless, the experience of Galveston certainly tends to confirm certain lessons which are suggested by recent municipal history of New York. We are, of course, familiar with the idea of treating the administration of a big city as fundamentally a business proposition, but in our own case and in that of Brooklyn, previous to consolidation, the idea was to concentrate as much authority as possible in the hands of the Mayor. Little by little, however, it was understood that the whole municipal administration of a big city conferred a responsibility on one man that was more than he could bear, and the tendency has been recently to bestow more and more authority on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Such comparative concentration of authority has, on the whole, worked very well. The Board of Estimate has proved to be the best piece of administrative machinery to which the conduct of New York's municipal affairs has ever been entrusted. But the trouble is that the makers of the revised charter lacked confidence in their own idea, and the complete responsibility and authority of the board has been curtailed in ways which have seriously hampered its efficiency.

The great mistake of the revised charter was the attempt which it made to revive the prestige and authority of the Board of Aldermen. The attempt failed absolutely, and subsequent legislation quickly deprived the Aldermen of the two most important functions they possessed, viz.: their veto power over franchise grants and street opening proceedings. In both these cases the authority which was taken away from the Board of Aldermen was concentrated in the Board of Estimate, and the city was much the gainer thereby; but, unfortunately, the legislation did not go so far in this respect as it should. What should have been done was the complete abolition of the Aldermen as a factor in our municipal government. The board costs an amount of money at the present time for which the taxpayers receive no adequate return, and its abolition would conduce both to economy and efficiency. The most important functions which its members still possess and which concern building and street ordinances and local street opening proceedings should be transferred to the Board of Estimate. The office of the President of the Board of Estimate should be abolished and his place on the Board of Estimate should be taken by a commissioner of rapid transit, who would be responsible for all the detail work now performed in the office of the Rapid Transit Commissioners, and who would be elected, as the President of the Board of Aldermen is, by popular vote. For, inasmuch as the Board of Estimate now has to approve of all rapid transit routes and contracts, it looks very much as if the Rapid Transit Commission, as well as the Board of Aldermen, had become unnecessary. The Commissioner, assisted by an expert engineering staff and himself a member of the Board of Estimate, could do the preliminary work quite as well and more economically. Final decisions in respect to rapid transit policy should rest with the Board of Estimate.

The great advantage of the abolition of the Aldermen and the Rapid Transit Commission would, of course, be that of simplification; and simplification always makes for efficiency and economy. At present there is too much division of responsibility, and too many people have to be consulted. A local improvement board can tie up some important street opening or street widening proceeding, like that of Fifty-ninth street, which is imperatively demanded by the interests of the whole city. The Art Commission can prevent the erection of a bridge or a public building whose appearance it does not approve. The Board of Estimate and the Rapid Transit Commissioners might disagree upon a matter of rapid transit policy, and in this way delay the building of necessary roads for many years. We use too many subordinate boards and commissions, whose work is nearly always inefficient. The commission which was appointed to select a site for the new County Court House, after sitting for four years, has been unable to reach a definite decision. The whole construction of the new Hall of Records has been an extraordinary example of delay and extravagance, due not to dishonesty but vacillating and inefficient management. The great necessity at the present time is to simplify machinery and concentrate responsibility, and to place that responsibility in the hands of a body of men elected by all the voters of the city. That is the lesson of the Galveston experiment, and that is also the lesson of New York's own experience, both before and since consolidation.

CHEAP CABS in New York City on anything like an extensive scale may still be looked upon as an iridescent dream. The configuration of Manhattan Island where one is going either north or south and where there is no radiating from a centre as in other cities may have something to do with the lack of public interest in the matter. There are subways, elevated roads and surface cars, respectively honeycombing, obstructing and gridironing the city streets so that it is comparatively easy to reach almost any point, yet the luxury, privacy and cheapness of cabs in Europe are missed very much by the travelled American or visiting foreigner. Mayor McClellan, when in Berlin, was interviewed on the subject of taximeters in cabs. He sees no legal reason why New York cabs should not be provided with them. It will be remembered that the Mayor vetoed a bill providing for taximeters on the ground that it would have given one firm a monopoly of the device. In spite of what has been done by ordinance in the regulation of cab fares in New York City, the question is still far from a solution, and is much in the condition that it was fifty years ago. The cab driver will extort as much money from his passenger as he thinks he can make him pay. As New York extends and becomes more than ever a city of "magnificent distances" a cab service at reasonable rates becomes a necessity. No one now ever takes a cab unless obliged to because of the fear of being charged too much or becoming involved in a controversy with the cabman. Assuredly some plan could be devised towards reforming this state of things, which is unworthy of a metropolis. In London, where certainly there can be no fault found with the cab service, there were, some years ago, a certain number of cabs that had on them large placards with the rate of fare, so that there could not be any dispute. It might be possible to do something of the same kind here. As to the taximeter, Mr. John C. Eames, of Claflin & Co., formerly Vice-President of the Merchants' Association, says that he has tested it here in New York and it is what is needed. He believes there will be a great increase in the use of cabs if they should be installed, for then people will know that they are not being imposed on.

At the annual meeting of the Harlem Property Owners' Association the following officers were elected: Dr. Abraham Korn, president; Morton H. Foster, first vice-president; Herman Rausen, second vice-president; C. H. Schildwachter, treasurer; Ira J. Ettinger, counselor, and G. W. Swanson, secretary.

Between Union and Madison Squares

Concrete Example OF Central Improvements

Remarkable Rebuilding Movement Which Has Quickly Transformed a Fashionable Residential Quarter Into a Wholesale Trade Center

ANY one wishing to study the science of central improvements as it is known and practiced in the American metropolis has the rare privilege at this hour of examining a concrete, compact and almost finished specimen of this ennobling work. As has heretofore been pointed out in these pages, nearly all the rebuilding to be henceforth undertaken on Manhattan Island must partake of the character of central improvements, which necessarily must be a business having to do with the very heart of the most valuable holdings and calling for the exercise of the highest talents in the real estate and building world. It consists not in laying out a new section or in improving bare farm tracts, but in part of clearing away buildings which at one time represented the highest obtainable income to be derived from real estate and erecting in their stead a different kind of structure many times larger in its dimensions and its cost, and capable of returning to its owner a larger annual income for his investment.

Old New York has been built over once, some parts of it twice, and others three or more times, representing every stage of real estate progress, from the trading post and the frame colonial dwelling to the modern stone mansion and gigantic office building. Between Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets, Broadway and Fifth avenue, lies a section which will repay an examination, as it is near the end of a period of transformation during which it has put off the character of a private residential district to become a commercial center. Reference is made to the cross streets more particularly than to the middle aisles of trade, though these also have each had its own rebuilding movement in times past through this latitude, and Fifth avenue is even now in the midst of such a transformation.

One need not go back many years in order to find the starting point of the present movement, for a span of five or six years will cover a good part of it, and many of us can remember when the only store, loft or business building was on Broadway, and that neither in Fourteenth street, Fifth avenue or any other thoroughfare in the district was there anything but private dwellings. Fifteen years ago William Jennings Demorest was one of the wisest buyers of real estate in the New York market, and the principal field of his operations was this section we are talking about. His method was to purchase private houses and alter them to meet the exigencies of business; and the main feature of his architectural design was a style of window which was all glass, except a slender framework; and it was to this plan that his success in profitably renting and selling was mainly due. Mr. Demorest never entered into a transaction for the purchase of property without realizing a profit, and he changed more dwellings into stores in Fourteenth street than other real estate owner.

FOURTEENTH STREET ONCE A FASHIONABLE QUARTER.

When the late Mr. Demorest moved into Fourteenth street, forty years ago, there was not a store to be seen, the blocks between Broadway and Sixth avenue being entirely given over to private residences, and Mr. Demorest made the first alteration in the street. The change consisted in putting a large bay window on the first story and making a business display. We shall never forget the consternation which this "central improvement" made among the fashionable people who then resided in the neighborhood. It was considered a sort of sacrilege. Mr. Demorest regretted the shock to the feelings of the neighbors, but it was not in his power to stay the march of business, but rather to take a wise advantage of it, so he bought a house next door and altered it the same way. He next purchased the Arlington Hotel, which then covered seven lots, some of which extended through to Thirteenth street. Mr. McCreery, the dry goods merchant, from whom he bought it, offered Mr. Demorest a few months later forty thousand dollars if he would re-convey the property to him. Mr. Demorest felt compelled to accept that offer, though he lost two hundred thousand dollars in consequence, for the property was soon worth that much more.

His next purchase was two houses at Nos. 4 and 6 East Fourteenth street. The owner of No. 6 had held it for forty years and had never received more than $3,000 rental. Mr. Demorest paid $72,000 for the property, bought a lot in the rear for ten thousand more, and then made alterations. This was about 1882, and soon after he sold the premises for $185,000, netting a profit of nearly $100,000 on the operation. Among the other private houses which he purchased and turned into business buildings was the residence of U. S. Secretary of State William M. Evarts, at Nos. 7 and 9, and also the Knickerbocker apartment house at the southwest corner of Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue. As an apartment house the Knickerbocker rented for fourteen thousand dollars annually, and as an office building, with stores on the first floor, it brought in forty thousand per annum.

It was about 1888 when Mr. Demorest first directed his attention to Fifth avenue. He predicted that it was only a question of time when this would be, next to Broadway, the foremost business street, as it had been the foremost residence street. One of the first parcels which he bought on the avenue was No. 81, paying $95,000 and selling it a few months afterward for $130,000. That was in the year 1889. The next year, having purchased the old quarters of the Manhattan Club, which stood on the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fifteenth street, he altered the house into a store and office building, with four stories on the avenue and five on the street, and four stores on the ground floor, all on a total frontage of 150 feet.

FIRST THE PIANO CENTER.

Three of the corners at Fifteenth street and Fifth avenue are even now being rebuilt. The northwest corner, 32x140, was rented to the New England Piano Company by Frederick Gebhard and his sister for an average rental of twelve thousand dollars and taxes, the lessee making the alterations. The Stuyvesant Building is now being finished on that site. The northwest corner, 39x100, with an L 25x92, when changed into a hotel brought in $24,000 per annum. In the nineties Fifth avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, became a piano centre. A score of piano firms paid, for altered dwellings, rentals of four or five thousand dollars a year, exclusive of Chickering and some others, who had their own buildings.

It was about the year 1890 that wholesale houses first began to be seen north of Fourteenth street, to refute an old idea that this thoroughfare was the ne plus ultra of the wholesale trade. Since then the cross streets in practically the whole district between Fourteenth and Twenty-third have been claimed for the wholesale trade, mostly by importing houses. Modern loft buildings have displaced the dwellings or inferior business structures in nearly all these streets. Within ten years most of this change has been wrought, a great deal of it within five years, and an immense amount of work is going on now.

While the region east of Broadway has participated in the movement, the most visible signs of it at the present time are in the opposite quarter, west of Broadway. Here, in every street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third, new loft buildings are rising at the present time. West Twenty-first street and West Sixteenth have been the least disturbed thus far. Henry Phipps has 80 feet in the north side of Twenty-first street, and 135 feet immediately in the rear, on the south side of Twenty-second street. Benjamin Stern, of Stern Brothers, owns Nos. 15, 17, 19, 21 and 23 West Twenty-first, and Nos. 16 and 18 West Twenty-second street, next to the Phipps property. Mr. Henry Phipps took title to No. 13 West Twenty-first Wednesday morning of this week. Eight months ago this property was sold to a syndicate of young men for $75,000, and they are the parties who have sold to Mr. Phipps, evidently at a price large enough to make their speculation very profitable as well as a clever one. It is understood that Mr. Phipps will presently improve this plot with one large structure, and there are also reports that Mr. Stern has a similar plan for his plot. West Twenty-second is already a retail street, the north side being knitted up with the interests that dominate Twenty-third, a regime which, we understand, will continue without material change.

IMPORTING HOUSES MOSTLY.

Mr. E. H. Hess, of the old firm of M. & L. Hess, which has been prominent in the rebuilding of this part of the city, confirmed the report that there is a continuing and strong demand from importing firms for quarters in this section. A few clothing factories have come in, but in the opinion of Mr. Hess these will eventually have to retire, if not to the territory below Fourteenth, then to the section west of Sixth avenue, as space is expensive east of that avenue, and factories need a great deal of room.

Of late years in New York wholesale houses have had a desire to get into the same district with retailers, whereas formerly they flocked by themselves. They now say they can do better when amongst retailers, and so here between Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets, Sixth and Fourth avenues, they occupy the very centre of the field. Mr. Hess, when asked whether he considered this movement a migration or a growth, said it partook of both. Old firms have not only moved up from downtown, but many concerns new to the city are among the tenants.

Fifteen or more loft buildings varying in frontage from 25 to 75 feet are in course of erection at the present hour, nearly all having either eleven or twelve stories. Between Broadway and Sixth avenue single lots in this section average in value about sixty-five or seventy thousand dollars, and an eleven story loft building on a 50-foot frontage will oftentimes stand its owner in about $200,000, as with few exceptions these new constructions are well built and equipped, and are suitable for the best lines of trade. The quotation for lots represents a rise of thirty, and even forty, per cent., in some cases, within two or three years, and there has been a wonderful advance within a year.

On the whole, it is one of the most interesting sections of Manhattan to the real estate operator and is a striking instance of what is meant by central improvements in New York. The following are selections from recent records of conveyances and plans filed for premises in this district:

Importance of Sewerage and Proper Sanitary Precautions for Queens Borough.

By JOHN W. PARIS.

In discussing the subject of the importance of sewerage and proper sanitary precautions, I desire to discuss it from the standpoint of its importance to the prospective home purchaser as it relates to his own and his family's health, and likewise from the standpoint of the importance of the operator or sub-divider installing a proper system of sewerage and drainage, rather than sell the property with the view of permitting the individual lot purchasers to provide their own sewerage and sanitary precautions, or to let the city provide same for him at some date in the dim future.

The two most prominent features which establish the degree of civilization of a nation, a State or a community, are classification of labor and its proper distribution and the importance attached to cleanliness, sanitation and health.

Looking back through the avenues of time as the nations emerge from the gloom of savagery, and we find that each individual household is dependent upon its own efforts for all its meager needs. It raises its own grain and converts it into meal. Clothing is produced from the skins of animals slain in the chase. As civilization advances, individuals become dependent one on the other and in what we now recognize as our present golden age of civilization, many a man never spends one hour of his entire life in directly producing a single article that his family requires either as necessities or luxuries. Thus the carpenter may never drive a nail in the house his family occupies. The plumber may never wipe a joint in his own domicile. The iron puddler may puddle iron all his life and yet never buy a pound of iron.

Again looking back through the avenues of time, and we see the human race emerge from the darkness of barbarism, extremely careless of the cleanliness of their persons or surroundings, in fact almost criminally so. But as the sunlight of knowledge increases and the shadows of ignorance are dispersed, the belief that good health produces more real happiness and enjoyment than all other conditions combined, merges into a well recognized fact, with the result that to-day we find the best medical talent to be had on our health boards, disseminating sanitary information and seeing that the best sanitary precautions are taken to preserve the best possible general health of the community.

As a local instance of the parallel advancement of knowledge and sanitation, take the lower East Side teeming with its population of poor and ignorant foreigners who have been born and raised in serfdom, never knowing the benefits of our great and glorious free school system, and compare its sanitary condition with the upper West Side where the benefits of education and culture are recognized and sought. In one case we find but little if any attention paid to the importance of sunlight, fresh air or cleanliness, with the result, a high percentage of mortality; while in the other case we find all buildings erected with a paramount thought to fresh air and sunlight in every room and every provision possible made for body and structural cleanliness.

Of all precautions which should be taken to insure proper sanitary conditions and safeguard to health, proper and adequate sewerage is the most important, and a proper regard to surface drainage ranks next in importance. The importance of these precautions multiplies as population increases. The municipality itself is doing yeoman service in meeting these requirements; but so great is the growth of the city and so rapid its spread that many sections must go unprovided for years and population unprotected unless the real estate operators and sub-dividers who are advertising home sites to the would-be home seeker, step into the breach and provide it for him. It will not do to say, "We will provide him with a lot and a few superficial improvements which catch the eye and let him provide his own sanitary precautions." We have shown that in our present high state of civilization men are not expected to provide these things for themselves; nor can they do so; neither will it do to depend solely on the city to provide them, as the demands made on the city government are far in excess of its ability to provide. Therefore, if they are to be provided before dire results follow the inflow of population, they must be provided by the operators and sub-dividers.

Queens Borough's area is almost equal to that of Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx combined, and in its large area it embraces more of the beauties and advantages requisite for home sites than any of the other boroughs. It has not the precipitous rock ledges of the Bronx, making the expense of improvements extraordinarily high; it has not the level plains of Brooklyn, making it extra difficult to secure sufficient fall for proper drainage; but on the contrary, it is made up of a beautiful and gently rolling country giving ample fall for its proper drainage and with a porous soil for the proper absorption of surface moisture. Its miles of shore front with the broad ocean extending from its southerly boundary and the placid sound bordering it on the north with its hills and elevations, make it an ideal residential section, one well befitting the name given it of Queens, as it is the Queen of the Boroughs.

Shall it be developed in keeping with this position? Shall we make of it a home centre where children can grow up in healthfulness of body, mind and morals; where mothers can rest serenely in the fact that their children are removed far from the foul and fetid atmosphere of the crowded tenement sections, into the purest of air, the brightest of sunshine and where no lurking or hidden causes of contamination due to unsanitation exist, and where the father can return from his hours of toil and enjoy with his family some of the luxuries of comfort, contentment and repose, which in his past experience has been a portion only of the lives of the wealthy? Or shall we through our lust for profit provide a condition whereby all of the advantages and blessings provided by nature are annulled through lack of proper sanitary provisions?

In inviting the householder to these apparent pleasures and blessings where he is expected to invest his savings of a lifetime, with the expectation of enjoying the many blessings and advantages portrayed to him by the versatile salesman, is it fair or is it honorable to force upon him a condition of which he is entirely ignorant and which will instead of bringing him health, pleasure and prosperity, bring him sickness, sorrow and death? To invite population into a section where each house must empty its sewerage into a cess-pool, where the soil must very quickly become contaminated, with all the deadly poisons resulting from sewerage seepage, is inviting it to sickness and suffering instead of healthfulness and happiness.

The history of certain sections in Brooklyn which were developed before the proper sewerage outlet could be had, and where thousands of houses were erected each one emptying their sewerage into a cess-pool, and where in a few years time scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever and other malignant diseases became recognized as epidemic, and which resulted in the death of one or more members of many families, is a fair example of what such a condition is bound to produce.

Within the past few months, the entire nation was stirred with the indignation at the reports made by a certain investigating committee which investigated the meat packing establishments of Chicago, wherein it was shown that poisonous preservatives were used in preserving meats for the purpose of giving them a good color, a good odor and a good look, but which when taken into the system as food caused the strong to become weak, the weak to become sick and the sick to die. All fair-minded citizens looked upon this as a crime, and none dared to assert that it was otherwise. How much worse was this condition than the condition where property is graded off, sidewalks are laid, grass seed is sown, shrubbery is planted and the sub-division is made beautiful to the eye, population is invited, the invitation is accepted and the territory becomes thickly dotted with homes, each one pouring its poisonous sewerage into cess-pools with the results of ill health, sickness and death which is sure to follow? Does that not come as nearly bordering on crime?

Those of us who are assuming the responsibility of opening up Queens Borough and providing therein homes and home sites for this city's rapidly increasing population, are assuming a grave responsibility. Should it not be placed on a higher plane than of simply selling lots to the unwary for the mere money profit, regardless of the consequences which follow as to health and the morals of the people we induce to locate there? The providing of homes and home sites for the rapidly increasing population of this great city stands to-day as one of the most prominent elements of the commercial life of the city.

London has assumed the responsibility as a municipality of providing large numbers of homes for its population and millions of pounds per annum are appropriated for this purpose. New York City is dependent and depends entirely on private individuals and corporations for providing these homes. Let us be honest with ourselves and honest with our customers and clients and provide them a home or a home site that is all it should be or that we represent it to be.

Permit me to make a few suggestions as to how this desired end may be reached. The hardest feature to overcome is the providing of proper sewerage outlet. With this provided and the remainder is comparatively easy and inexpensive.

Our corporations have made it a rule to begin the development of no section until we have secured a proper outlet for a sewerage system. There are many sections, however, which, on account of their nearness to the city's centre, and their superior transportation facilities, are in demand for business and living room, but which have no possible outlet for an adequate sewerage system.

These sections must then go undeveloped or be placed on the market without the installing of this most essential feature. Far better would it be that we dispense with the laying of sidewalks, the planting of shade trees and shrubbery which are generally recognized as indispensable than to dispense with sewerage.

I would therefore suggest that a unity of interests be encouraged to induce the city to provide outlets by building trunk sewers into those portions of the Borough of Queens where the conditions of transportation and location, the social, educational, religious and commercial life insures the rapid inflow of population.

Selling 6,703 Parcels for Taxes.

Edward A. Slattery, collector of assessments and arrears, began Wednesday, Oct. 3, a sale of Bronx properties for taxes due from 1886 to 1901. It is under the direction of Comptroller Metz in the Coroner's Court, 3d and Tremont avs. He will offer 6,703 parcels. Among them are properties on which the Central Union Gas Co. owes $25,056.55 and the Manhattan Railway $52,002.35. Bidders get the properties on long term leases and pay off the taxes. The owners must reimburse them with 10 per cent. interest, within 2½ years. If this is done, the bidder releases the property to the owner; if not, he holds it during the full term for which he has bid.

"ST. PAUL'S COURT."

This imposing looking structure is now being erected at the northwest corner of Washington av and St. Paul's pl, Bronx, by the Zipkes Construction Co., of which Maximilian Zipkes, 147 4th av, is president and architect. The building has been designed and built as a sample of an architect's undertaking, and is without doubt one of the best looking houses in the Bronx.

The front is laid up in limestone and white brick up to the second story, thence red brick laid in black mortar and trimmed with glazed terra cotta. The feature of omitting the usual heavy cornice at the top, which has prominently marked a great many of the buildings for which Mr. Zipkes is the architect, marks this building. The tower features, together with the combination of colors, give the whole aspect of the house an attractive and imposing appearance.

The drawing rooms are finished in mahogany, with lemon paper of the highest quality. The dining rooms are finished with Flemish oak panel work, and Dutch shelves, with walls laid up in green tapestry. Private halls are finished in a new style of brown pressed paper. Bedrooms are finished in maple, with light blue and light pink paper. Kitchens and bathrooms are in white enamel. Each apartment has a refrigerating compartment; also individual dumbwaiters and built-in closets. The main stair hall is entirely of marble, and the entrance and main halls are finished in a soft shade of brown. There will be electric lights and electric annunciators.

Special storage rooms have been provided in the basement, as well as drying apparatus for the wash of the various tenants. Despite the latest improvements and best workmanship, the rents will be medium, it being the intention of this company to give the people of the Bronx something better for the same rent than is prevailing in the neighborhood.

The building, which is 68x100 ft., with five stories and basement, was started on May 1, 1906, and is to be ready for occupancy Nov. 1, 1906, making just six months for the actual operation. Applications have already been made exceeding the number of apartments in the building. None, however, will be considered until open for occupancy.

Machinery for manufacturing sash, doors and trim was installed recently for the Weisberg-Mark Co., at 92d st and East River, and hereafter the company will estimate on this line of work.

Estimates Receivable for Wanamaker Arcade.

BROADWAY.—Architect Horace Trumbauer, Land Title Building, Philadelphia, Pa., is ready to take figures on the general contract for the 3-sty arcade building for John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, Pa., to be erected at Nos. 724 to 730 Broadway, running through to Lafayette pl, 136 ft. on Broadway and 120 ft. on Lafayette pl. The exterior will be in the Colonial type of design, with columns extending from the sidewalk to the third story, supporting a cornice and balustrade. There will be fourteen stores on the first floor, and the second and third stories will be partitioned off into some sixty or more offices. The site contains about fifteen city lots, and it is said Mr. Wanamaker paid about $1,000,000 for the property two years ago. No building contracts have yet been issued. For the new Wanamaker store building, at 4th av, 8th and 9th sts, D. H. Burnham & Co., of Chicago, were the architects, John Griffiths & Son did the masonry, carpentry and ironwork, and F. H. Chapman, 41 Cedar st, the excavating.

Gillies Campbell Co. to Erect Ball Building.

37TH ST.—The general contract for the fireproof 10-sty loft building, 51x85 ft., which Thomas R. Ball, 60 West 23d st, is to build at Nos. 36-38 West 37th st, estimated to cost $200,000, has been awarded to the Gillies Campbell Co., of No. 1 Madison av. The exterior will contain Indiana limestone for the first and second stories, and front brick, with stone trim, will be used above. The interior will contain electric elevators, steam heat and electric lights. There will be a composition roof, copper cornices, etc. No sub-contracts have yet been awarded. Townsend, Steinle & Haskell, 29-33 East 19th st, are the architects.

Makepeace & Co., of Providence, R. I., are the designers. The structure is to be built of reinforced concrete; the building is six stories high and about 300 ft. long. Another contract which Mr. Gilbreth recently secured is a large mill building at Bayonne, N. J., for Henry M. Crane. At the present time Mr. Gilbreth has under construction a number of large manufacturing plants, power houses, etc., in various parts of the country, including the Champion Fibre Co.'s new mills at Canton, N. C., which will be the largest plant of its kind in the south. This plant is being built under the direction of George F. Hardy, consulting engineer, New York, who has also awarded to Mr. Gilbreth another contract for the same owners for a mill over one-quarter of a mile long at Hamilton, Ohio. This plant will use the raw material produced at the Canton plant. At Seattle, Wash., Mr. Gilbreth is erecting a large reinforced concrete power house for the Columbia Improvement Co., which is well under way. This building was originally designed in structural steel, but after the California earthquake it was decided to change the design for the entire structure, including coal bunkers, etc., to reinforced concrete, it being better adapted to resist both fire and earthquake shocks. Other cost-plus-a-fixed-sum contracts which Mr. Gilbreth has in hand at present are as follows: A reinforced concrete building for the Citizens' Bank of Alameda, Cal.; a large forge and machine shop in Jersey City, N. J., for the Stayman Manufacturing Co., and the 12-sty reinforced concrete office building for the McGraw Publishing Co. This building will be the home of the Engineering Record, Street Railroad Journal, Electrical World and other papers published by the above mentioned company. It will embody the latest and most approved ideas in reinforced concrete. It will be the highest and the largest concrete building in the City of New York. Mr. Gilbreth has recently completed some large additions to the plant of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., at Stamford, Conn., the improvements consisting mainly of several large buildings, some of reinforced concrete and others of mill construction.

BUILDING NOTES

Louis Block, formerly head of the engineering department of the De La Vergne Machine Co., of the Bronx, has opened offices at No. 45 East 42d st as consulting engineer. His specialty will be ice manufacturing and refrigerating plants.

Michael Cohen, St. James Building, Broadway and 26th st, has been appointed sales representative for the Novus Sanitary Structural Glass Department of the Penn-American Plate Glass Co., Inc. Mr. Cohen will have associated with him Messrs. E. H. Ruehe, A. P. Curtis and A. E. Wiberg.

The West Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A., No. 320 West 57th st, is to enlarge its courses covering building construction. The course will be under the direction of Architect Louis E. Jallade, of No. 178 5th av, and an advisory committee, including John M. Carrere, of Carrere & Hastings; Chas. T. Wills, the builder, 156 5th av, and R. P. Bolton, consulting engineer for the New York Central Railroad Terminal.

The building public generally will be glad to learn that the late chief engineer of the Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan, Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, has, after five months of recuperation, been restored to health. He has opened an office as consulting engineer at No. 527 5th av, in the Night and Day Bank Building. His training and experience should make his services very valuable to real estate owners, architects and builders, especially in all matters affecting the construction or safety of buildings. During his connection with the Bureau he gave particular attention to fireproofing and fireproof materials. His regulations concerning the use of reinforced concrete have become the basis for all similar municipal laws since drawn in this country. In 1904 and 1905 he conducted for the Bureau of Buildings an investigation into the strength and properties of common clay brick. From the results obtained regulations were framed by the Bureau, which are now in force, governing the testing and acceptance of new materials of construction. Familiarity with concrete construction, cement products, the testing of materials and the building law has made him eminent in his calling, and he has been much in demand among professional organizations as a lecturer on the topics. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Testing Materials and the Municipal Engineers of New York. His many friends wish him much success.

No Free Rentals on the West Side.

Renting conditions in old New York have never been better for owners; that is to say, rents have never been higher, and houses, offices, lofts, stores and apartments never so well occupied. In the great apartment house section of the West Side particularly the minds of tenants have been completely disabused of hopes of free rentals. William R. Ware, of 451 Columbus av, said this week: "I have insisted upon the new tenants paying the rent from the first of October without any deduction for the time they are out of possession or inconvenienced by the work being done in their apartments after the former tenants vacated.

"The renting season, both for apartments and private houses, has not been better in years. There were comparatively few private houses for rent, and these were quickly taken, and from my observations there are very few apartment houses in this section that are carrying vacancies after October 1st. If there are, it must be for the following reasons: Either undesirability, too high rent asked, or not proper looking after by the agent or owner."

Foundation of Seligman Building.

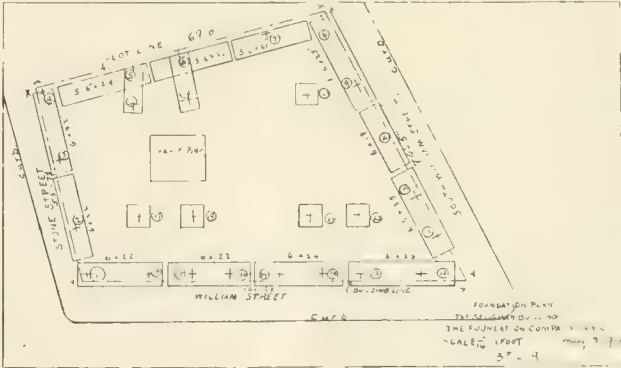

The view shows the foundation work of The Foundation Company of New York almost completed (Sept. 1). The immense caisson along the wall of the Chubb building is in process of sinking. Nearby are sections of shafting used in some of the other caissons. The interesting feature shown in the illustration is the method by which caissons are braced together in order to keep them in line. Farther away in the background may be seen another caisson, with air lock in process of being sunk.

By the fifteenth instant the caissons were all sunk 50 ft below curb to bed rock. There are eighteen caissons in all. The work of The Foundation Company for the foundation of the Seligman Building is now complete with the exception of removing the shoring timbers. These cannot be removed until the progress of the new building warrants it.

The Seligman Building (which will be twelve stories high) is being erected by Seligman Brothers, Bankers. Messrs. Francis H. Kimball and Julian C. Levi are the associated architects.

The diagram shows the plan of the Seligman Building foundation as planned and carried out by The Foundation Company. The eighteen caissons may be noted, the principal one being the vault pier for safety deposit vault purposes.

The Foundation Company is credited with achievements in foundation work which have never been equalled, let alone surpassed. The saving of time and the solidity of the foundation are the ends aimed at in this branch of construction, and when an investigation of the splendid work in New York is made it is thoroughly convincing that their methods are thoroughly successful. Without the wonderful air-lock system, however, the great combination of modern foundation machinery and appliances and a large staff of efficient men, it is a question whether they would be as successful as they are.

At the annual meeting of the Real Estate Owners Protective Association, held on Monday last, the following officers were elected: President, Ira J. Ettinger; first vice-president, James L. Conway; second vice-president, Robert M. Law; secretary, Leo Strauss; treasurer, August Haffener; recorder, William C. Pratt.

Car Houses.

Railway companies generally are giving closer attention than formerly to the importance attached to erecting car houses of non-combustible and slow burning construction; also to the limitation of car values in any one fire division. Noticeable among the properties erected of late are several of reinforced concrete type throughout, and others of brick walls and reinforced concrete, and tile roof construction.

The National Fire Protection Association has adopted the following requirements for the construction of Railway Car Storage Houses:

(NOTE:—The following are recommendations from the standpoint of fire protection only, and are in no way intended as a detailed guide to architects or mill engineers with reference to the strength which any building may require due to size or occupancy.)

Section 1, Walls:—(Approved concrete construction is not covered under this specification.) Walls to be of good hard burned brick, laid in best of lime and cement mortar.

(a) Outside Walls:—When of pier construction, piers to be not less than 20 inches thick, the face of pier to measure not less than one-fourth as much as the space between centers of piers, and the wall between piers to be not less than 12 inches thick. When without piers, to be not less than 16 inches thick.

Where exposed, to be carried full thickness of wall, at least five feet above roof, to be provided with durable and non-combustible coping. Where roof is of fire-resistive construction, walls to extend to roof. If exposed, walls to be solid, or any openings therein to be protected in a standard manner.

(b) Cut-off or Division Walls of Fire Sections:—To be not less than 16 inches thick, and when walls are over 60 ft in length, to be not less than 20 inches thick, or to be strengthened by equivalent piers or pilasters, spaced not over 20 ft centre to centre, the walls between piers being not less than 16 inches thick.

To be not less than five feet parapet, carried full thickness of wall, projecting through and beyond cornice eight inches, with durable and non-combustible coping. Where roof is of fire-resistive construction, parapet may be modified.

To be no openings in division walls separating car storage sections, except that for every 100 ft of length there may be one opening in wall, of an area not exceeding 21 sq ft, the same to be protected with a standard automatic closing fire door on each side of opening. End walls to have no openings within five feet of division walls.

Section 2, Height:—One story, without basement or space below, except at pits. Height of walls not to exceed 20 ft. at eaves line, or 25 ft. at peak of roof above the floor level, the slope being from one-half to one inch per foot.

Section 3, Area:—Sections between standard cut-off or division walls to contain not over 16,000 sq. ft. of floor area. Distance between centres of adjacent tracks not to be greater than twelve feet or less than eleven feet.

Section 4, Roof and Roof Supports:—(a) Post or Column Covering (when of Fire-Resistive Type):—All vertical metal supports to be insulated by not less than four inches of concrete, or of terra cotta, or of such other insulating material as may be approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, independent of any air space next to the metal. Well laid brick is strongly preferred for column covering.

(b) Girder Covering (when of Fire-Resistive Type):—All metal girders shall be insulated throughout by not less than four inches of concrete, or of terra cotta, or of such other insulating material as may be approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

(Note:—No plaster of Paris or lime mortar shall be used for the purpose of insulating material, nor shall any plaster, whether or not on metal lathing, be considered a part of the covering required.)

No single block or unit of insulating material used for column covering shall have a greater vertical dimension than six inches when placed in position, nor shall the shells and web of hollow tile or terra cotta blocks be less than one inch in thickness, and these blocks shall be laid up with Portland cement mortar, and the said blocks be suitably tied or anchored together.

(c) Roof (when of Fire-Resistive Type):—To be of an approved system of brick, concrete or terra cotta, or other non-combustible material which may be approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters for such purpose, with satisfactory insulation of special supports or tie rods. Roof covering to be of gravel or approved composition.

(d) Roof and Roof Supports (when of Slow Burning Type):—Roof timbers to be not less than three-inch spliced plank. To have timbers (preferably single stick) not less than six by twelve inches, spaced not less than six, nor more than ten feet on centres, supported by wooden posts, not less than ten by ten inches, and without trusses. Where roof timbers enter walls at opposite sides, there to be at least eight inches of brick work between ends of beams, which shall be self-releasing. To be without monitors. Roof covering to be of gravel or approved composition.

Section 5, Skylights and Ventilators:—Skylights to be of flat type, wire glass and metal frames, constructed in accordance with National Fire Protection Association standard. Ventilators, if any, to be of metal.

Section 6, Cornice:—Cornice, if any, to be of non-combustible material and plain finish.

Section 7, Finish:—If any, to be non-combustible, and without concealed spaces.

Section 8, Floors:—To be of brick, concrete, stone or earth.

Section 9, Pits:—To be constructed of non-combustible material throughout, including floors, steps, and walls, and to have not more than two track sections communicating.

Section 10, Tracks:—To run clear from building, without break or transfer table. To be terminated by suitable bumpers, so that there will be a clear space of not less than three feet between bumpers and wall of building. Special track work in front of building to be provided with guard rails where necessary.

Section 11, Track Doors:—Track doors to be in pairs, to be arranged so that whether open or closed any door of one pair will not interfere with the operation of any other pair. When within ten feet of cut-off walls, to be covered and hung as for a swinging standard fire door. Approved metal roller doors may also be used.

One Way of Solving the Rent Question.

A noticeable feature of South Brooklyn building is the great number of 2-family brick houses recently completed. Most of them are built on the same lines, on plots of 20x100, permitting a lawn in front as well as rear. Important features are the bay circular and octagon fronts, built of Indiana and Colonial white solid stone, and box stone stoops. The interior trimmings are of hardwood throughout; quartered oak console mirrors in parlors; Colonial one-paneled doors; Colonial dining-room, beam ceiling and shelf plate rack; built-in buffet and china closets, combined with leaded glass doors and beveled plate mirrors; tiled bath room, open high class nickel plumbing; Colonial gas fixtures throughout; two separate furnaces to each house; combination coal and gas ranges in each kitchen.

Those who buy such a house, and live in part of it, the builders say, live rent-free; those who buy for investment make 40 per cent. on the money they pay out, as is easily shown in the following illustration:

Rental of upper floor, six rooms and bath, $30. Rentals lower floor, five rooms and bath, $28. Per month, $58. Per year, $694.

Expenses: Interest on first mortgage of $4,000 at 5½ per cent., $220. Taxes, $62.50. Water tax, $13. Insurance, $4.50. Total expense, $300. Total profit each year, $394.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Liens satisfied seem to keep pace in the records with liens filed, a very good sign.

A. Hollander, real estate operator, has opened spacious offices at 100 Broadway, 16th floor.

Lehman Frier has opened a real estate and insurance office at 129 West 93d st, between Columbus and Amsterdam avs.

S. Kalmus has retired from the real estate firm of G. Tuoti & Co. The business will be continued as heretofore at No. 206 Broadway.

In the issue of this paper for September 22 the consideration in the sale of the Fleer farm, on the southwest corner of Rockaway road and Hawtree Creek road, in Queens, should have read $450,000. The sale was made by Howard C. Pyle & Co., of 199 Montague st. The property was sold to a syndicate of well-known Brooklyn and Jamaica men, who will immediately develop and improve it with the highest class of improvements known, and the lots will be placed on the market for $900 to $2,000 a lot. Authorities on Queens County real estate predict that they will have no difficulty in obtaining these prices quickly, as there is for lots in and around Jamaica, especially on the trolley roads, an incessant demand.

The members of the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York, of which B. Aymar Sands is president, and Allan Robinson secretary, are looking forward to the next legislative campaign. A notice sent out this week by Mr. Sands reads: “The Recording Tax Law, as passed at the last session of the Legislature, was a great step in advance. Certain features, however, embodied in the original bill as drawn by this Association, were not incorporated in the final measure. These features will be made the subject of amendments to that law which this Association will endeavor to secure during the coming year. Other matters affecting real property and requiring action by this Association will be taken up from time to time as they arise. Constant vigilance will be exercised to guard against the enactment of legislation detrimental to owners of real estate. In every way this Association will seek to protect and benefit the great interests centered in real property in this State. With the same support and co-operation from our members during the coming year as they gave us in the Mortgage Tax fight, the Association will easily justify its existence. The annual dues of $5 are payable in advance on October 1, 1906.”

Mr. Reynolds Talks of “Laurelton.”

William H. Reynolds, who is now principally engaged in developing a suburb called “Laurelton,” when asked why he had chosen this particular spot, answered:

“Because as a close student of New York realty conditions and tendencies all these years, my convictions are strengthened with every new transit improvement and every new realty boom and the trend of all building developments that this Jamaica territory lying along the third-rail Montauk line is fast becoming the most popular and desirable residence section and is to get the quickest and surest and healthiest rise in values in all Greater New York. Mark my words, the next few years will show I'm right. It's the logical direction for quickest growth. And my property, which will constitute the new community of Laurelton, is the first third-rail station south of Jamaica.

“Everybody knows what's already taking place about Jamaica—Brooklyn's history of profit-taking is being actually put in the shade. Look at the advance in the lots I sold in Brooklyn four or five years ago for $100 or $500—they're bringing $2,000 to $3,000 to-day. Yet a $400 lot at Laurelton will achieve this result in half the time, not simply by reason of general conditions, but because of our extensive improvements and established social character. I'm a firm believer in this policy, for I've seen its beneficial results in my own experience.

“See what my Borough Park club-house did for that community. Well, I'll soon break ground for a much finer one—to cost $50,000—at Laurelton, with a commodious automobile garage. Public parks and groves, beginning at the club-house, will skirt the railway frontage for twelve blocks, laid out in the finest style of landscape gardening, with pergolas, Italian gardens, etc. Besides the mile frontage on Merrick road, Laurelton has twenty miles of streets and 100-foot boulevards, with parked centres, concrete curbs and sidewalks. Over fifty houses of artistic design and distinctive individuality will be started the moment grading allows. Nothing but hedge fences will be permitted and the harmonious effect of a large private residential park will be preserved throughout. President Peters, of the Long Island Railroad, has approved the plans for the $15,000 depot to be built at once on the property. There's more I might say, but this will give some idea of my plans. In all, I shall spend fully a million dollars in improvements—probably more before I get through, but contracts have been let for much of this already and will be pushed as fast as consistent with thorough work.”

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in Section 2, Block 482, Lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows; The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

September 28, 29, October 1, 2, 3, 4.

THERE is still the same tantalizing Stock Market this week as characterized its action last week. What movement there is may be said to be confined to some half-dozen issues that were recently active. Professional operators view this activity with suspicion, believing it to be for the purpose of marketing the stagnant issues and some large traders seem disposed to go short in support of their views. With the rise in the discount rate of the Bank of Germany to six per cent., an unusually high figure for this season, and firmness in London rates, some disquietude has naturally been caused, and in a general way it may be said that the prevailing feeling about the market is one of caution, if not of fear. It bulls hard. Call money is working easier, but that does not prevent the apprehension about the money market later on, which may hamper business and real estate interests considerably. It is not believed that the failure of the large mercantile and banking house of Ceballos & Co. of New York and Cuba will seriously affect the New York Stock Market, although the firm was interested in a number of American enterprises. The stocks controlled by Mr. Harriman are decidedly strong. Steel, Coppers and some specialties are higher and they are in the hands of those who can put them still higher if they so desire. Steel Common reached the highest price in five years and there are those who believe that it will still further advance. In spite of the dullness in the market, to which the political situation in this State may contribute, the Government October crop report, with its assurance of an unprecedented corn crop, should, among other favorable conditions, serve to stimulate speculative sentiment taken in connection with our business prosperity.

WHILE the money situation has become less obtrusively insistent, the modified feeling is not based on any radical change or on any substantial alteration of underlying conditions. In spite of everything the real estate market has given further evidence during the week of a determination to improve. Brokers continue to report the failure of some negotiations on account of inability to procure the loans necessary to consummate the deals, but at the same time they consider that the outlook for the immediate future is encouraging. Transactions meanwhile are admittedly somewhat in the position of being held up, but to a greater extent in Brooklyn than in Manhattan; for in that borough, if not in Manhattan also, matters are complicated by the fact that owners manifest no inclination to make concessions from the very high prices at which they held their property during the summer, and the public are less eager to buy when any speculative hope for the immediate future enters into their calculations. Notwithstanding that more buildings were planned in Brooklyn than in the Bronx, Queens and Richmond combined during the last quarter, there is a scarcity of houses of the kinds that families seem most to desire in that borough, and a surplus of other kinds—the matter of location, to be sure, having a great deal to do with it. In Manhattan the dealing under the head of simple speculative transactions is being confined to particularly choice locations, but buying for permanent investment, for family residence purposes, and for high-class improvements has been exceedingly well represented in the business of the week. While building operations remain quite active, not so many projected improvements are being arranged for, and architects are able to take a breathing spell. In the department of building materials, cement has retreated from the high altitude of quotations to which it ascended in September, but still commands a higher price than in the month of August. Brick prices are firmly maintained at a little better than the level of last month, indicating that, notwithstanding the lessening of building projects, the amount of old work in hand is still very large; and it must be remembered that the natural end of the building season is now not very far away, with the indications strong that the winter will not be an open one; and builders must begin to shape their arrangements accordingly.

IT is very much to be hoped that the life insurance companies will listen to the appeal of the Bronx brokers and lend a larger proportion of their assets on real estate, but there has been as yet no indication that the reform in the financial methods of these companies implied any alteration in their investment policy. They have not been lending their money any more freely on real estate than they were lending it a year ago; and no single company has announced its intention of doing so. The Metropolitan Life may be investing a somewhat larger proportion of its assets in building loans, but the interest of this company in such speculative ventures is of no general assistance to the real estate market. Yet it is difficult to understand why, under a reformed system of administration the life insurance companies should not lend their money more freely upon real property. Under former conditions their neglect of this class of investment was, of course, easily explicable. It was the investment in stocks and bonds and the participation in syndicate operations which offered the officials of the companies their special financial opportunities, while at the same time the management of the companies needed securities which might increase in value for the purpose of obtaining a surplus which could be used in writing off deficits which arose from other sources. Under the reformed management, however, these reasons no longer apply. Deficits due to extravagant office buildings will no longer be created and syndicate operations are forbidden. It is, of course, a good thing for an insurance company to have a large fraction of its assets in securities which may increase in value; but it is also a good thing for them to invest largely in real estate mortgages which do not increase in value, but which are equally safe, and pay on the whole a higher rate of interest. Certain of the more conservative companies, organized in other states, have for years pursued such a policy to the immense advantage of their policyholders; and in the long run we imagine that the New York companies will find it wise to follow suit. Such a change must, however, be brought about very slowly. They could not systematically sell their existing holdings without hurting values, and the best that can be expected of them would be the investment hereafter of a large proportion of their surplus in real estate securities. We believe that as soon as the existing stringency in the money market is over it will be found that the financial managers of the insurance companies will find it to the interest of their policyholders to increase in this manner the income from investments.

A GREAT ten-story building for the business of James McCreery & Co. opened its doors this week. It is in Thirty-fourth street, what may now be called a main thoroughfare, opposite to the Waldorf-Astoria. Undoubtedly the large growth in business of some up-town cross-town thoroughfares and the building upon them of hotels, theatres, retail business establishments and office buildings illustrate again a curious feature of New York's industrial growth—the importance of streets having at either end or both ends a ferry connection. Nominally a ferry runs from a place where business has been established connecting the tributary neighborhood to some point either in New Jersey or on Long Island. Actually it is the maintenance of a ferry and the conveniences which a ferry offers for traffic and transportation that are of benefit to a street. For a number of years there was a ferry at the foot of Canal street, and during that period Canal street was one of the chief retail thoroughfares in New York. With the abandonment of the ferry the distinction of Canal street as a retail centre ceased. When the Fourteenth street ferry was established on the West Side, West Fourteenth street enjoyed a decided boom, which never extended, however, to East Fourteenth street as a retail trade centre, there having been no ferry at that point on the East River. In like manner the portion of Grand street east of the Bowery and served by the Grand street ferry has retained for years its character as a retail centre. Farther west, Grand street differs in no particular from the other streets of the same neighborhood. Two New York thoroughfares which are well served by ferries at both ends are Twenty-third and Forty-second streets. There are two ferries at the foot of Thirty-fourth street on the East Side and one ferry at the foot of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street on the West Side. Between Twenty-third and Forty-second streets on the West Side there is no ferry and has been none since the old Thirty-ninth street ferry was abandoned many years ago, but Thirty-fourth street from river to river, with its Pennsylvania Railroad Station at its western end, must ever remain a great cross-town highway of New York City.

Cooperative Apartment Houses.

THE PURCHASE by a co-operative building company of the southeast corner of Lexington avenue and Sixty-seventh street, for the purpose of erecting a co-operative apartment house on the plot, calls attention to a kind of building enterprise which is becoming more and more popular in Manhattan. During the past few years four large studio apartment houses have been built on a co-operative plan, and all of them have been distinct financial successes; and it is interesting to trace the reason of this success to its sources. Early in the eighties, when apartment houses were first being erected in Manhattan on a large scale, a number of co-operative schemes were tried; but all these schemes were, if we recollect aright, failures, and resulted in large losses for the people who had purchased apartments in them. These failures killed all such plans for almost twenty years; and it was not until 1900 that an association, consisting chiefly of artists, bought a plot of three lots on West Sixty-seventh street for the purpose of building a co-operative studio building. It was generally predicted that this enterprise also would be a failure, but instead it turned out to be a complete success. The original subscribers paid about $10,000 for stock in the company, entitling them to the ownership of one of the large studio apartments; and this stock is now selling, so we are informed, at a premium of more than $7,000. The building was divided into a certain number of apartments, which were owned by the subscribers, and a number of other apartments, mostly smaller in size, which were rented, and the income from the apartments which were rented sufficed to pay the operating expenses of the building, the interest on the mortgage and the taxes. The consequence was that the original subscribers obtained at a cost of $10,000 an apartment which would rent for at least $2,200; and it is no wonder that the stock in the company began to sell at a premium.

As soon as the success of the first enterprise was assured another similar building was started on the same plan and on the same block, and it resulted in an equally emphatic success. In this instance the subscribers were obliged to put up $12,000 instead of $10,000, because of the increase in the price of the lots, and in the cost of building; but after the structure was completed no difficulty was found in renting the unpurchased apartments, and stock in the new company again went to a very considerable premium. Even before this second building was completed, a third one was started on the same block, and resulted in a similar profit to the subscribers, in spite of the fact that the original investment was in this instance $15,000. The scene of the operations then shifted to the East Side. A company was organized, which purchased a plot 100x180 on the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and Sixty-sixth street, and which has been erecting what is practically a series of these buildings on this plot. In this fourth case, the apartments, while based on the same plan, are a shade larger in size, and represent an investment on the part of the original purchasers of from $16,000 to $20,000. The building is not yet completed, but its success is already assured, and the stock is selling at a handsome premium. The purchase during the past week of the adjoining plot at Sixty-seventh street and Lexington avenue has been made by people who were interested in the Sixty-sixth street enterprise, and it will be planned and financed on the same conditions which have been successful in the other cases. It is to be remarked, however, that a change is taking place in the nature of these enterprises. In the beginning they were intended for artists and the whole object of the plan was to get a series of spacious studios, eighteen feet or more high, and furnished with a north light. In certain of the apartments in the Sixty-sixth street building, however, the studio feature was abandoned, and it is probable that hereafter it will have a much smaller influence on the plans of these co-operative buildings. In fact a number of schemes are now being developed which are intended for the ordinary run of apartment-house tenants and in which the space hitherto used in giving sufficient light to the studio ceilings, will be converted into bed-rooms.

These facts are extremely interesting, and they suggest certain serious questions. How is it that certain inexperienced painters can put up an apartment house in competition with speculative builders and make out of the operation such a large amount of money? The profit on the first building erected was not far from $75,000, and constituted fully 66 per cent. of the cash actually invested. The ordinary speculative builder of apartment houses does not make profits as large as that, and the conclusion seems inevitable that there is some leakage somewhere. Neither is it difficult to discern just where that leakage comes in. The methods whereby the speculative building of apartment houses in New York are financed at the present time are undoubtedly very extravagant and offer a great advantage to the builder, who, like these co-operative companies, have a sufficient capital with which to start. The ordinary builder is generally a man with an amount of capital wholly insufficient to finance a large building operation. He has to depend upon the building loan operator for his money; and like all men in such positions, he has to pay high prices for everything he needs. His lots are sold to him at a value somewhat above market quotations; he pays a high rate of interest and a handsome premium for his loan, and the building material dealer is obliged to charge him top prices for his supplies. In these different ways an apartment house erected by a builder with insufficient capital costs many thousand dollars more than it would cost in case the builder could finance his operation economically, and the consequence is that it is only in very good times that there is any profit left for the builder himself. The building loan operator is the man who reaps the big profit, because it is he who supplies the money. The system is certainly an extravagant one and offers great opportunities for gain on the part of builders who can afford to get along without the assistance of the building loan operators. That was the case with these co-operative companies. Their buildings have been economically financed; they have had the advantage of a novel and convenient plan; and they have not spent money in gaudy decorations, which are ugly and unnecessary. They may not do so well in a period of over-building as they have done in the past few years; but their success is such they are likely for some time to compete very effectively with the builders of the better class of apartment houses.

Timely Advice to the Suburban Lot Buyer.

THE small purchaser of vacant lots in the nearby suburban districts of New York is confronted daily with an alluring, bewildering, and too often deceiving number of advertisements in our newspapers, setting forth the manifold future advantages to be derived by the immediate acquisition of building lots.

While it must be admitted that many of the advertised properties are well situated, and undoubtedly are being benefited by the extension of improvements and transportation facilities, still a greater number possess few if any advantages in point of location and means of access.

In the Long Island field great activity has been experienced in the purchase of acreage by out-of-town syndicates, who are now cutting up and improving their holdings. Several of these tracts are within the limits of the city, being quickly and conveniently reached, and the prices secured for lots are not out of proportion when the character of the improvements already made are taken into consideration.

Beyond this zone of development, however, and for many miles out on the Island, countless realty companies are unloading their "city lots" upon the credulous at ridiculously high prices. In most instances very little attempt has been made in the direction of improvements, except the laying of cheap cement walks and the rolling of streets.

It is the opinion of many suburban real estate men who have closely studied conditions on Long Island, that the future has been discounted to a large extent, and that many moons will have passed ere the uninitiated will reap fully the amount of his original investment.

In the Borough of Richmond also may be found opportunities for profitable investments in vacant lots, and as a proof of the increasing confidence of speculators in this borough of the city reference need only be made to the several recent successful auction sales conducted by the Jere Johnson, Jr., Co. within twenty minutes' trolley ride of St. George, the occasion being marked by lively bidding. The improved ferry service and the possibility of the extension of the subway system, not forgetting the new bridge under consideration, are largely responsible for the growing interest in Staten Island real estate. Again, the lot buyer must be governed by conditions, and must not stray too far into the corn fields.

Following the direction of the northward movement many new properties are being opened, especially along the Harlem and Putnam divisions of the New York Central Railroad. The change in motive power from steam to electricity is exerting great influence over values in this popular territory, and a wholesome advance is manifestly certain.

Nearby New Jersey also offers for the man of limited means opportunities for the profitable investment of money which must not be overlooked. Never before has so much activity been witnessed in the development of real estate. Large tracts are being opened, and many dwellings are in the course of erection. The opening of the great tunnels and the construction of the Hudson River Bridge, the Jersey terminal of which it is thought will be at or near Woodcliff, will effectually settle the question of quick transportation, the lack of which in the past has been the chief deterrent to the upbuilding of a community as much a part of the City of New York as Brooklyn or the Bronx.

Whatever the choice of the suburban lot buyer may be he cannot go astray if in his selection due care is exercised in not drifting too far from the main arteries of transit. Buy, but buy intelligently and cheaply.

The Long Island Investor

By W. STEWART McKNIGHT

THERE is this remarkable difference between the investor in Long Island real estate and investors in other securities and properties, that he has uniformly made a profit. I do not recall a single instance of loss. This is the more remarkable in view of the sudden awakening to the possibilities of Long Island investment and the great advance in values, or rather prices, which immediately followed. As a matter of fact, the values have been there, at least so far as the Boroughs of Queens and Brooklyn are concerned, ever since the consolidation. It could only be a matter of time when transportation so badly needed would be supplied; when corporations or the City of New York itself, would provide proper channels of communication for the overflow of population from the Island of Manhattan.

The wise investor, the man who looks ahead, began buying several years ago, and has held on to his original purchases, and strange as it may seem, it was not the New York City investor, operator or speculator, who grasped the splendid opportunity for tremendous profit. It was the outsider; the man from the West and the South and New England, who stepped in and picked up the bargains which were lying around everywhere.

Still more singular is the fact that notwithstanding the awakening that has taken place, the larger holders and most numerous class of buyers to-day are the same original investors or their friends and associates.

Recently a man from a town in Pennsylvania of 25,000 population called at our office, and in the course of the conversation about a property on the North Shore that he had in view to purchase, I asked him the following question, "What could a lot be bought for in your town in a locality where they were building houses costing from $4,000 to $5,000?" He replied at about $100 per front foot for lots 150 feet deep. I asked him what the increase of population was annually. He replied that it had been very small the last few years. He smiled and said, "I see the drift of your questions. A lot 20x100 in our town, where the population is increasing but slightly, costs $1,350, while you offer lots equally well situated, where the population is increasing 150,000 annually, for $500 per lot."

This is a common illustration of how outside investors approach a Long Island proposition. They compare values in their own towns and cities with values in the City of New York, and very naturally come to the conclusion that there must be a great enhancement of values in a city whose population is growing at the rate of 150,000 a year, when prices were practically the same or lower in their own smaller communities.

Undoubtedly in the active market of last fall and spring; some unwise purchases were made, and it was really like finding money to buy almost anywhere on Long Island. Prices were so low that even the worst purchases could hardly turn out badly. But the discriminating buyer, the man who realized thoroughly that transportation is the basic foundation of real estate values, has had no cause to worry over his purchase.

Within the past six months, a situation was precipitated which has tested to the limit the solidity of Long Island values. So much money was being drawn from the savings banks and other financial institutions for investment in Long Island real estate, that what appeared to be concerted action on the part of the financial institutions and title companies was taken to discourage, at any rate for the time being, further withdrawal of funds in that direction. The effect of this policy, coming at a time in mid-summer, when the real estate market is normally dull, and when a great number of contracts were maturing, it was feared by many that values would suffer. As a matter of fact, values have remained firm. There have been no recessions in prices, and while the volume of business was much lighter than it was last spring, yet all indications now are that the upward movement has again been resumed, and that Long Island property will approach much nearer true values.

ARE PRICES TOO HIGH? Have not impending improvements been fully discounted? These are questions which every dealer in Long Island real estate is asked daily. It is not necessary to give statistics as to the prices in upper Manhattan and the Bronx fifteen years ago and to-day. We all know what has occurred there, and we all realize what was responsible for the startling increase both in values and in population in that territory. The answer of course is rapid transit; first the elevated, then the cable and electric cars, and then the subway. Is not that exactly the situation in Brooklyn and in Queens that we face to-day?

Manhattan has all the population that it can stand. It is being crowded out by business. The Bronx, as compared with Queens or Brooklyn, is too far away from the centre of activity in Manhattan.

With the tunnel to Brooklyn, the Pennsylvania tunnels at Thirty-fourth Street, the Belmont tunnel at Forty-second Street, and the Blackwells Island Bridge and the New York Connecting Railway to Queens, we will have within the next three or four years, better transportation to those two boroughs than there is to-day to the Bronx. Is there any reason why with equal transit facilities, values on Long Island should not equal those of the Bronx? Long Island is certainly more desirable as a place of residence with its tremendous water front and amusement resorts. Its adaptability for building, excavation for foundations free from costly blasting of stone, sand sufficient in every cellar for foundations and superstructures, accessibility of building material and inexpensiveness of installing city improvements, puts Long Island in a class by itself, when compared with the Bronx and other territory within the Greater City.

There is but one element of weakness in the realty situation on Long Island, and one danger to be avoided by the Long Island investor, indiscriminate buying. It has not been serious up to date because prices were so ridiculously low heretofore that an investor could not make a mistake. The time for wise discrimination in buying has arrived. Building and homes must follow purchases or some one must suffer loss. Profits are seen along the line of transportation when the development is convenient to a depot or along the line of a trolley, where the fare will not exceed ten cents, and the time to Manhattan not over an hour. This property will have a constantly growing demand for building operations, and its activity is assured.

There are certain standards by which every investor should be governed in making a purchase to be assured of a profit. Every merchant in laying in stock for sale, considers first the needs and demands of his prospective customers. What does the trade demand is the problem for him to solve, and his success or failure is measured by his judgment of the popular need. Never purchase a farm unless you are satisfied you could sub-divide it and sell lots at a profit to those who desire a home.

If you have the capital and would not risk it in a subdivision proposition, you can feel assured no one else of good judgment would do so. Never buy a lot unless you are satisfied if you wanted to change your residence and build a home, the proposed site would suit you for that purpose. If you would not build and live there, you can feel assured no one else would.

All Long Island has a bright future, and the modernized and progressive policy of the new control of the Long Island Railroad will add population to all the villages of any size, such as Freeport, Bay Shore, Babylon, Patchogue, Roslyn, Oyster Bay, Huntington, etc. Prices in these places will always be governed largely by local conditions. Local industry, summer boarders and labor employed on large country estates will make a demand for village lots. The large population, the rapid advance in prices, the permanent values will be confined within the city limits, where city improvements, such as maintenance of streets once opened, police and fire protection, water and sewers, are possible because the Greater City is able to give them.

When Jamaica Bay becomes a vast manufacturing centre, and its inlets and creeks crowded with shipping; when the proposed waterway from Flushing Bay to Newtown Creek is dredged and lined with factories and structures, then you will find Fulton st. from Kings County line to Jamaica, Hoffman boulevard, from Hunters Point to Rockaway, Jackson av. from Blackwell's Island Bridge to Flushing, the main business thoroughfares of Queens Borough, and the intervening territory from the sound to the sea out of the market as lot propositions and in the market as improved dwelling and apartment property. Then the limits of the city will be expanded eastward, and Nassau County will become a borough of the Greater City.

Deals in residence properties continue to keep to the front in the real estate market. Brokers say that business properties are also feeling the effects of a more active market.

Dull Market in the Bronx.

SMALL DWELLINGS RENT BETTER THAN LARGE APARTMENT HOUSES—OPERATIONS OF THE AMERICAN REAL ESTATE COMPANY.

BRONX real estate brokers report a dull market, with the renting of new apartments progressing slowly and permanent loans almost impossible to procure on the new-law buildings that are about or have already been completed, places the owner in a most embarrassing position.

One and two-family houses seem to fare better than the larger apartment houses, as there are exceptionally few vacancies in this class of dwelling, and it is said that loans are more easily obtained on them. Geo. F. Johnson & Sons have already sold two out of a row of fourteen two-family gray brick houses not fully completed at Whitlock av, near Hunt's Point road, and have excavated for the purpose of erecting eight additional houses of a similar type adjoining.

The yards of these houses about the property of the N. Y. New Haven & Hartford R. R., whom it is said will change the power from steam to electricity for its locomotion. The excavations are well under way for the erection of a large Union Station, which it is supposed will contain several tracks and as many platforms for the purpose of transferring passengers from the large cars to smaller ones, to connect with the new proposed East Side subway, which is about to be advertised for bids. If these improvements are carried out they will make the surrounding property very valuable.

The American Real Estate Co. have also completed a row of ten five-story triple high-class apartment houses on Simpson st, near Westchester av, having six and seven rooms to each apartment. These are equipped with all modern improvements, including electric lights in each apartment. The rents range from $32 to $38 per month, which are leased by the year.

Two of the ten houses, which were completed about six weeks ago, are now filled with tenants. As the houses are all about alike, the company is filling one house before offering the others for rent.

There are five other houses abutting this under the same ownership in the course of construction which will contain four, five, six and seven rooms and bath each, three of which will be six stories in height and two five stories, and are due to be completed some time next spring.

The street in front of these premises has just been asphalted, and the houses front on the old Simpson estate grounds, which makes it almost as attractive as a parkside.

A Protest Against the Smoke Nuisance.

The property owners and residents of Mott av make this appeal to the city authorities:

In the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad yard, from 149th to 152d sts, are located two round houses, each having several chimneys, and in addition several yard locomotives are stationed there. From these chimneys and locomotives dense black smoke is emitted, so dense that at times the round houses are invisible from the 153d st viaduct. No one dare open a window, as the houses would be filled with the smoke and sickening fumes. This has been going on for a long time, and conditions are getting worse. The department claims that it has served several notices upon the company to abate the terrible nuisance, but apparently no attention is paid to such notices. Only lately we were informed that notices had again been served and the next day a train of sixteen cars loaded with soft coal came into the yard.

Though this has been going on a long time, we will relate only late occurrences. Saturday, July 21, no one could enjoy the music in Sigel Park. Sunday, July 22, the same conditions prevailed, and in the evening. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the wind had hauled more east and windows had to be kept closed as far as Walton av, and the smoke reached west over the Lenox av bridge. Thursday the wind hauled a little north-east, and the smoke reached as far down as the school at Mott av and 144th st, and so on.

In much smaller cities, even in other boroughs of this city, outside the Bronx, corporations dare not violate the laws. We have suffered for many years, and many owners have sold their properties at sacrifice prices.

Under a former administration, some years ago, the nuisance was in part abated through the energetic actions of the officers of an important taxpayers' association and remained stopped until the present administration—that is, of the Department of Health—came into power, and now these very officers of that same association claim that they are powerless, as the Department of Health appears unable to act, whether through want of authority or for other reasons the people are not informed.

The people know that the District Attorney's office is not powerless; the people know that the high officers of the company can be arrested for wilful violations of law; the people have confidence that the railroad corporation does not count the District Attorney's office among its valuable assets, though perhaps it might thus classify others in authority, and the people expect that some action will be taken if that office is appealed to, but before taking such drastic measures the Mott av committee has decided to again appeal to the president of the Department of Health.

Investigation, we believe, will establish that there is not one car load of hard coal in that immense yard.

Respectfully submitted,

Brokers to Fight for Justice.

At a meeting of the special committee of the Real Estate Board of Brokers of Manhattan, John H. Hallock, of 401 Grand st, Manhattan, chairman, it was unanimously decided that the board devise a plan for bettering the condition of real estate brokers in regard to fair dealings with operators and owners. It was recommended that the Real Estate Board of Brokers retain by the year a reputable attorney to represent it in any law suits it may have. The idea is for the broker who has a grievance to appear before the special committee, which can be made permanent, and state his case. The committee will then see the operator or owner, and listen to his side of the story, and decide whether in their opinion the broker has a good valid suit against the operator or owner, and if in their judgment he has, the broker shall be asked to assign his claim to the board, and the board will then sue in its name the operator or owner against whom the grievance is brought for the commission.

The committee thought that no fee should be charged by the members of the committee for any services rendered on the investigation of claims against operators or owners.

To a representative of the Record and Guide, Mr. Hallock said yesterday that it is the purpose of the committee if it obtains the sanction of the Board to employ an attorney renowned for his fighting ability, and to prosecute to the full extent of the law. In his opinion the existing statutes are adequate to secure justice and reparation, and no further legislation is proposed. Operators who shirk their honest obligations—and it is the operators who are mostly complained of—will be brought to book and required to account not to one lone broker, but to face the committee backed by the solid membership of the Board of Brokers, aided by the ablest legal counsel obtainable.

The depredations and injustice from which honorable brokers had long suffered at the hands of tricksters had become unbearable, said Mr. Hallock, and it was intended to put an end to them.

A Terra Cotta Consolidation.

Plans are reported to be well under way to form a combination or organization which will include all the leading terra cotta manufacturers in the country. A joint committee consisting of the representatives of the different firms has been making a tour of inspection of the plants in an effort to place a value upon them.

One of the local managers said to-day that the combination would be able to start business by the first of the year, while the others visited were reticent and preferred not to be quoted in any way, although the Record and Guide was assured that a combination would be the final result. Whether it would be brought about in a few months or would require a longer time, he could not say.

Three of the terra cotta factories are in Perth Amboy, namely, the Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Co., the Standard Terra Cotta Co. and the New Jersey Terra Cotta Co. There is also a large plant at South Amboy, known as the South Amboy Terra Cotta Co., and another is situated directly opposite Perth Amboy on Staten Island, the Atlantic Terra Cotta Co. All of these, it was said, are going to enter the combination.

The representative of one concern promised a surprise, and intimated that not so many firms would participate as was at first supposed. It is reported, however, that the Rocky Hill, the Armstrong Works at Philadelphia and others on Long Island will enter the trust also, besides a well-known Western firm.

For three or four years the terra cotta industries have been carrying on a bitter warfare in an effort to underbid each other. Hence prices have been low and a small profit has been made. All previous efforts to get them together have failed.

Real Estate Men Meet to Form Exchange.

Under the auspices of the West End Board of Trade a meeting of real estate brokers was held on the evening of Oct. 9 at Day's Hall, 54th st and 3d av, and was well attended. Daniel Moynahan, president of the Board, presided.

The principal business was the advisability of forming a real estate exchange in the South Brooklyn section.

After much discussion, the matter was finally left in the hands of the following committee: Messrs. Fischer, Keefe, Rogers, Watters and Sullivan. Another meeting will be held in the near future, at which time some definite action will be taken.

Life Insurance Companies Should Invest More in Real Estate Mortgages.

The following resolution was passed at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Association of Bronx Real Estate Brokers, held Oct. 4, 1906, and a copy was ordered sent to each member of the Association, members of like organizations, and called to the attention of all those interested in real estate:

Whereas, A large proportion of real estate owners, operators, builders, brokers and others interested in real estate are policyholders in the New York Life, Mutual Life and Equitable Life Insurance Companies, statistics show that only from fifteen to twenty per cent of the assets of these companies are invested in real estate mortgages, most of the balance being in stocks and bonds or like Wall Street securities paying on the average about three per cent. interest on the investment, and

Whereas, If this amount were invested in safe mortgages on real estate, which are acknowledged to be the best security it is possible to obtain, it would pay from four and one-half to five and one-half per cent., with the least risk to the company and its policyholders, and

Whereas, If the assets of the company were invested in mortgages as aforesaid the policyholders would be able to get far better results from their policies, investors in real estate would be able to obtain money on desirable mortgages when necessary, thereby bettering the real estate market. The real estate fraternities' money would be invested in mortgages on real estate, where it properly belongs, and the companies' officers and directors diverted from the speculative Wall Street interests, which in the past has been the source of so much discussion.

Therefore be it Resolved, That all interested in real estate at the coming election for trustees of these companies be requested to vote only for that board of trustees who will declare itself in favor of investing the assets of the company in good first mortgages, instead of stock and bonds, thereby securing to the policyholders larger dividends than have been given them in the past, as well as affording the real estate market the facilities to which it is entitled.

The Architectural Record—November, 1906.

This number is of exceptionally wide interest, covering many phrases of architectural activity, from the "Milan International Exhibition," which celebrates the completion of the Simplon Tunnel, a stupendous piece of engineering which eclipses that of the St. Gothard, to the consideration of the work of one of the rising generation of Western architects, Mr. J. Milton Dyer, of Cleveland, O. Professor Alfredo Melani, of Naples, gives, in his "Modern Italian Monuments," some fine old buildings in Piedmont that are little known to travelers, even Italians. The "Residence Block" of the Clark estate shows a healthy tendency toward a rational development of New York City residence architecture. Two commendable types of country houses are represented in the houses of Mr. John W. Pepper, at Jenkintown, Pa., and that of Mr. Elmer Clapp at Dedham, Mass., the latter entitled a "Suburban House in Boston," while Mr. Frederic S. Lee's house in East 65th st, New York City, shows a very livable city house for a man of refined taste and intellectual pursuits—a house which derives its advantages of plan arrangement from its generous frontage of 35 ft.

Tunnel Open March 1, 1907.

The work of roofing over sections of the new Belmont subway tunnel, which is to connect Manhattan and Long Island City, was begun in 4th st, Long Island City, Monday morning.

According to figures supplied by Hans Rude Jacobson, resident engineer of the work in Long Island City, but 800 ft. of tunneled rock and earth separate the tunnel workers under the East River, between Long Island City and Man-o'-War Rock. The distance from the shaft in 4th st, Long Island City, to Man-o'-War Rock is 2,500 ft. At present the Long Island City shaft runs 1,100 ft. out under the river, leaving but 800 ft. more until Man-o'-War Rock is reached. From Man-o'-War Rock to the shaft on the Manhattan shore the distance is 1,500 ft. Connecting tunnels are being driven in both directions across this strip and it is only a short time before the workmen will meet. The tunnel contractors say that the new subway will be opened for business March 1, 1907.

A Quiet Market at Bath Beach.

Mr. W. G. Morrissey, of 1832 Bath av, near Bay 20th st, speaking this week of the prospects of real estate in his section, remarked:

"I may say that the present prospects of real estate in this section are considerably bright. While the market is at present quiet, there is very little doubt that with the near certainty of a subway or monorail coming down this way, there is bound to be a strong demand for property at present prices, and I feel sure that it can only be a short time before there will be a recurrence of the boom activity which we experienced in the spring of this year. The most encouraging sign is the fact that there has been no slump or sag in prices, but on the contrary, the present figures are being well maintained, and real estate is changing hands from time to time at top prices."

New Development of Washington.

One of the important recommendations for the new development of Washington was that of new buildings for legislative purposes facing the Capitol grounds. For many years members of Congress have felt the urgent need of better office accommodations. Not long after the recommendation was made in the Commission's report, the House secured legislation for an office building to be located on R street South, facing the Capitol square, and the next year the Senate secured legislation for a similar office building on B street North. Mr. Thomas Hastings was selected as the architect of the Office Building of the House and Mr. John M. Carrere as architect for the Office Building of the Senate.

The artistic treatment of the two buildings is the same, the architectural character and height being controlled by the design of the Capitol. The Capitol is Corinthian in style. It is proper that the subordinate buildings should be less ornate; therefore the Roman Doric has been selected.

The building for the House consists of facades facing the four streets and surrounding a closed court, and it will provide an office for each representative and allow for an increase of forty-four in the membership of the House. The general plan of the Senate Building is very similar to the one just described; the principal difference consists in the court being open at one end.

The new Agricultural Building is well advanced in its construction. The exterior will be of white marble, classical in design. Rankin, Kellogg & Crane, the architects, have designed a central building of five stories with wings, to which other wings will eventually be added. The group when completed will represent an investment of five or six million dollars.

Also well advanced in process of erection is the New National Museum Building, which will cost $3,500,000. This building, of which Messrs. Hornblower & Marshall are the architects, became necessary so that the Government might utilize a vast amount of museum material which they now have in storage.

The Municipal Building of the District of Columbia, designed by Messrs. Cope & Stewardson, a large structure occupying a square of ground and costing about $2,500,000, is being built of white marble. The design is classical, consisting of a basement and attic. This is the first new structure to be erected in the Mall triangle.

Along Seventeenth street and B street North the Park Commission suggested buildings of a monumental character, representing educational, art, and other institutions. Since their report was presented, the Daughters of the Revolution have purchased the ground facing Seventeenth street, and now have their building, of which Mr. E. P. Casey is the architect, very nearly completed. It is a white marble structure, following the Georgian style of architecture, which is in keeping with the other work proposed facing the Mall. The George Washington University has purchased a square on this same street, and proposes to erect a group of buildings, the design of which, by Messrs. George B. Post & Sons, has already been accepted. The most important building in this group will be the George Washington Memorial. Mr. Post has wisely made it face the Washington Monument, the axis of the building being on the axis of the Monument.

Mr. Kennelly's Bathgate Sale.

The crowd at Wednesday's sale of the Bathgate property in the Wakefield section of the Bronx, owned by the Whitehall Realty Co., was not so large as at some other vacant property offerings within the last few months, but it contained a sufficient number of buyers to take 251 lots in what is said to be record time. Auctioneer Bryan L. Kennelly began selling at 11.30, and at 4 o'clock the last parcel had been struck down—almost a lot a minute. The total amount realized was $175,220.

The highest price of the sale, $1,650, was that paid for the southwest corner of Barnes av and 237th st, 25x134. The northwest corner brought $1,450, and inside lots on Barnes av from $700 to $800 each.

Along Nereid av the bids averaged $850 for corners and $650 for inside lots. A triangular plot, something over a lot in area, at Barnes and Nereid avs, was sold for $1,000. Lots on Gunther and Wickham avs ranged in price from $500 to $550 each.

Among the buyers were S. Casper, S. J. Klee, Michael S. Gleason, Elizabeth Farrell, Charles Massoth, John Georgen, F. Herrington, Sarah Hutter, Hugo Wabst, Isaac Smith, Fridolin Weber, John J. Gilligan, John A. Smith, Paul Noe and George N. Fischer.

The Strange & Slawson Company, recently incorporated to operate in real estate, is now occupying offices at 56 Pine st. This company is composed of William C. Strange, late vice-president of the O'Neill Dry Goods Concern, and a large holder of Manhattan Realty, and Loton H. Slawson. They will be pleased to receive brokers' lists of offerings.

At a meeting of the West End Association of Manhattan, in the Hotel St. Andrew, President J. Van Dyck Card announced that the association had won a victory after a fight of three years in that the Corporation Counsel has decided that the parks on Broadway are like the other city parks, and must be cared for in a similar manner. Architect Charles H. Israel is at the head of the committee which has been fighting for this good object.

Heads of all the city departments in Brooklyn, Comptroller Metz and Borough President Coler have been invited to attend the dinner to be given by the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers at the Union League Club Thursday evening, Oct. 25. Members of the Society of Architects and the Builders' Association have also received invitations to attend the dinner. It is the first annual dinner of the association, which was formed early this year.

The opening session of the real estate courses of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, 318 West 57th st, will be held Tuesday evening, Oct. 16, at eight o'clock. Mr. Henry Harmon Neill, real estate editor of the Evening Mail, will preside. Mr. Walter Stabler, comptroller the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., will give a short address, and Mr. Francis E. Ward, former president Board of Real Estate Brokers, will give the address of the evening, on "Housing."

Permanent loans are still hard to procure by building operators, and as a consequence, a number of foreclosures have been made throughout Greater New York. Money is scarce and at present a much higher rate of interest can be realized on stocks and bonds in Wall street than on real estate. This stringency, it is thought, will be but temporary. Whatever property has to be sold will pass into stronger financial hands; besides nearly all trades are doing well, and the country at large is enjoying bountiful prosperity.

James L. Wells conducted a successful sale at the Vesey st salesroom on Wednesday. He sold 1889 Crotona av, west side, 217.8 ft. north of 176th st, plot 50x246, 2-sty frame dwelling, to E. W. Bailey for $12,800; No. 1891 Crotona av, west side, 267.8 ft. north of 176th st, plot 50x246.3, 2-sty frame dwelling, to J. Brenning for $12,150; 176th st, north side, 124.10 ft. east of Arthur av, plot 100.4x200x irregular, to G. T. Giarano for $13,400; also Arthur av, east side, 172.9 ft. north of 176th st, plot 100.10x206.3x100x193.6, to Mrs. Agnes K. Murphy Mulligan for $21,825.

A number of purchasers of lots in the Sisters of Charity tract on Eastern Boulevard, sold at auction last May, held a meeting recently, and an invitation has been sent to all purchasers requesting their co-operation in having the city authorities adopt the streets as laid out on the sales map. It is also proposed to form a permanent Property Owners' Association. A second meeting was held Friday evening, Oct. 12, at 8 o'clock, at Freidoff's Hall, corner Tremont (177th st) and Third avs. Edward J. Gallagher, Jacob Broschart and William B. Hogan were the committee in charge.

The small speculator who buys unimproved real estate runs much greater risks than the man or woman who buys improved property. In the first mentioned instance the man who buys unimproved property wherever it may be, will have to pay taxes, and in most cases will meet with assessments of some kind or another, and never can be absolutely certain as to what class of improvements will take place in proximity to his holdings; while on the other hand, the owner of improved property, even if he never sells, has some sort of income. Many cases can be quoted, however, where these investors, both large and small, have purchased unimproved parcels and sold them within a short period of time and realized much larger profits than could have been obtained within the same period on improved property.

At the New York Real Estate Salesrooms, 14 Vesey street, Bryan L. Kennelly sold at auction for the Whitehall Realty Company, 251 lots in the Bathgate Estate tract in the Wakefield section of The Bronx, the sale realizing a total of $175,220, making the average price of the lots about $700. The highest price, $1,650, was paid for a lot 25x134x irregular, at the southwest corner of East 237th st and Barnes av. The opposite corner, 25x100, sold for $1,450. A triangular plot 93.5x63.7x68.4, formed by Byron and Nereid avs, brought $850, and lots adjoining in Nereid av, $700 each; an irregular plot, 25x49.8x90.1x99.9, at the intersection of Nereid and Barnes avs, selling for $950. Two corners at East 239th st and Barnes av sold for $1,250 and $950. Inside lots in Barnes av ranged from $950 to $700. Inside lots in Gunther and Wickham ays sold at an average of $550. There was a noticeable absence of speculators and very few of the buyers took more than one lot. The sale began at 11 o'clock in the morning and occupied less than five hours.

Plans of the Belmont tunnel line managers continue under the rose, but some facts speak for themselves, and one is that the roof of the tunnel at 42d st and Park av is at a lower grade than the floor of the Manhattan subway. The inference from this is that the company, which has a franchise across the island to near the North River shore line, is in a position to tunnel underneath the Manhattan subway through 42d st. It is also apparent that for the present it is not contemplated to make a track connection between the Belmont tunnel line and the Manhattan Subway. There is a possibility that a great underground loop will be constructed for the Long Island subway, something similar to the trolley loops at the Brooklyn Bridge, at the Manhattan terminal, and passengers will transfer to and from the Manhattan Subway at this point. It is also predicted by those in charge that the subway may be opened for traffic by March of the coming year. Just what connection will be established between the Tunnel and the Queens trolleys is also still unknown to the public, but from present indications, it will probably be necessary to change cars, and also to pay another fare.

—Recent interest in the future of the old Altman Building and the Sixth Ave. shopping district real estate has been renewed by the announcement of B. Altman & Co. that they will move to their new Fifth Ave. store next week. Many people are wondering if the building will be let out in lofts or whether some big corporation will go in and take up another line of business where Altman & Co. leave off. Henry Morgenthau, one of the owners, said this week that the building would not be cut up, and further: "If a man had a big diamond of the first-water, would he cut it up into small pieces?"

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in Section 2, Block 482, Lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows; The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

October 5, 6, 8, 9, 10 and 11.

DULNESS prevailed in the Stock Market this week. Indeed prices, on the whole, may be said to be a little lower than last week and flatness more pronounced. Money on call was somewhat tighter, but rather easier on time. Railroad and trade reports grow instead of diminishing in their account of great activity in business and traffic, and continue their encouraging monotony. There is no halt in our prosperous progress, yet speculation could not be deader were we in the midst of a great depression. Wall Street finds it convenient to account for this state of things by the political unrest and consequent situation, but it may be that time will develop other reasons. In the meantime the "Hopeful Club" has a large membership waiting to be made happy after the election in this State. As it is, the tape moves spasmodically. It is felt that a period of uncertainty is being tided over, and some say that the financiers who have arranged for important combinations and other big things which await announcement, will proclaim them at a time when the public mind is in condition to receive them properly. This would not appear to be the case at the moment. There is a strong undertone in some stocks and securities. A feature worthy of remark was the strength of the United States Steel Corporation's sinking fund 5 per cent. bonds, which sold at 101, a new high record. But taking the market as a whole, banking interests and cliques appear to be giving the market little or no support. Secretary Shaw was in Wall Street this week, but refused to discuss the financial situation, in which latter it may be said there is nothing that should cause immediate anxiety. All that can be done, therefore, is to await developments in this important matter; which, other things being equal, should be favorable to a renewal of activity in real estate and its kindred interests.

IT can hardly be declared that as the season advances the real estate market in Manhattan becomes more interesting or more active. On the contrary, it is most assuredly less active and interesting than it has been for years. It has failed entirely to develop a marked speculative tendency in any one direction or in any one part of the city. The speculation in tenement houses, which has been such a noticeable feature of the market since the fall of 1903, has at length subsided. The speculation in vacant land is confined to the outskirts of the city, and does not affect expensive unimproved real estate in Manhattan. A large number of new buildings are still being erected on the West Side and in the wholesale districts; but there is no pronounced activity in those sections. A few weeks ago the purchase of private dwellings on the West Side attracted some attention, but it soon vanished, and it never attracted much interest on the part of speculators. The fact is that the ordinary speculator is less certain about the value of the opportunities for making money in real estate than he has been at any time during the past five years. The tenement house speculation has been worked out, and will leave many small operators, who have lived on it for several years, a good deal at a loss what to do. Throughout the coming year at least, the erection of new tenement and apartment houses will be a somewhat precarious business, which can be undertaken only by people with abundant capital. It looks as if the best opportunities during 1907 would fall to those people who are interested in properties between Twenty-third and Forty-second streets, which is capable of being developed for business purposes. The demand for loft room in that part of the city is still excellent, and large as has been the number of buildings of that kind erected during recent years, the supply has not overreached the demand. It is likely that this part of the city still affords the best opportunity for speculative activity. There are many side streets and several avenues in the area bounded by Twenty-third and Forty-second streets, Lexington and Eighth avenues, which have not received the attention which they deserve. It is this area which is to be the heart of the New York of the future—of the New York the majority of whose inhabitants will live in The Bronx, on Long Island, or in New Jersey, and who will have cheap and convenient means of traveling to and from their homes. These people will be able to reach this central district more conveniently than they can reach any other part of Manhattan, and a vast amount of the necessary machinery of business and pleasure will necessarily be concentrated in this square mile of territory. Of course, it will be some years before the new tunnels and rapid transit routes will begin to have their effect, and the purchaser may have to wait for some time before he can make large profits, but it is the man who buys now and holds on tight who will make the money. For the present, the only indication of the future prosperity on the streets and avenues which have been hitherto neglected will be the steady purchases for the sites of new loft buildings. Such purchases, however, will really only make time. The day will soon arrive when this whole district will be the central point of a number of transit tunnels whose large ends will be situated in the outlying boroughs, and which will confer an extraordinary monopoly on the owners of real estate within the area described.

The New Fifth Avenue.

THE opening of the new dry goods store of Benjamin Altman & Co., at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, is the best possible indication of the transformation which has been taking place on that thoroughfare since 1901. The character of the Altman store and the length of time which was required to buy the necessary land is the most typical illustration of character of the whole transformation. In 1901 Fifth Avenue had for fifteen years been changing slowly from a thoroughfare which was given up to expensive residences to one which was given up to the best class of retail trade; but up to that time the change had not been particularly profitable to the owners of real estate on Fifth Avenue. The new stores on the avenue did not do very much more than hold their own, and the price of real estate remained about where it was in 1885, when Fifth Avenue was still for the most part the abiding place of wealthy people. The transformation did not have any very active effect on the value of property until after 1901. In that and the following years it was suddenly realized that New York was becoming more than ever the city of the rich and that more money than ever was to be made by catering to the needs of the wealthy people who spent part of their time in the city. A sudden demand for locations on Fifth Avenue set in. The prices of property and the rental value of shops began to rise rapidly, and one important retail firm after another, which had formerly been located south of Twenty-third Street, secured sites on the avenue. This process has continued ever since, until at the present time we believe that for the mile and over between Twenty-sixth and Forty-eighth streets, which includes the part of the avenue devoted to the retail trade, a higher level of real estate values prevails than it does over any similarly long stretch of street frontage in the world.

No single man in New York City anticipated the meaning of this transformation and did more to accelerate it than Benjamin Altman. Acting under the best advice he could get as to real estate values, he began his purchases a number of years ago with the corner of Thirty-third Street and Fifth Avenue and several adjoining houses. At first he proceeded very slowly, perhaps too slowly; but towards the end he bought hard and fast, and the vigor of his purchases advanced the value of property on the block he wanted to such a high level that many people began to wonder whether it could pay him to purchase his land at such a heavy cost. But Mr. Altman knew what he was about, and large as were the prices he paid, they were smaller than the existing level of real estate values on the best parts of Fifth Avenue and of Thirty-fourth Street. The consequence is that Mr. Altman not only piled together a piece of property which is worth more than he paid for it, but he obtained absolutely the best site in the city for his new store, and one which cannot possibly be duplicated by any of his competitors. The value of real estate on Fifth Avenue at the present time is so high, so many tall buildings have been erected, and the lots are tied up with so many long leases, that no corporation, unless it possessed the power to condemn the land it needed, could purchase a block front on the avenue. The only other similar frontage was that owned by the late Marshall Field of Chicago, and Mr. Altman wisely withdrew that property from the market by leasing it himself. A very rich firm might possibly piece together 75 or 100 feet somewhere on the avenue which could be connected with a larger area in the adjoining side streets; but the location of such a plot would necessarily be much inferior to that of Mr. Altman, and it would be terribly costly to its purchaser. Mr. Altman has not only the best site for a general dry goods store on Fifth avenue, but just at present he has the only site, and such a distinction will most assuredly give him a marked advantage over his competitors.

The distinction will be very great, because there can be no doubt that Fifth avenue is destined to become the most conspicuous and from certain points of view the most interesting thoroughfare in the United States. As we have said, real estate values are and will be higher for a longer distance than on any other street in the world; and such high values will necessarily bring with them an architecture correspondingly imposing. It is not appropriate for a large store on Fifth avenue to be merely a simple and businesslike structure. Such a location demands a certain amount of architectural pretension, and the various large firms located on the avenue have fully realized this fact. Buildings like those of Tiffany and the Gorham Companies are a new thing in the architecture of American business buildings. They are not merely ornate, but they are handsome and distinguished. One has only to compare the old cast-iron front which the Tiffany Company used to occupy on the corner of Fifth avenue and Fifteenth street, with the marble Venetian palace on the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street in order to realize how much more attractive and "swell" the new shop on Fifth avenue has to be, and so it is with the Altman store. Mr. Altman has erected the best looking general dry goods store to be found either in this country or in London or Paris. The big stores in London are insignificant. Those in Paris are florid. The new Macy and Wanamaker buildings in this city, and the Marshall Field Building in Chicago, are spacious, convenient and respectable structures; but they are lacking in architectural distinction or style. The Altman store, on the other hand, like those of Tiffany and Gorham, has style and distinction. It does not merely look costly, but it looks as if the money had been well spent, in order to produce an effect which is both imposing and in good taste. The stone of which it is constructed was imported from France, and has an admirable surface and texture, and the design, while it lacks the coherence which is characteristic of the buildings on Fifth avenue designed by McKim, Mead & White, is nevertheless acceptable, and will produce the desired effect upon the public. Buildings of this kind are not sufficiently numerous on the avenue to give character to the whole thoroughfare. There are still remaining so many brownstone fronts into which stores have been knocked that they impair the uniformity of the architectural effect. But little by little these buildings will be replaced by others more appropriate, until the business part of Fifth avenue will have a uniformly attractive and imposing appearance.

ONE effect of the excessive enlargement of the boundaries of New York has been to include within municipal limits districts in which many years ago cemeteries were established, with no expectation that they would ever be included in New York, and in fact with the declared purpose of being "outside the city limits" of the two hundred and ten thousand acres included within the boundaries of the city of New York. Ten thousand acres in this area are made up of parks and cemeteries, the cemeteries including 3,125 acres. Calvary cemetery, in Queens County, has an area of 300 acres, Greenwood has 478, Cypress Hills, 400; Cedar Grove, 300; Evergreen, 300; Lutheran Cemetery in Newtown, 250; Maple Grove, 100; St. John's, 180 and Mount Pleasant 100. Successive acts of legislation have authorized the incorporation of cemetery associations, fixing in each case a location outside of the city; but these acts have failed to provide for any extension of the city boundaries. Although New York has within its limits upward of three thousand acres of cemetery lands, it derives no revenue from cemeteries, either in taxes or directly, and is in this particular different from some other American cities shown by recent reports to contribute half a million dollars a year to city revenues. From cemeteries Boston gets $24,000; Cleveland, $44,500; Providence, $20,000; Rochester, $36,000; Toledo, $12,000; Worcester, Mass., $27,000; Fall River, $12,000; Lowell, Mass. $18,000;

Grand Rapids, Mich., $20,000; New Bedford, Mass., $15,000; Cambridge, Mass., $14,000; Lynn, Mass. $14,000; Springfield, Ill., $20,000; Des Moines, Ia., $12,000; Terre Haute, Ind., $11,000 and Portland, Me., $20,000.

The Improvement of Upper Broadway.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

In your issue of Oct. 13 you erroneously give me the credit for being chairman of the committee which has been fighting for the improvement of upper Broadway on behalf of the West End Association. The statement is an error, as the credit is due to Mr. Frank R. Houghton, the chairman of the West End Association's Committee on Local Improvements. The work that I have done towards this same object has been on behalf of the Municipal Art Society.

It is a mistake, however, to believe that the fight is won, as unless considerably more interest is shown by the citizens of the upper West Side the appropriation now proposed for this purpose may be lost in the general pruning to which the city's budget is always subjected. President Herrman, of the Park Board, has included in his budget for the coming year an item of $50,000 for this purpose. On behalf of the Municipal Art Society I addressed the Board of Estimate and Apportionment urging this appropriation and asking that the Society be informed as to the time when I might appear to urge the matter.

It was generally understood that the matter would be considered at the public hearing before the Board last Friday, Oct. 12. I was present at the meeting, and the West End Association was represented by Mr. John C. Coleman.

The calendar for the day made no mention of the matter, and I am now attempting to have a day set when the Municipal Art Society and the West End Association may be heard.

But if this appropriation is granted the work will be but half done. If the parkways are planted without being properly protected by suitable fences the improvement will have no permanent value.

These fences are not under control of the Park Department, but must be erected by the Commissioner of Public Works. I requested Commissioner Dalton to include an amount for this fencing in his estimates, but President Ahearn's office tells me that although Commissioner Dalton made the recommendation that $50,000 be granted for fencing, that no specific item for this purpose appeared in the final estimates.

I am, however, informed by President Ahearn's office that as these fences are in the nature of "permanent improvement," the appropriation may be obtained at any time by an issue of revenue bonds.

You will therefore see that the fight is not won unless every man who is interested impresses upon the Board of Apportionment that this improvement is wanted, and wanted at once. If upper Broadway remains in its present neglected condition, the people will be to blame.

CHARLES H. ISRAELS.

(Chairman Com. on Street Fixtures Municipal Art Society.)

Justice Fitzgerald's Recent Decision on Real Estate Law Somewhat of an Innovation.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

The law firm of Frankenthaler & Sapinsky, of 35 Nassau st, were the plaintiff's attorneys in the following described action:

Mr. A had entered into a contract to exchange certain unimproved property in Brooklyn for the premises 410 West 56th st, owned by Mr. B, the defendant. The contract described the 56th st premises as being 25 ft. in width in front and rear and 100 ft. in depth on each side (more or less), and further provided that at the time of closing title the premises were to be conveyed free and clear of all violations which had been filed in the Municipal Departments prior to the date of making contract.

At the time of closing title it appeared that the lot was 7 ft. shorter than the contract required, and the violations had not been removed. The defendant at that time conceded that he was unable to perform in accordance with the contract, but insisted that the plaintiff must either take the premises in its then existing condition, or should satisfy himself with receiving the return of his deposit, together with the costs and expenses of searching the title. The plaintiff refused to accept either proposition, insisting instead upon having the 56th st property, together with a reasonable allowance because of the shortage and of the existing violations.

It was strongly urged by the defendant's attorney in this action that the Court had no power to make a new contract for the parties, and that the plaintiff must take the property as it stands or accept the return of his deposit with counsel fees.

Unsatisfactory and unjust as this proposition may seem, it has, strange to say, been generally recognized as the correct one by real estate attorneys generally. The English courts have for many years recognized the fact that a court of equity has full power to decree specific performance with a reduction in the purchase price to the buyer, because of shortage in the quantity of land conveyed, or because of defects in the title. This power of the courts of equity has been recognized in very early New York decisions. These decisions, however, relate mostly to farm land and not to city lots. The question seems never to have arisen squarely of recent years as to its application to city property. Dicta in many recent decisions would seem to infer that the New York courts doubted their power to compel specific performance, at the same time making an allowance to the buyer for shortage or for other defects. The question came up squarely, however, before Mr. Justice Fitzgerald, who decreed specific performance with an allowance of $1,000.

Real estate dealers and persons interested in real estate generally should congratulate themselves because of Mr. Justice Fitzgerald's decision.

Heretofore many a buyer has lost the advantage of many highly profitable purchases because he was unwilling to take the property in a condition other than he understood it to be at the time of the contract, or has been compelled to content himself with the return of his deposit, and searching fees. He may now, in a proper case, insist upon getting the property and at the same time upon receiving an allowance from the price for all defects.

The Housing Question in Manhattan

WHEN TENEMENTS ARE WELL PLANNED

Subject of Remarks By Francis E. Ward, Esq., at the Opening of the Real Estate School of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association

THE REAL ESTATE SCHOOL of the West Side Y. M. C. A., 350 West 57th st, began its sessions Tuesday night with more than two hundred brokers, real estate agents, lawyers and owners of property in its classes. The first meeting was held in the Assembly Hall of the Y. M. C. A., and was called to order by Harmon H. Neill, who is in charge of these courses. Walter Stabler, comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who is one of the committee of management of the association, and also a member of the real estate advisory committee of the school, followed Mr. Neill, and added to his outline of the course. Mr. Stabler said, in part, that when he had first heard of this project to train men in some of the rudiments of the profession of real estate and to enable them more quickly to become capable in their chosen profession, he had believed the idea an impossible fancy. He had come to one of the lectures to see what was being done, had been converted to their usefulness and, as a result, had been glad to become one of the advisory committee.

At these lectures, Mr. Stabler said, men successful in the various branches of the real estate business took into their hearts the students, and told them how they, themselves, had succeeded, and what young men must do to achieve success. In the past such information a broker would give to some favored young man, but never before had this valuable personal view of the real estate business, as seen by its leaders, become available for a class of men.

The beginnings of the real estate course, which had been limited three years ago to lectures, had now been systematized still further, and a special course of lectures on real estate law would begin Thursday evening, Nov. 15. This course, Mr. Stabler said, would be in charge of Mr. Henry F. Miller, one of the best conveyancers in the city of New York. This course, he said, would be particularly instructive and extremely interesting.

Continuing, Mr. Stabler said: "Now, there must be a system in any business to make it successful; we, therefore, discussed the wisdom of having a course in business system, and there was some doubt as to whether such a course would be interesting and of value. I am glad, however, to say that our course on the theory and principle of managing a real estate office, and kinds of property handled, and by whom disposed of, under Mr. Ronald C. Lee, has proved most valuable. This course on the actual management of an office is useful to any one interested in real estate, whether broker, agent or operator; in this course he can gain more information of a practical nature in a short time than in any other way. That our policy has been successful is evidenced by the fact that the first year our single course had 230 registered. The second year our three courses had a registration of 290, and to-night we begin the first course, with two other courses yet to be heard from, with a preliminary registration of 200 men."

Francis E. Ward, former president of the Board of Real Estate Brokers, was the next speaker. His topic was "Housing," and his remarks were illustrated by plans of bad and good tenements thrown on a stereopticon screen.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. William H. Britigan, Educational Director, announced that the first of the monthly dinners of the Acme Real Estate Club of the school, would be held on Monday night, at 7 o'clock, at Reisenweber's, when Mr. Charles C. Edwards would speak on "Mortgage Loans." Other prominent real estate men will also give addresses.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, Mr. John R. Foley will address the Real Estate Class on "The Procuring and Selling of Real Estate." Four hundred men were present on Tuesday night, and it was the best and biggest opening the Y. M. C. A. ever had. The enrollment in the Real Estate Class is now 200, and it promises to go very much higher, showing the interest that is being taken in the subject. Mr. Britigan, who has planned and headed this work, along with many other departments of instruction, is recognized as the most successful organizer in the history of the association.

HOUSING.

The distinction of leading off the course of lectures was very properly assigned to Francis E. Ward, Esq., who spoke in part as follows:

"We are assembled here to-night to begin an earnest season's work. That which was an experiment two years ago, has become a success, and the testimony of those who have been benefited by the instruction here received is sufficient incentive for the management to take up the work for the future with renewed enthusiasm.

"When your able Educational Director asked me to speak this evening on the occasion of the reassembling of the class and to choose my topic for the opening lecture, I reviewed the technical instructions that have been received in the regular courses for the past two seasons, and it seemed to me that it might be well to begin this season's course by giving you an informal talk on a great topic in which most of the human race is more interested than in any other, bar one, that can come to its attention; and you therefore, as members of this race should be, interested theoretically, but practically also because it has much to do with the business promulgated by these lectures, for it is an axiom or self-evident truth, that man must be fed, lest he perish, and, except in the language of Kipling, 'Somewheres east of Suez, where the best is like the worst, Where there aren't no Ten Commandments an' a man can raise a thirst,'" it is a proposition that he shall be clothed, and it is a corollary to that proposition that he should be housed, and 'housing' is the topic for to-night's consideration.

"There must be refuge! Men
Perished in winter, till one smote fire
From flint stones coldly hiding what they held,
The red spark treasured by the kindling sun;
They gorged on flesh like wolves till one sowed corn
Which grew a weed, now makes the life of man.
They moored and babbled till some tongue struck speech
And patient fingers framed the lettered sound.
What good gift have my brothers but it came
From search and strife and loving sacrifice?"

"The possibility of feeding man was solved by the invention of the American harvesting machine, whereby vast tracts of land, in many cases units of thousands of acres, can be more expeditiously harvested than could be a single acre by the individual farmer in the old days; but as man cannot live by bread alone, his inventive faculties have been active in supplying all kinds of food in huge wholesale quantities, from the packing of meats to the preserving of delicacies, and now partially-cooked foods preserved in tins are ready for him to 'just add hot water and serve,' the last refinement being a double cylinder can containing a chemical between the linings, to which the addition of a modicum of cold water will produce a reaction generating heat beyond boiling point! Thus man is fed.

"The American sewing machine has solved the problem of clothing man, and vast are the facilities of the large manufacturing establishments devoted to this end. A practically limitless supply of clothing sufficient for all mankind, women and children too, could be produced in New York City alone by working the great factories to their full capacity for a few months. Along Broadway we see signs differentiating the clothing in demand for men, women and children, and, in a single loft 50x200, where they manufacture according to the legend displayed on their sign, 'Children's and Youths' Pants exclusively,' the enormous number of twenty-five thousand pairs per week, or over a million a year, are manufactured. This marvelous industry of the wholesale manufacture of clothing has been made possible by the most brilliant and ingenious invention of modern times, that of Elias Howe, to whom came the original thought of putting the eye in the business end of the needle, making possible the sewing machine. Thus mankind is clothed.

"With the ability to manufacture food and clothing in limitless quantity comes the demand to distribute these necessities, and the vast systems of railroads and shipping has sprung up to carry these products to all parts of the earth. Thus, famine may be relieved and the terrors of want assuaged, and whatever may be the creed or nationality of the suffering, in whatever locality want may exist, supplies are available and the means of relief are at hand.

"He whose ancestor gazed down upon uncultivated fields and wild morass from the hole which he has hollowed in the hillside, now gazes down through plate glass windows upon lower roofs and busy streets and turns from his window to survey a luxury of appointment undreamed of even a generation ago. But with increasing demands, while he has many rooms frequently he has not much room. As a dweller said to me: 'The decorations are so magnificent, the conveniences so complete, and the premises so small that I can find no room for complaint.'

"The old-fashioned, rickety tenement is fast disappearing. Mills' hotels and model tenements built to order for the humblest occupants, are replacing them, until now, to differentiate between tenement and private dwelling is a problem to solve which will furnish a bone of contention from which the lawyers will strip the meat to feed their children withal!

"The problem of housing in the country is comparatively simple—with the raw material close at hand and the craft of any intelligent laborer; but the influx of population to the cities brings forward a different problem, varying in complexity to the conditions obtaining in each city, and especially complicating matters when the city is of rapid growth and prevented by natural surroundings from expanding in all directions.

"Perhaps nowhere else in the world are the conditions more unfortunate for concentrated residence than in this Borough of Manhattan, the coming Empire City of the World, our own little New York.

"Briefly stated, the problem of housing here to-day is how to accommodate the greatest number of persons upon the smallest area of land, with the greatest possible comfort for all, and with the least possible friction.

"Now, the Chinese method of treating the problem would be somewhat like this: A room shall be 10x10x10—that is big enough for ten people to sleep in. Then on an area 200x200 and twenty stories high you have 8,000,000 cu. ft., giving 8,000 rooms to accommodate 80,000 to the acre!

"Details of construction, sanitation and comfort being eliminated, we would have the simple life and speedy death, thereby lessening the demand for city life, and the populace would stay in the country where they should be, and thus the problem would be solved.

"But we are not Chinese, and because we are a people demanding much and possessing great ingenuity, and have stored among us a certain amount of the wisdom of the ages and lessons of experience in this beautiful city, we must consider certain factors which are of importance in housing people.

"The chief factors met with objectively are the Building Department and the Department of Health. These get busy if we neglect them. The former demands that a building shall be adequate for the use to which it is to be put, firm of foundation, and of sufficient structural strength, and the latter requires that such arrangements of rooms and sanitary appliances shall be made as will conduce to the safety and health of the occupants.

"But these two bureaus and all the regulations of the various departments and commissions should be subservient to two constant primary factors which are of utmost importance to the builders of houses, and these are: 'THE HEIGHT OF A MAN AND THE PATH OF THE SUN.'

"The first of these, the height of a man, shall always determine the size of a room, and when this factor has been neglected rooms became so small that the law has had to intervene and require that the smallest room shall embrace an area of at least 70 sq. ft.; also that every apartment shall have one room of 120 sq. ft.

"The second factor, the path of the sun, should control the facing of windows and the position and size of courts, and when and where this factor is overlooked, sooner or later loss shall come to the owner and ill health to the occupant.

"Philadelphia, a city of homes, has thousands of neat, well-planned little houses built in blocks at a time, well adapted for housing the wage-earner. Pullman and Canton have their beautiful proprietary villages for housing the employees of great manufacturing concerns.

"Brooklyn swarms with two-family houses, but in New York, where land values are so high, the tenement (a dwelling housing more than two families) has been developed to the highest degree for concentrated residence.

"Elsewhere the poor live in old houses in unfashionable or remote localities, but here both philanthropy and enterprise have built successfully special dwellings on a high scale for housing them.

"It will always be a financial failure to build new houses for the poorest. Just as the Brevort House, once the most expensive and exclusive of our hotels, now caters to a less extravagant clientele, so the flat-house will become a tenement, and in its latter days will house the poorest.

"The great demand for housing lured the selfish and unscrupulous to build worse than any ever knew, and a 'Budensiek Building' is the utmost expression for all that is bad; named after the builder whose structure fell when nearly completed, through the lack of structural strength and wretchedness of building material.

"You all are familiar with the type of tenement which prevailed before the excellent work of the Tenement House Commission had such laws passed as prevented its further construction. It was known as the dumb-bell plan, and specially recommended itself to the speculative builder who happened to be a pioneer in disturbing a locality by the erection of its first tenement.

"A building thus planned standing alone gives excellent accommodation and pure air and light to all the rooms, but when its plan is repeated alongside, all but the front and rear rooms on that side are darkened and blocked from air by the formation of a closed court and the proximity of the new building.

"When again a similar building is erected on the other side, the original building becomes dark, dreary and stagnant, utterly unfit for habitation. Previous to 1900, 10 out of 14 rooms in tenements were dark. (Exhibit of stereopticon views of dumb-bell tenements 1-2.) The path of the sun had been neglected when its plan was made.

"The requirements for concentrated living are that for the housing of each family there should be for each and every apartment or tenement safety, fresh air, direct light, thorough draft, sunshine, privacy, quiet, sanitation.

"This popular dumb-bell plan lacks many of these requirements when it stands alone, and when sandwiched between others of like plan fails in all. Some twenty-five years ago, a syndicate subscribed sufficient money to erect on a frontage of 120 ft. in Cherry st, the first model tenement as a protest against the prevailing type and as an object-lesson to future builders.

"A study of this plan will reveal its faults at once; neglectful of the path of the sun, it is built on the north side of the street with open courts constricted by a throat and with long public halls, making privacy and quiet impossible. Could the building be turned about with courts opening southerly on the street, only in minor details could this plan have been improved.

(Views of plan of Cherry Street Improved Tenements and of modified plan 3-4.)

"In 1900 architects were invited by the Tenement House Commission to exhibit plans in competition for tenements to be built on lots 50x100, 75x100 and 100x100.

"One hundred and seventy architects submitted 308 plans, and to Mr. R. Thomas Short was awarded the first prize for plan 100x100. (Exhibit.) Yet this plan neglected 'the path of the sun.'

"The common comforts supplied to-day to tenements, the supply of water, gas and sanitary accessories, make the occupants more comfortable than were the households of the rich, with all their luxuries, a century ago.

"No better use can be made of great fortunes than to supply housings for the populace, built with every requisite for comfort and convenience, and no surer return can capital yield than when so invested with intelligence and economy.

"It has been a long struggle to attain adequate shelter combined with the requirements and comforts that we have been considering, but this good gift our brothers now have for which others have given their 'search and strife and loving sacrifice.'

"After a previous occasion when I quoted that fragment of verse as given earlier in my talk, of which 'search and strife and loving sacrifice' is the concluding line, an officer of one of our great title companies came to me and said, 'That is a great line you quoted, but the order of the words should be strife and search and loving sacrifice, for you brokers first have your strife with each other over the properties you are trying to sell to a customer, and then we come in with our search.' But to what do you refer the concluding words the 'loving sacrifice,' I asked. 'Oh! that's the finish for the broker when he has to halve his commission.' "

Few Leases in West 34th Street Recently.

Pocher & Co., 4 West 34th st, say that very few leases have been made in 34th st of recent date, and judging by the numerous signs on the buildings in the vicinity of Broadway it would seem that merchants are either not satisfied with the location from a business standpoint or that rentals asked are too high.

A system of "records" is as indispensable in a real estate office as a ticker in a broker's. It is a time saver and money maker. The Record and Guide offers a real estate service, consisting of a System of Units, covering the requirements of everybody—from the small system of little cost to the elaborate service intended for banks and the offices of the larger brokers. Plans for New Subways in the Bronx.

IN response to a communication from Albert E. Davis, asking when the proposed new subways into the Bronx would be advertised for public bidding, with some explanation of the mode of procedure necessary to be followed, which has consumed the three years since these plans were first made public in a report, and which has been complained of in some quarters in the Bronx as a delay, the following answer has been received from Bion L. Burrows, secretary to the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners:

"Replying again to yours of the 27th of September, President Orr has directed me to inform you that the Rapid Transit Board has lost no time whatever from the very moment of originally laying out the rapid transit lines in the Bronx, as suggested by the united Bronx interests, in pushing forward the legal steps necessary to complete these routes and make it possible to advertise for bids for the construction and operation of such roads.

"The people in the Bronx are quite familiar with the various steps necessary to perfect a rapid transit route, and I am sure if any one is interested enough to come to this office and look over the records of the Board they will be quickly convinced that everything has been done that could be done to hasten this part of the work.

"You will be glad to learn that a communication has been forwarded to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, in which the Rapid Transit Board recommends the immediate construction of the Westchester avenue and the Jerome avenue connections in the Bronx, together with the Seventh and Eighth avenues, Third avenue and Lexington avenue lines from Manhattan to the Bronx, thus providing for your borough what would seem to be an ideal system of rapid transit.

"Just what action will be taken by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which, as you know, has under the present act practically co-ordinate power with this Board, I, of course, am unable to say, but it is hoped that no further time may be lost in getting the form of contract perfected so that bids may be invited for the construction of these lines. There are still certain orders of the Appellate Division and reports of commissioners of that Court to be obtained before bids can be invited, but neither the Rapid Transit Board nor the Board of Estimate and Apportionment can do anything to hasten this part of the work.

"Owing to the change in the proposed Westchester avenue route by extending it to Pelham Bay Park, there has been an unavoidable delay in obtaining consents for this route, but counsel are now busy at this work, and if the residents of the Bronx along this thoroughfare will assist, these consents may be obtained without great delay."

Temporary Short Leaf Pine Ruling by New York Building Department.

THE following rules have been issued by the Bureau of Buildings in the Borough of Manhattan for temporary government of the conditions, relative to the use of short-leaf pine:

"In all buildings with stores on the first floor, without supporting stud partitions, 3x12 ins., yellow pine or spruce beams over store floor are hereby required for all spans exceeding 24 ft., and 4x8-in. beams on upper stories may be used, 16-in. on centers if span does not exceed 20 ft., and 12-in. on centers for all spans exceeding 20 ft. For smaller spans, 3x10-in. beams may be used over store floor if of proper strength.

"No other but yellow pine south of North Carolina to be used.

"All stud partitions supporting floor beams must be set on each floor as soon as the tiers are laid."

It is understood that there are some further changes in contemplation, and, as has been heretofore stated in the Record & Guide, the forthcoming general revision of the building code is expected to further strengthen the requirements regarding timber.

A Washington Heights Improvement.

Leo Bing, who a short time ago completed a block of five 6-sty high-class elevator apartments on the north side of 137th st, between Broadway and Riverside Drive, containing six apartments of various sizes, from four to eight rooms and bath on each floor, with every modern improvement, including electric light, has rented one hundred and twenty-five apartments out of one hundred and eighty-two. Mr. Bing says: The better the apartment, the quicker they rent.

The plant furnishing heat, hot water and electricity for this entire row is situated in the basement of the westerly corner house, with duplicate units of all machinery kept in reserve for any necessity requiring their use.

There are beds of plants and flowers on either side of the courts approaching the vestibule entrances, with trees and grass plots to be planted near the curb of sidewalk in front of these premises.

The owners of property on the lower side of this street have agreed to do likewise, and have provided space in order to fulfill their promises. Broadway has a centre park and Riverside Drive is rapidly nearing completion.

Vacant Lot Speculation on Washington Heights.

A certain class of speculators who were unfortunate in the late buying of vacant property on the Heights some time ago, and who have met with little or no success in their efforts to unload, are trying to find some consolation in expressing the belief that the life insurance companies will soon yield to popular pressure in the more frequent investment of their vast funds in real estate mortgages.

Builders say that since the recent boom in this section they have experienced trouble in floating permanent loans, and as a result the demand for lots has fallen off almost entirely. "It is true," they add, "that buildings have been erected in this district which are not up to the standard in construction and appointments, and the failure of the owners to conclude satisfactory arrangements for loans, partly due to this cause, has to an extent exerted a retarding influence all around. Then, too, a great number of flats were built at a time when the cost of material was excessive, which necessitated the builder demanding higher prices than conditions warranted. This has resulted in a temporary setback which the earnest efforts of brokers have failed to overcome."

But it is by no means certain that life insurance companies will be attracted to this particular part of Manhattan, though they adopt a more liberal and universal policy in loaning money on mortgage; even so, the owners of vacant lots can hardly expect the builder to further continue the purchase of plots until his present holdings are disposed of.

Some brokers are inclined to reason that over-production is responsible for the lack of demand in this class of buildings; others attribute the falling off in sales to the type of construction. However this may be, the fact remains that real estate agents are daily in receipt of more inquiries from prospective tenants, and there are indications which point to a more wholesome revival of interest than was witnessed during the past boom, and as a prominent operator remarked: "Washington Heights has Harlem skinned to death as a place to live in on account of its altitude and freedom from smoke and odors."

In the meantime, the lot speculator must needs cultivate patience and await the inevitable.

A Good Omen for the Bronx.

Speaking of the improvement in the condition of the real estate market in the Borough of The Bronx, Mr. Clarence Davies reported money very tight, with little hope of good business for a few months to come. This, in one way, is looked upon as a good omen, as its influence will no doubt discourage many from entering into any new building operations for awhile, thereby giving the present owners an opportunity to fill their apartments with tenants, which will better enable them to procure permanent loans, enhance the value of their property and realize a higher figure on their holdings.

Attention was also called to the medium classes who have been unable to lease houses at rates of from $1,000 to $1,500, whose trend to the suburbs of late had been considerable. Many such were purchasing their homes on easy payment plans.

Builders Held Responsible.

Louis Kempner, president of the Beekman Realty Co., operators, 149 Broadway, Manhattan, says that his company is in the market for "old time" investments, but under present conditions does not care to consider the purchase of either new law tenements or vacant lots. Mr. Kempner is of the opinion that trading will pick up after election. When alluding to conditions in the upper part of Manhattan, he speaks well of the Washington Heights section, and believes that after the lapse of a short period a renewal of activity will take place. Mr. Kempner denounced in strong terms the methods of some builders, and holds them responsible in a large degree for the difficulty in securing permanent loans.

Unsatisfied Demand for High-Class Apartments in Middle Manhattan.

During a conversation regarding the increase in valuations of properties in the vicinity of Greely Square, Mr. J. Romaine Brown pointed out from his office window three small dwellings which he said he had sold many years ago for $6,500 each, the present owner of which had refused an offer of $90,000 for them. Mention was also made that a hundred high-class apartments with about seven or eight rooms and bath, renting from $2,500 to $3,000 per year, between 33d and 59th sts, bounded by Lexington and 9th avs, could be rented at once if they could be had. Mr. Brown reported the mortgage money market as being much easier.

Plans for a New Pulitzer Building.

Plans are being prepared by Architect Horace Trumbauer, Land Title Building, Philadelphia, Pa., for the erection of a steel frame addition to the World Building to cover the remaining portion of the block bounded by Park row, Frankfort and William sts. It will be erected by Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the "World," and is to be for the occupancy of that newspaper. The new part will contain 13 stories on William st, and along Frankfort st it will rise to the same height as the present structure, the architecture and building materials harmonizing with the present type. The old building is to be extensively remodeled, and the east walls will be taken out, throwing the whole edifice into one. The Park row entrance is to be rebuilt and widened, and an arcade will be extended through opening in William st. The cost is estimated at about $1,000,000. No building contracts have yet been issued, but the work of clearing the site has commenced.

First Concrete Apartment House.

Samuel Trood, president of the Cathedral Parkway Realty Co., has just about completed two 6-sty elevator apartment houses at Nos. 616 to 628 West 137th st, between Riverside Drive and Broadway, the walls of which are made of concrete. Concrete was selected on account of the high price of brick at the time the builder was ready to begin operations. The building department approved the plans and work was begun, when a delegate from the Bricklayers' Union objected to the concrete men doing the work on the ground that it belonged to the bricklayers. The pay of the concrete men was 30 cents an hour, while the bricklayers received 70 cents per hour. The owner refused their demand and employed concrete men. After the fifth story had been reached the Tenement House Department ordered the work stopped, as the law said that tenement houses over three stories in height must be built with brick, together with the staircase enclosure. A compromise was finally reached by building an 8-inch brick wall around the entire staircase enclosure. It is said the walls of concrete have four times the strength of brick, are monolithic and constitute the best fireproof building material known. By the use of concrete every apartment is made absolutely sound proof, so that quiet and privacy are assured. These houses have four families on a floor, divided into four, six and seven-room apartments, having all modern improvements, the rents of which range from $10 to $15 a room per month.

Broadway-Cortlandt May Go as High as the New Singer.

It was reported in building circles the past week that there was under consideration a plan for increasing the height of the towers on the new Broadway-Cortlandt Building, to be erected along the south side of Cortlandt st, by six additional stories. As originally planned, the building was to contain 26 stories in Cortlandt st, with a tower roof rising to 33 stories. If now the scheme for the extra stories is carried out, the structure will have a height of 39 stories, but one less than the new Singer tower, 40 stories, immediately south, the highest building in the world. The contract for the structural steel work on the Broadway-Cortlandt has been awarded to the American Bridge Co., of 42 Broadway. The V. J. Hedden & Sons Co., No. 1 Madison av, have the general contract. Francis H. Kimball is architect.

BUILDING NOTES

William J. Baldwin, Sr., consulting mechanical engineer, has moved his offices to the fourth floor of the World Building.

The Granite Men's Association of New York held its monthly meeting at the New Grand Hotel, Manhattan, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 16. Only regular business was transacted. The election of officers was postponed one month.

Cards from Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, M. Am. Soc. C. E., late Chief Engineer of the Bureau of Buildings in Manhattan, announce that he has opened an office as consulting engineer in the Night and Day Bank Building, 527 5th av. A beautiful mahogany desk and chair, a gift from his Building Bureau associates, adorn his office.

G. W. Cooper, representative of Frank B. Gilbreth, 34 West 26th st, Manhattan, left for Akron, Ohio, Thursday, Oct. 18. Frank B. Gilbreth has the general contract to build a warehouse and factory for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. at Akron. It will be constructed of reinforced concrete, faced with brick, and will cost about $75,000. Mr. Gilbreth expects to complete the job early in December.

The members of the Concrete Association of New York and their friends are greatly interested in the forthcoming illustrated lecture by Mr. Richard L. Humphrey, at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, on the effect of the San Francisco earthquake and fire on building construction. The date is next Wednesday evening, and the place is the Concert Hall of Madison Square Garden.

A new company recently formed for the manufacture of fireproof doors, sash and metal drawn mouldings, as well as bronze, copper and Kalamein work, is Rukenbrod & Burrell, who have leased the entire building 40 Hall st, near Wallabout Market, Brooklyn, and have equipped it with the latest and most modern machinery. Both of the gentlemen named are well known to the building trade, and it is their intention to turn out fireproof doors, sash, etc., of the better grade, using the best of materials and employing the best workmen.

The Tenement House Department is in the midst of the greatest amount of violations it has ever had to deal with. It will take many years to open up some of the dark bedrooms of New York's tenements at the present rate of progress, as the working force of the Department seems inadequate to deal with the situation, though it is enforcing the violations of the old tenements and insisting that the owners comply with the laws to the best of its ability. It is said that between one and two thousand violations exist at the present time. The majority are in the old tenement houses, where the rooms are insufficiently lighted, this necessitates the installation of more vent shafts than heretofore.

Personal.

Mr. Edward S. Murphy, Superintendent of Buildings of the Borough of Manhattan, who has been ill for the past month, suffered a slight relapse the early part of the week. Since then he has undergone a slight operation and has improved rapidly. He is expected at his office before election.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

IMPORTANT
ANNOUNCEMENT

For the past three years the Real Estate Directory and Information Bureau has been operating a service of real estate information. The Real Estate Record and Builders' Guide has also operated a similar service as one of its departments.

In order to place these services upon broader lines and as a preliminary to the introduction of improvements and enlargements, the Record and Guide (so far only as its Bureau of Information is concerned) has effected a consolidation with the Real Estate Directory and Information Bureau, so that henceforth the two concerns will be operated and managed as one, the combined service being known as the Record and Guide Real Estate Information Bureau, and issued from the offices of the Record and Guide.

All the parties formerly interested remain in the enlarged enterprise.

Slowing Down in the Bronx.

Mr. Ernst, of the Ernst-Kahn Realty Company, 3d av and 149th st, confirms the proposition that permanent loans are hard to procure on new law houses in The Bronx; together with very poor business conditions, and no bright prospects for the immediate future in his section. A little over a year ago when apartments and dwellings were quite scarce, and the Subway railroad in full operation, many builders and people who knew little or nothing about building, immediately commenced excavating and erecting five and six story apartment houses, many of these with a limited amount of cash for favorable conditions. Consequently a determination to risk all for gain had resulted in the present overproduction of this class of enterprise.

Renting Conditions on the West Side.

Mr. Frederick H. Birch, of the firm of Slawson & Hobbs, 284 Columbus av, said that he could easily rent one hundred high class apartments at from $1,200 to $1,500 a year if they could be had, and he reported almost all houses under their management filled; and mentioned where some of the rents of apartments had been advanced two to four hundred dollars more per year. He reported only one flat vacant below 125th st, on the West Side, under $100 a month rent.

Will Not Sell Before 1909.

Joseph L. Bittenwieser, chairman of the building and site committee of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, speaking of the likelihood of their present holding on Broadway, between 150th and 151st sts, being put on the market in the near future, stated that it was quite true that the society had contracted to purchase about 170 acres of land near Pleasantville, Westchester County, and intended erecting cottages and transferring the institution to that place. He added that in all probability fully two years would be consumed in the erection of the new buildings, and hence there was no likelihood of the society's holdings in this city being offered for sale before the year 1909.

Probably the Reason O't.

It has been noticeable in the records that the Equitable Life Assurance Society has been calling in and extending an unusual number of mortgages. When asked for an explanation, an officer said there was nothing significant in the matter. However, a real estate man remarked:

"I have had a personal experience with the Equitable, which is so significant that I think it gives me a correct line on the reason for the number of extensions they are putting on record. When money was cheaper to borrow the Equitable made a good many mortgages of large amounts on gilt edged security, at 4 per cent. or 4½ per cent. Such of those mortgages as have fallen due I think are being extended at about one-half of one per cent. advance in rates. This, as you well know, is because there is a greater demand for capital for productive enterprises in proportion to the capital available than has been the case for some time."

REAL ESTATE NOTES

The City of New York will take title to the 39th St. Ferry to South Brooklyn on Nov. 10.

There seems to be a tendency on the part of many downtown brokers to give more attention to the sale of out-of-town property than formerly.

Dennis & Preston, 258 Broadway, report increasing activity in the market, and that they expect to close some important transactions shortly.

Edward McVickar, 200 Broadway, Manhattan, is giving his attention just now to downtown rentals, and says that the demand is increasing.

De Selding Bros., 149 Broadway, are about to close some large sales which have been hanging fire for some time. They regard the outlook for increased trading as bright.

The Bronx Real Estate Exchange has designated Wednesday of each week Exchange Day, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M. All offerings of real estate will be sold on those days at noon.

Wm. & Julius Bachrach, 35 Nassau st, remarked: "The dullness in the market this week seems to be largely attributed to the fact that many of the large operators are having difficulty in financing their loans."

An exceedingly quiet week is reported by L. J. Phillips & Co., 156 Broadway, Manhattan. They attribute the continued dullness to the money market, but report a brisk rental business at their Bronx office, 786 Prospect av.

Mr. Louis F. Sommer, who has been transacting a general real estate business for five years at 847 Columbus av, has taken increased office space at his present location, and will make a specialty of selling real estate.

A prominent 5th av brokerage firm say that an operator of prominence recently made the statement that he was willing to pay $22,000 per front foot for a lot on the east side of 5th av, between 34th and 42d sts. In the light of some recent sales who can say that this is "talk."

Jere Johnson, Jr., is busy in preparing for public auction his latest purchase, comprising about 200 lots adjoining the Smith Infirmary at Brighton Heights, Staten Island. Judging by the result of past success in this section, this tract will net a good profit over the purchase price.

The Lakeview Improvement Co., incorporated in May, 1906, for the purpose of buying and selling real estate in New Jersey, A tract of 500 acres, formerly known as the Bishop estate, was acquired at Lake View Terrace, N. J., which has been divided into city lots, 2,000 of which have been sold for strictly high-class residential purposes. The company aim to make this property a second "Lakewood," the situation being good on account of fine roads, high altitude, healthful pine trees and close proximity to the well-known Lake Stafford. A New York office, 346 Broadway, also a Brooklyn one at 37 Flatbush av, have been opened, the company having in view the purchase of several other large tracts. Among the incorporators are Jas. K. Leman, Peter Gould and E. G. Metzger.

Rumors are current in real estate circles that the Wabash Railroad is seeking an entrance to Manhattan and may utilize

Record and Guide Quarterly

The annual number of the Record and Guide Quarterly contains all the legal records for the past year concerning real estate and projected buildings, arranged alphabetically and numerically, with invaluable annotations. These are supplemented by tables of important transactions, with typical prices, covering the past quarter of a century or more, accompanied by expert comments; also by a list of realty corporations created during the past two years, with officers and the enterprises in which they are engaged. The whole makes a volume of reference which no real estate man can afford to be without. It should be on every desk and in every library. Its cost is as nothing compared to its value as a time-saver. This important work can be obtained, with three quarterly numbers, for the comparatively small sum of $20. It is published by the Record and Guide, at Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey St., where interested parties may see it and have its uses explained to them. If you cannot call, drop a postal card to the Publisher, or call him up on telephone, 3157 Cortlandt.

the old 59th st Hudson River Bridge charter to further its ends. Brokers are speculating as to the probable effect this may have on property in the vicinity in respect to values.

David Stewart, 203 Broadway, Manhattan, is busy making appraisals for the city in condemnation proceedings. He takes a rosy view of the market, feeling certain that many important deals will be closed before winter sets in. The uptown office of Mr. Stewart, on Amsterdam av, is in charge of E. E. Thomas, who has a large list of bargains to offer investors.

Mr. S. B. Shaw, of the firm of Richard V. Harnett & Co., says that the stringency in the money market is responsible for the failure of large buyers to close a number of important purchases which have been pending since the early fall. Mr. Shaw cited an instance of the loss of a commission solely because his prospect was not satisfied with the outlook. The deal in question related to the acquisition of an important property in the 42d st section.

Brokers note that it is becoming more and more the custom each year for the well-to-do to leave the city earlier for their vacations and to return later. This, of course, has a great deal to do with the postponement of transactions in residential property. Private houses in Manhattan and 2-family houses in the Bronx are reported to be most in demand. The trend of a large proportion of people is ever toward the suburbs, the reason being that rents have been raised beyond their means and that they are unable to lease other houses at what they consider reasonable figures. Many have purchased dwellings. There are more vacancies in the more common apartment houses, where the rents are from twenty-five to thirty dollars, than in the expensive ones.

—For Hudson River brick there continues to be a big demand. Eighty-eight cargoes were taken up last week. But prices have sagged tremendously this week, so that the top price is only $6 per M. Except for that sensational dive in mid-summer, Hudson Rivers have not been down so low in four years. In 1902, when good brick fetched six dollars, manufacturers first began to see daylight, after a long era of hard sledding. Later on, the Record & Guide was privileged to suggest to the association a course of action which, when entered upon, resulted in greatly improving the status of their affairs, and also helped every other association in the building trades that followed the lead of the manufacturers and dealers in brick. They had to go through fire for awhile, but the whole building world was morally and financially purified and benefited by the experience. Arbitration succeeded demagogism and good business took the place of bad business for everybody connected with building and real estate. This year the demand has continued heavy even until now, but this fall the supply, larger than last year, because there are more brick machines working than ever before, has been kind to the builders. If tight money had not choked off a lot of speculative business, I don't know what would have happened. Probably if it hadn't been a money squeeze, it would have been some other kind of a squeeze.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in Section 2, Block 482, Lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

October 12, 13, 15, 16, 17 and 18.

THAT Wall Street, with singular unanimity, is bearish is obvious from the contracted volume of business this week. The operator who would ask the advice of any broker will be told to sell stocks if he has them, or, if not, to wait until after election before buying. Undoubtedly there is some anxiety as to the result of the November elections and uneasiness as to the outlook of the money market. It is the fatuity of Wall Street to be invariably bearish at the wrong time, and also bullish at the wrong time; and when it is unanimously bullish it is generally as mistaken as when it is unanimously bearish. The position of the short interest may be judged from the disclosures caused by the failure of James W. Henning & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, who suspended business last Monday. It transpired that one house alone had borrowed 20,000 shares of Reading from Mr. Henning about the time of his suspension. When speculation arrives again or the market wakes up, it is still believed that it will be in the minor railroad securities, such as have been frequently referred to in these columns. The raising of the Bank of England rate for discount last Monday is just what might have been expected under the circumstances, when so much gold has been shipped from the other side to this country. Yet many professed surprise. The break in prices naturally followed, and the action of the Bank of England undoubtedly contributed to the dull and bearish sentiment prevailing for the time being. What the market is doing now is of little or no value as an indication of its future action. Rates for time loans are held at 6 per cent., and some transactions for six months were reported at that figure. The common stock of the Norfolk & Western Railway Company has been placed on a 5 per cent. basis—an increase of 1 per cent. This increase can certainly not be said to be discouraging to holders of American railway securities. And what shall be said of Industrials, in view of the fact that this has been a record year in the steel business for the production of steel rails? The output for 1906, taking orders for delivery during the remainder of the year, will exceed 3,600,000 tons. Secretary Shaw's action in releasing Government bonds to the extent of $18,000,000 meets with approval, and is reassuring. These bonds are, of course, to be turned into circulation without removal from the Treasury.

THE real estate market during the past week has been characterized by a noticeable revival of activity. This activity has not, indeed, affected those branches of the market which have been of late remarkable for their dullness. There has been no revival of tenement-house speculation, nor has there been any increased demand for vacant lots on Washington Heights and elsewhere. The character of the transactions has, indeed, recalled the days of 1901 rather than those of 1905. The properties transferred have consisted very largely of costly lots in the best business districts. Two notable sales have been announced of inside lots on Fifth avenue in the forties, and in both cases the prices obtained were equivalent to $150 a square foot. Values on that avenue in the retail district are now pretty well established in the neighborhood of $150 a square foot for inside lots and $200 a square foot for corners—truly an extraordinary range of prices for a strip of property on both sides of an avenue over a mile in length. Another large transaction was the purchase by the McAdoo Terminal Company of the Morrison holdings in the block needed for the new terminal. The price paid, which is about $2,000,000 for over 11,000 square feet, does not, under the circumstances, seem extortionate; and it is a matter for public congratulation that the company has succeeded in acquiring practically the whole of the needed site. The other transactions affected Broadway and William street property. In a number of these transfers the Century and the United States Realty companies appeared as sellers, and it will be interesting to see whether this large corporation will take an active part in speculation during the coming year. It has been comparatively quiescent of late, and the City Investing Company has shown a much more enterprising disposition in opening up new fields for speculation and investment. But if the current season is to be one favorable to the large rather than the small speculator, both of these companies will have an important influence upon its course. The next month should afford an accurate indication of the course of the market during the season.

THE opening of the Knickerbocker Hotel, at the corner of Forty-second street and Broadway, adds another to the large number of hotels which it has been the traditional policy of the Astor family to erect in New York City. Beginning with the Astor House, about 1830, which was in its day the great American hotel, they have erected successively the Waldorf-Astoria, the New Netherlands, the St. Regis, the Hotel Astor and the Knickerbocker. In addition, one branch of the estate is building a huge apartment house and hotel on upper Broadway. There can be no doubt that the construction of a hotel in a good location is one of the most remunerative and safest ways of investing money in the world, and it would not be possible to find in New York City a location better than that upon which the Knickerbocker stands. Of course, no hotel on Broadway can compete for the best class of trade with a hotel on Fifth avenue, but among the Broadway hotels the Knickerbocker has the perfect location. It is in the heart of the district devoted to the amusement and refreshment of New Yorkers at night, and it is much more accessible than the Hotel Astor, because it can be reached by crossing Broadway at a narrow point instead of by the good stretch of asphalt called by some people Long Acre and by others Times Square. Each new hotel must have its novel features, and the particular novelty of the Knickerbocker consists in the manner in which certain of its walls are decorated. It is becoming customary to place a certain amount of painting on the walls of big hotels. The Manhattan and the St. Regis have been so decorated, as well as some of the newer hotels in other American cities. But the trouble with such decorations hitherto has been that they have not been sufficiently amusing. In court houses, libraries and capitols it is all very well to paint on the walls pictures based on historical, legendary or symbolic subjects, but people live in hotels, and while living there wish to be amused. Wall paintings of the ordinary kind may be beautiful and imposing; they may be admirably composed and perfectly subdue the surrounding architecture, but they do not add to the gaiety of life. From the point of view of the sojourner at a hotel, they are unquestionably dull, and they contribute absolutely nothing to the popularity of the caravansary in which they are situated. But in the Knickerbocker it is different. Mr. Maxfield Parish has a painting over the bar representing the merry-making of Old King Cole; and, quite apart from the technical merit of the painting, it would be impossible to place a more amusing treatment of a more appropriate subject in that particular spot. It is not merely a mural painting which is trying hard to be good and keep its place upon the wall; it is a happy and a living illustration of merry-making which should and will make its appeal to the patrons of the bar. It will, if you please, make those patrons "smile," and in so doing it will do what very few works of art have ever done—it will pay its way. So it is with the painting of Mr. James Wall Finn in the Flower Room. Mr. Finn also has not sought merely to be good. He has been fancy free in the imagining and in the peopling of his garden of flowers, and the consequence is that it is not only a very beautiful picture, but it is also a most entertaining one. It is full of amusing incident which will attract and repay the attention of the people eating in the room and help them to have a more diverting time. It is to be hoped that this lesson will not be forgotten in the decoration of subsequent hotels.

New Rule for Concrete Construction.

ONE of the questions connected with the introduction of concrete systems of construction into more or less general use in this country has to do with the choice of the trade whose province it will be to erect buildings of this sort and the wages that will be paid for doing it. In the past it has been reckoned by the advocates of particular methods of using concrete for structural forms that it was cheaper than brickwork, and as enduring, and a stated reason for this was that on account of its simplicity ordinary labor could perform most of the work, and it was not necessary to pay the wages required in skilled trades. Suddenly the mason and bricklaying trades, perceiving the importance which concrete work had taken on in the metropolitan district, and foreseeing a certain competition which it would set up with granite, marble, stone and brick, demanded from general contractors that their trade should have the exclusive right to execute all forms of concrete construction and be paid for it at rates now prevailing and recognized by the mason and bricklaying unions. In other words, if apartment houses, warehouses, factories and garages were to be built with concrete walls instead of brick walls, and armored concrete floors and partitions instead of terra cotta floors and partitions, they would insist, with all the power and influence at their command, on doing the work; and they are the most powerful body of mechanics in the city, whose final word has ever been law in any contention between masters and journeymen. The mason builders of this city have never been able to bid defiance to their masons and bricklayers, though the latter affirm that they never strike, leaving the public to infer that their points are gained by the self-evident justice of their cause, by the eloquence of their oratory, or the soundness of their logic, though on one or two occasions certain large contractors have discerned on the horizon something having the form and appearance of what in other trades is generally termed a strike. With the same wages paid for concrete work as for stone and brick work, there would be less reason for concrete and its field of employment would be restricted; and cement, instead of stepping into the place of a primary building material on the same social level as wood, granite, stone, brick, iron and marble, would be kept back in a secondary position, along with lime, sand, gravel and paint. Other cities might do as they would, but as for New York it would not have cement taking the place of marble, brick and cut stone and trying to imitate them without paying the same wages. On that determination the bricklayers and masons stood for several weeks, causing much anxiety to the cement interests; but with the continuance of the negotiations and discussions over the question, which still continue, the representatives of the journeymen have modified their claims. After reflection they concluded that there are some parts of concrete work they do not fancy, as, for instance, the wheeling and pouring of the mixture into the forms arranged to receive it; this they would leave to men who could do nothing better. But upon one thing they will ever insist, they tell their employers, and it is that concrete structures, to gain exemption from the schedules of the skilled trades, must be built all of concrete, or, more properly, reinforced concrete, and stand before the world for what they are. They cannot be veneered with a four-inch wall of handsome brickwork, to make them appear more costly than they really are; they must be one thing or the other. No union bricklayer will help build a brick veneer for a concrete wall; he will not help to build a structure part of brick laid by first-class mechanics and part of concrete poured in by laborers. He and his fellows will not otherwise shut the metropolitan door against concrete, or set their faces against architectural progress; but architects and engineers must let the new material stand for what it is and not as an imitation of stately brick and marble, mosaic, tile or stone. The last chapter in the peaceable negotiations between the mason builders and their journeymen is some distance away; but upon this one rule, if upon no other, the mason and bricklaying trade has taken its stand irrevocably, as we are authoritatively informed; and who will say it is not logically right in so maintaining? Our engineers have learned how to make concrete strong; let our architects now learn how to make it beautiful.

A system of "records" is as indispensable in a real estate office as a ticker in a broker's. It is a time saver and money maker. The Record and Guide offers a real estate service, consisting of a System of Units, covering the requirements of everybody—from the small system of little cost to the elaborate service intended for banks and the offices of the larger brokers. Scope of each Unit different; efficiency similar. See us about your case. Will advise you. Drop postal to Record and Guide,

Co-operative Apartment Houses.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I read your valuable article upon Co-operative Apartment Houses in your issue of October 13. You ascribe the excess of profit made by the artists in Sixty-seventh street over that ordinarily made by the speculative builder, mainly to the more economical methods of conducting the co-operative operation.

This is undoubtedly a factor, but I think a more important factor is that the artists have been able to wait four years for their profit in the rise of land values, while the speculative or other builder has to realize within a year or two. And, what is even more important, that the artists who occupy the building bring wealthy people there and make that particular spot a desirable one; that is to say, they transport to that place and concentrate there a large part of that land value which everyone unconsciously carries about his person.

Yours truly,

BOLTON HALL.

There is some truth in the qualification offered by our correspondent to the explanations contained in The Record and Guide of the success of these co-operative apartment houses, but the causes which he mentions have had less influence than he thinks. The owners of these studio buildings did not have to wait four years for their profits. The apartments in the first building, which was finished in 1901, sold at a large premium just as soon as it was occupied by its owners. This premium has increased during the five years and more which have subsequently elapsed, but the increase which has since taken place is not so large as the original premium. It is true also that the selection by these companies of Sixty-seventh street made that thoroughfare more desirable for residential purposes and helped to increase the value of the land; but in the buildings which were subsequently erected this increase was discounted by the larger sum which the original subscribers were obliged to pay for their stock. Thus, in the second building, the shares entitling the owner to a studio apartment cost $13,000, as compared to $10,000 in the original building; while in the third building the original subscription was $15,000. Since the third building was erected neither land values nor the cost of building has materially increased, and still the apartments in that building sell at a handsome premium. The apartments which the original subscribers purchased for from $10,000 to $15,000 fetch rentals varying between $2,200 and $2,500 a year, which, inasmuch as they are tax-free and the buildings pay their own running expenses, must be admitted to be a lucrative investment. Moreover, we are informed that such apartments, even when rented at $2,300 a year, cost less per square foot of space than do other apartments in fireproof buildings on the West Side.

It must be admitted, however, that comparatively economic methods of financing are not the only reasons for the peculiar financial success of these buildings. We believe that the employment of abundant capital had more to do with their success than any other single cause, but other causes have contributed. In the first place, they had the advantage of an admirable and economical plan, which gave to the owners of the large apartments abundant living room, facing full south, while the only room on the north side of the building was, of course, the studio, which could not be placed anywhere else. In the second place, the classification by the Building Department of these edifices as studios enabled them to be built 150 feet high, in defiance of that provision of the Tenement House Law which limits the height of tenements to one and one-half times the width of the street in which they are erected. This classification was erroneous, because each of the buildings contained at least thirteen apartments, occupied for housekeeping purposes; and the mistake has since had to be corrected by special legislation. But it enabled the co-operative companies to put a much taller building on comparatively low-priced land than any speculative builder could have done. Thus the companies obtained a larger rentable area at a lower cost than they could have secured with a lower structure. Each of the studio buildings in Sixty-seventh street contains three or four large and twenty small apartments, which are rented and which supply the necessary income to the companies; and these small studios rent very easily, because they are excellently adapted to the needs of artists who are not very well off. We imagine, however, that these rented apartments, the income from which now pays the taxes, the interest on the mortgage and the running expenses, may in the end prove to be a weak point in the plan. So far the buildings have been filled to the brim, but in the long run the number of such buildings will increase and the supply of apartments will exceed the demand. Whether the ordinary proportion of vacancies will so diminish the income of the buildings as to compromise their success, we do not know; but if the owners of the apartments are wise they will assess themselves a few hundred dollars each year for the purpose of establishing a larger reserve for deterioration and contingencies. We believe that their accounts do carry a sinking fund derived from an excess of income, but we doubt whether this fund is as large as it should be.

IT was pointed out last week in these columns, regarding the opening of the new dry goods store of Benjamin Altman & Co., at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, that a transformation was taking place in Fifth avenue. The old Fifth avenue, with all that the name implies, is giving way to a "New Fifth Avenue" of a totally different character, which will ultimately make the thoroughfare, from certain points of view, the most interesting in the United States. The great appreciation in values of property in Fifth avenue is strikingly illustrated by the sale this week of the Lotos Club property, Nos. 556 and 558 Fifth avenue, for $750,000. Mr. Jacob Neadle was the purchaser, and the sale was made through Messrs. Chambers & Veiller. The club acquired the Powers house, No. 556 Fifth avenue, owned by a member of the Tweed Ring, for $125,000 in 1892, and the adjoining house, No. 558, was bought later for $105,000, making a total of $230,000—a profit of $520,000 on the property after the club occupying it for fourteen years. The Lotos Club, following the example of clubs like the New York Yacht, the New York, the Engineers', the Century, Yale, Harvard and others, will now build a handsome and commodious clubhouse in one of the side streets just off Fifth avenue in the immediate vicinity of its present house, of which it will retain possession for a year or more. There is, of course, a certain sentiment and desire among all first-class clubs to have their clubhouses on Fifth avenue, but that thoroughfare, at any rate from Washington Square to Fifty-ninth street, being in a state of transition, can no longer give the quietness and repose that is desirable in the location of a clubhouse. There are now too much traffic, noise, turmoil and business in the thoroughfare to make it desirable for the home of a social organization. The Union League Club, at the corner of Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, is on leased ground and must locate elsewhere sooner or later. It is true that the Union Club and the University Club have new and palatial homes, but it cannot be many years before they will find themselves in the midst of retail stores, hotels and all kinds of business establishments, and Fifth avenue here will present much the same appearance as it now does between Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets. Another reason why private dwellings and clubs will be fewer in Fifth avenue between Thirty-fourth and Fifty-ninth streets is the increasing traffic owing to the new improvements, widening and extensions consequent on the reconstruction of the New York Central Railroad. When this new station is completed a constant succession of vehicles will be crossing and traversing the avenue from Forty-second street to Fifty-ninth street. When the Pennsylvania Railroad station and the tunnel are open, to the stream of traffic on Fifth avenue will be added all that contributing to the latter great system. The "New Fifth Avenue" has apparently come to stay.

The Building Code.

STATUS OF ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE REVISION.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT in regard to official proceedings preliminary to the revision of the Building Code may be expected when the business of the general elections has been disposed of. Building and real estate interests have long been waiting to hear the names of the men selected to constitute the revision commission. In consequence of last year's great agitation for the abrogation of the fireproof wood requirement, the city authorities determined to scrutinize the whole code of building laws and make such changes as are required by the progress of the times.

It is earnestly hoped by real estate and building interests that the practical part of this work will be given into competent hands. The old code, perfect and admirable in its day, came largely, we believe, from the hands of Mr. Fryer, now the president of the Board of Examiners, who is being strongly urged for a position on the new commission, as are also Mr. Isaacs, Mr. Buek and Mr. Edgar Logan, the lawyer, in order to ensure the performance of a thoroughly good work. In all there will be ten experts on the commission representing different branches in interest.

It is nine months since (Jan. 23) the Board of Aldermen passed a resolution authorizing the Building Committee of the Board to prepare and report the Building Code in an amended and revised form, and authorizing said committee to engage the services of ten experts to aid in the work of such revision.

It is five months since (May 29) the Board of Aldermen rescinded the original resolution on the ground that an unscientific classification of experts—a doctor, a plumber and a sanitary engineer being included therein—had been provided for, and adopted a substitute resolution for the appointment of the same number of experts but classified differently.

It is eleven months (Dec. 11, 1905) since the Mayor vetoed an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen to eliminate from Section 105 of the Building Code clauses relating to the compulsory use of so-called fireproof wood in high buildings.

It will be recollected that the Mayor in his veto message called the attention of the Board of Aldermen to the fact that there are many existing inconsistencies in the Building Code which should be corrected, and that many of its sections are in great need of revision, and that he deemed it desirable that these matters should be taken up and considered at the earliest possible moment.

Practically a whole year has gone by without anything being done. This is to be regretted, if for no other reason than that fire lines (limits within which the erection of frame buildings are prohibited) have not been extended. An urgent demand by the fire underwriters and by the chief of the fire department for new fire lines has been made for three years past.

It has been a matter of wonderment among those who have given close attention to Building Code matters why the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen has not appointed the commission of experts and proceeded with the work of revising the Code. From a source of information that may be accepted as entirely reliable it is said that the announcement of the experts selected will be made at the first meeting of the Board of Aldermen following the forthcoming election in November; and it is further said that the appointments are deemed Republican patronage, and, therefore, that the selection of the experts will be made by a Republican leader who is not a member of the Board of Aldermen. Why the announcement of the appointments is kept until after election is only conjectural. Possibly the results of the election will determine just how the division of the patronage is to be made, as the Republicans and the Municipal Ownership or Hearst Aldermen combined control the board.

It is but fair to state that a reason why there has been such a delay in taking up the Building Code revision is that a committee of the Board of Aldermen has long been engaged on a codification of all the city ordinances—not a revision, but a gathering together of the ordinances so that it may be seen just what they are at the present time. Later on it is intended to undertake a general revision. No doubt this is a very proper and commendable work, for the ordinances in general are in a more or less muddled condition, but the exception to the general rule is the Building Code, which is an ordinance specially authorized by the charter, and while it is true that since its adoption in 1899 several amendments have been made thereto, yet it is not that these amendments are not known or have muddled up the Code, but it is that the Code in its technical subjects requires many changes, and its proper revision is a pressing need.

A Protest Against High Rents.

At a tenants' mass meeting in Cooper Union on Wednesday evening a speaker estimated that the number of vacant city lots on Manhattan Island below 146th st is about seventeen thousand. Resolutions were passed protesting against extortionate rents, the injustice which taxes improved property heavily and vacant lots a trifle, and pledging the members of the Tenants' Union of New York (under whose auspices the meeting was held) to give their suffrages only to those candidates for State officers and for the Judiciary who pledge their best endeavors for the relief of the oppressed rent-payers of this city; and that pending remedial legislation and an improvement in the conduct of our public officials, they agree to use their best efforts to unite their neighbors in their own defense against further oppression and extortion.

Mr. Cornelius Donovan presided: He said: "Grasping landlords have taken advantage of the scarcity of houses and have raised the rents for apartments so high that when these are paid too little remains for food and nothing for clothing." Another speaker said: "New York City ought to offer prizes to those who put up buildings—this is my original suggestion. The man who keeps his property unimproved should bear the taxation, and it should be a sort of fine for his failure to provide buildings to shelter the people."

Fully 200 men have joined the Real Estate School at the West Side Y. M. C. A., evincing the new and wonderful interest that is being taken in the various subjects related to real estate interests in this city; and the term now begun is assured of more successful features than its popular predecessors. Mr. Britigan, the Educational Director, may be addressed at the Y. M. C. A. Building for information. Some very prominent brokers are attending the school this year.

Lecture Before the Concrete Association.

WHEN the Brunswick Building on Madison Square is finished the Concrete Association will occupy the top floor, and will there in connection with its headquarters fit up a permanent exhibition illustrative and typical of the various divisions of concrete construction.

This important announcement was made to a large audience in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall on Wednesday evening upon the occasion of the lecture by Mr. Richard L. Humphrey, M. Am. Soc. C. E., before the members of the association. The great hall was well filled by men representing the leading building material and construction companies of New York and the concrete industry at large. Mr. Humphrey is the president of the National Cement Users' Association, as well as a member of the U. S. Geographical Survey. He was sent by the Government to the Pacific Coast to investigate the cause and effect of the earthquake, and his lecture embodied such observations as he thought would interest the members of the Concrete Association.

The lecture was preceded by a short illustrated introduction, by Mr. Ross F. Tucker, president of the Concrete Association of New York. Mr. Tucker spoke of California being the birthplace of the concrete building and of Mr. Ransome's early methods of construction, and particularly about the wonderful increase in Portland cement production in the United States. Mr. Tucker announced that, as stated, the association would have permanent rooms on the top floor of the New Brunswick Building, at 26th and 27th sts and 5th av, when completed, and that every one interested in cement products was invited to come and see them, and that in connection, an exhibition covering all classes of work would be carried on constantly. He then introduced Mr. Humphrey, the lecturer of the evening.

(Mr. Richard L. Humphrey explaining that the steel beam in the Fairmount Hotel, San Francisco, would not have buckled had it been encased in concrete.)

Mr. Humphrey said it was impossible to describe the earthquake itself, but he thought that with the help of the slides he could show something in regard to the effects on building construction. He began with an illustrative map of the vicinity of San Francisco, showing the "faults" or slits which extend in a southeasterly direction from San Francisco. It was at one of these "faults" that the earth "slipped" in a horizontal movement and caused the earthquake. The next slide showed a photograph of one of the slits along which the Spring Valley Water Works had pipes running to San Francisco, and which suffered destruction, and a later slide showed one of the heavy 80-inch wrought-iron pipes pulled completely apart.

The next few slides showed the ruins of the city of San Jose, to illustrate the faulty forms of construction. The following is a general description of the remaining slides:

Leland Stanford University, ruins of the gate, stone construction; library, tower remained; it was steel constructed;

hall, tower fell, stone; dormitory, very little damaged, concrete, reinforced; railroad bridge, concrete moved, but not cracked; finally pictures of the ruins of steel buildings in San Francisco, to illustrate the proposition that concrete is the material to construct buildings with, if you wish them to be fireproof as well as earthquake-proof.

It was the first lecture of the kind ever given in the city, and inasmuch as the pictures were accompanied by interesting and intelligent explanations and comment, it was an occasion which interested and pleased all who heard it.

Speculative Buying in the Vicinity of Pennsylvania Station.

A NEW RECORD FOR AUCTION SALES—EFFECT OF THE MORRISON DEAL ON VALUES.

Despite the uncertainty of the effect that the Pennsylvania terminal is exerting on the value of real estate between 7th av and Broadway and from 31st to 38th sts, the interest in the region seems to be increasing, if the present buying movement can be accepted as a criterion; and taking as a concrete example the large returns which have already accrued to the advance purchaser, this increased buying in a measure is justified.

The purchase and re-sale of one of the prominent corners in the Pennsylvania district serves to illustrate the probability of handsome returns in this locality, and mention may particularly be made of the sale at auction some three years ago of the northeast corner of 7th av and 33d st, which brought the sum of $180,000. The plot in question contains about 3,900 square feet and is in close proximity to the great depot now being constructed. This same parcel figured in a recent deal involving the sum of about $435,000, representing an approximate profit of $255,000 in a very short space of time.

That the figure obtained breaks all previous records for the sale of real estate in the immediate neighborhood, cannot be denied, but a general impression prevails that the price established by this transaction is too high, notwithstanding the decided opinions held by brokers operating in that part of the borough, and will not be used as a basis of determining the value of other parcels in the locality, until the improvements under way take more definite shape and the situation is relieved by other purchases that are now pending.

But one man's opinion is as good as another, and as a well known operator is quoted as saying, "More speculators err on the side of conservatism these times than ever before." However, the confirmation of the news this week that Edward A. Morrison has disposed of his holdings constituting the property for which the McAdoo Tunnel Company has been negotiating for some time, and which takes in all of his interests on the block between 32d and 33d sts, for which $2,000,000 is supposed to have been paid, will, beyond doubt, it is thought, "stimulate a fresh desire on the part of the speculative element toward more frequent trading." The effect of the price obtained on the value of other property nearby, will, it is believed, result in the establishment of a more reliable system upon which future appraisals will be made. A rough computation makes the total area of the Morrison properties in this block foot up about 11,500 square feet.

In the judgment of those who are closely following changes in the Pennsylvania terminal district, the price established by the private sale referred to in the first instance appears to have been justified, and taken together with the McAdoo purchase and many other transactions of lesser importance, seems to be exerting a wholesome influence on the auction market. Two of the scheduled offerings on Oct. 24 by Auctioneer Jos P. Day were quickly sold after spirited bidding. One parcel, 456 7th av, a 4-sty building with one store, 18x75, brought $52,500, and the southwest corner of 7th av and 35th st, a building of the same height with two stores, 24.8x50, containing 1,233 square feet, was knocked down to a purchaser for $88,000, or $71 per square foot; thus establishing a new record for corner auction sales in the terminal section.

Mortgage Investments.

Mr. Arneberg, of E. H. Ludlow & Co., speaking on the mortgage money question this week, said:

"With money earning a much greater rate of interest in Wall st and other channels, is it to be wondered that loaning institutions complain of a stringency in the mortgage loan market?"

"This firm is in frequent receipt of many excellent loan applications," said Mr. Arneberg, "but some of the mortgage-lending bodies are beginning to establish such conservative rules, due partly to this cause, and are beginning to show such a decided preference for transacting business through members of the bar, that it is becoming difficult to interest them in any mortgage investment, unless the security offered happens to be just in the territory which suits them best."

The Procuring and Selling of Real Estate

AN IMPORTANT PART OF A BROKER'S WORK

By JOHN R. FOLEY

The second lecture of the term before the Real Estate School of the West Side Y. M. C. A. was delivered on Tuesday evening, October 23, by John R. Foley, Esq., on a subject of great importance to the broker—the best method of procuring real estate for sale and then of disposing of it at a price satisfactory to both buyer and seller.

The procuring of salable real estate in the Borough of Manhattan is to my mind the most difficult problem that the young real estate man just starting in business has to face. When I say salable, I mean the class of property that the speculator or investor will purchase in a conservative market, such as confronts us today. Of course, in boom times such as we had in the fall and winter of 1904 and 1905, the broker who was fortunate enough to have a list of property in the boom section on his books or cards, had no difficulty in selling and was the one who made the commissions, but this I will take up later. For the purpose of thoroughly explaining the different methods to be employed in procuring property for sale, I have divided them into five different classes:

First—Through ordinary channels.

Second—Through personal friends and acquaintances.

Third—Through advertising.

Fourth—Following up transfers, auction sales and wills filed.

Fifth—Through canvassing property owners in sections of the city where property seems to be in demand.

I will take up the first class: "ORDINARY CHANNELS"; I mean when you have your sign put on your office door and you feel yourself a full-fledged real estate broker; the first thing you do is to join the Real Estate Board of Brokers of the City of New York; then have an announcement card lithographed (if you have the money) or printed (if you are worrying about how the next month's expenses are to be met), and distributed broadcast among your relatives, people you know and people you never cared to know until now, announcing you are in the real estate business and soliciting their patronage. You immediately subscribe to the official leading trade paper, the REAL ESTATE RECORD AND GUIDE, and send out to every firm or man who has an advertisement therein; then await the result.

Every relative and speculator who received the announcement card will send particulars of any property he or she may want to dispose of; the relatives will feel it their duty to help along a relation, and if it is only a plot in Greenwood Cemetery or a lot in Kalamazoo, Mr. Broker will be sent particulars. Now comes the professional operator. He will read the announcement and say to himself: "Another new broker in the business; guess I shall give him a chance." So out goes a printed list a yard long, with prohibitive prices; possibly the operator thinks a new man can procure better prices than an experienced broker, so just to help things along he scratches out some of the list prices and writes in higher ones. Then he will have the owner come in who will assure him that he is giving this property to the broker as a special favor, to help him along, and that no other broker in New York has ever had it before, etc., etc., where, as a matter of fact, every broker in New York now has it, as well as the operators' printed lists. I do not want to be misunderstood as depreciating the operators' properties, for these gentlemen are a class whose acquaintance the young broker should cultivate, for, if you once gain their confidence, they will give you confidential prices on their property which will enable you to find a purchaser; they are good judges of values and as a rule are willing to accept a fair profit, although, at some of the prices asked in the printed lists, no sane investor would buy them. ANOTHER POINT IS, NEVER LET A BUYER SEE ONE OF THOSE PRINTED LISTS, FOR IT IS HUMAN NATURE NOT TO WANT TO PAY A MAN PROFIT ON HIS PURCHASE. This is very unjust in the majority of cases, for I know from personal experience that, in many cases, property can be bought at a lower figure from an operator than from an estate. The reason for this is that there are professional speculators in New York City who are such good judges of values that they can afford to sell their holdings at a lower figure than the people who have owned for years. Another thing is, an operator follows a good business maxim, "Quick sales and small profits."

The second class, "PERSONAL FRIENDS AND ACQUAINTANCES," are the people you are thrown in with every day; you meet them at luncheon, on the cars, in your club, and in fact every place you happen to be. Do not be backward in telling them your business and asking them if they have any property for sale; no one will refuse to give you particulars, and as a man is always in a more liberal mood when he is away from his office, he may tell you about some special piece of property that belongs to his family, which he probably never thought of offering before. One of the largest sales I ever made was through meeting a lawyer friend in the elevated railroad one evening on my way home. I had just closed a contract in his office a few hours previously. In the course of conversation I asked him if he represented any property owners who would sell. He did, and through this little incident my office made a commission running into four figures. Never lose the opportunity to form the acquaintance of the right sort of people, for they are a most important part of your stock in trade.

Advertising for property, in years gone by, was a very successful method, but to-day I consider it the least beneficial. It is all right for selling, but not for procuring. The only advantage it has is to keep your name before the public, and an owner may pick you out from the other brokers to have you offer his property for sale. I believe in going over the daily papers carefully and answering advertisements of properties advertised, for among this large number of "ads." inserted by owners and reputable brokers, you may find just what you are looking for. Beware of the "ad." that reads as follows: "Have a client with $100,000 to invest in cold-water flats, business property or vacant lots; no notice taken unless full particulars given; address of Z. Z., 'Herald,' 'Journal,' or some other newspaper office. You can rest assured he is an irresponsible broker and you will never hear from your property again.

FOLLOWING UP TRANSFERS, AUCTION SALES, WILLS FILED.—This system requires a large amount of time, labor and expense. In the first place, I should advise the broker to subscribe to one or the other information bureaus now in existence, the REAL ESTATE RECORD AND GUIDE or the concern so ably managed by Mr. Lee, the "New York Real Estate Directory"—I understand that they have recently joined interests and are operated as one corporation. These people issue cards weekly, giving the transfers and names of buyers. A letter should be sent to each purchaser, followed up by a personal interview, in case no reply is received, asking permission to offer the property for sale. Also follow up the daily auction sales in the real estate auction room in the same manner. The daily papers publish the buyers and exact price paid, and as many auction sales are bought in by the plaintiff in foreclosure, the chances are they will be very glad to sell, only desiring the original amount of mortgage loaned, with the expenses and probable excess over mortgage they were forced to pay in order to protect themselves. Many cheap pieces of property are acquired in this way.

As to following up wills filed, I consider this the most important form of acquiring the class of real estate which can be readily sold. As soon as a person dies, his or her will is filed with the surrogate, showing the property owned by the deceased, name of executor or executors and the attorney's name and address. This information is also furnished by the information bureau referred to by me this evening. You should call on or send an intelligent representative to the executor or executrix in, say, a month or so after the will is filed. If the estate is to be sold for division among the heirs you will either be given the particulars or told when the property is to be offered. Great diplomacy and judgment must be used by a broker approaching a stranger to ask for the privilege of trying to sell his real estate. In the first place, gentlemanly conduct and a large amount of self-assurance is necessary. Now, by assurance, I don't mean nerve; you must be able to impress your executor that you are a man able to do what you say, and where one broker succeeds in his mission, five will fail through undue modesty. I remember an occasion of a young man in my office calling on an executor the day after the will was filed. On calling at the house, he met the funeral party coming down the steps. This did not phase my young friend in the least, as he went right up to the executor, who happened to be a brother of the deceased, and asked him if the property was for sale. You can imagine that we never had a chance to sell that property. Here was an illustration of assurance, but no diplomacy.

It is very necessary for a broker to keep some sort of a system of property sold throughout the city. This may be done by card index or by placing the transfers each week on an atlas. For my part I prefer the latter, as you can see in a glance who has bought in any section of the city.

I believe in every real estate office preparing thoroughly for a boom which may strike any section of the city. For instance, Washington Heights and the Bronx each had one in 1904 and 1905. The brokers who had canvassed these districts and were prepared for customers, reaped the reward of their labors in large and numerous commissions. Keep yourself or office staff plugging all the year canvassing property owners for permission to sell their properties. You may not succeed in selling a piece in years, but the minute any activity is shown in a section, you are ready with the goods. Divide your city up; take first, downtown south of Liberty st, then Liberty st to 14th st; then 14th to 40th st, East and North River, and so on throughout the city. This is hard and tedious work, but it will pay you in the long run. One important thing I wish to impress on you this evening is the necessity of keeping your property filed in such a manner that you can lay your hand on the full particulars at any moment. Such a system I have in my office, and I have brought with me some of my filing cabinets to-night, which is the result of many years' thought and labor. (Explains system.) It cannot be expected of a young man just starting in business to be able to judge the fair market value of a property that is offered him for sale; and the problem of his not being able to pick the wheat from the chaff will be one of the hardest things he has to contend with. The majority of buyers are well informed as to values and everybody is looking for a bargain, and I can assure you buyers may be divided into three classes: the man who wants a property, the man who thinks he wants it, and the man who buys it because somebody else tells him to do so. In the first instance, the broker has an easy sale; this man is willing to pay a fair market value because he needs the property for some specific purpose. The man who thinks he wants it is a hard nut to crack; he will make the broker all sorts of ridiculous offers. If the broker is new at the business, he will submit the offer and probably be kicked out. Not so with the old timer; he will say "All right, sir; I will submit it"; but instead of doing so, he will walk around the block and come back to the gentleman and say: "Nothing doing." He will then get a better one; the broker will take another walk, then when he has succeeded in getting the party up to some reasonable figure in the neighborhood of the seller's price, he will see the seller and try to get him down in his price. So he goes back and forth, getting one up and the other down, and when he finds he has gone the limit, then is the time to bring the principals together and try and split the difference. This plan generally succeeds. If you are successful in bringing their minds together, have the contract drawn up at once; do not let the deal go over until morning, or the chances are the buyer will lose confidence in his own judgment and allow himself to be talked out of the deal by some relative or friend who is anxious to impress him with his or her wisdom and judgment in property affairs. A broker must be very careful not to show any partiality while in the presence of buyer and seller whom he represents. Remember you cannot serve two masters to-

they are scarce these days. You must pick out a few of what you consider good income producing properties, if for an investor; and if for a speculator, you must consistently hammer the owner down until he is ready to take a price for his property that is within reason. I will assume now that my young broker has a large stock of property in hand, well filed and covering the entire city of New York. If he is a specialist, like a friend of mine who only sells corners, you have every corner property. If a dealer in private dwellings in the 5th and Madison av sections, you are well supplied. You say to yourself: "Mr. Foley told me how to get property and I have it in bunches, but I have office rent, a stenographer, salesmen, etc., to pay; I have already expended large sums; how am I going to get my money back?" "Why, find buyers." "But here I have been working for a year procuring property and I have not made a cent, and today I am long on property and short on customers." The answer to this is that you should also have a large list of customers by this time and have made a number of sales. When you received the long printed lists from the speculators, you should have made a memorandum of each firm or individual's name in a card cabinet. (Shows card cabinet.) Whenever you received a property from any source outside of a speculator, you should have sent one of these operators particulars, or, better still, communicated with him personally. ONE INTERVIEW IS WORTH A DOZEN LETTERS IN ANY TRANSACTION INVOLVING THE SALE OF PROPERTY. When you were talking to your personal friends and acquaintances at the club, luncheon or some other place, you should have asked them if they were in the market. If you were fortunate enough to sell a piece, the chances are the party will want to buy again. When you are following the transfers, the grantor has to re-invest his money. Where is the safest place? Right back in New York real estate. So I can keep on enumerating methods to procure buyers similar to those employed in getting property for sale. Buyers spring up like mushrooms once you are well launched in your profession, but the important thing is to be able to sell them something. As the RECORD AND GUIDE in its able article of October 13, 1906, entitled "Whims of Buyers," says, real estate gether. The seller is the man who pays you the commission and he is the one who thinks you should work for his interests; but the buyer also feels you should serve him, and so you should, and you can satisfy both if you have worked honestly to bring the deals about. You have procured the best price possible from the buyer; the seller has accepted, so your duty is done and commission earned. Before closing my remarks, I wish to impress upon you the importance of avoiding sharp practice in making deals, the importance of dealing straight with your brother brokers; where you are dealing together there are hundreds of ways to cheat a brother broker out of a commission, but you will be found out sooner or later and be surprised what a small town New York is after all to have news of this kind fly around.

Informal Discussion on the Subject of "Mortgage Loans" by the Acmy Real Estate Club.

The Acmy Real Estate Club, which consists of the graduate members of the real estate class of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, held its first monthly dinner at Reisenweber's, 58th st and 8th av, on Monday night. The attendance was as large as expected, there being 80 persons on hand who enjoyed the occasion.

"It is the purpose of the club," remarked Mr. William H. Britigan, Educational Director, "to continue this method of bringing the members of our real estate classes in closer touch with one another, dispensing with formality, and encouraging the open discussion of many problems affecting the business of the real estate broker."

Mr. Chas. C. Edwards spoke on the subject of "Mortgage Loans," first touching on the matter of the incompleteness of the average application handed in by the real estate loan broker when applying to financial institutions. He said that "the application blank should be carefully filled out and nothing but the true facts stated," but cautioned the broker to first secure a signature of authorization from the real owner in order to avoid complications which frequently arise; and further advised a close personal inspection of the property offered as security before finally submitting the application for consideration.

"In a large number of cases nearly all the information which has any direct bearing on the value of the property upon which a loan is desired has been purposely or inadvertently arranged so as to convey the impression that the broker either desired to mislead the money lender, or that he did not fully understand his profession," added the speaker. "It is a mistake," he continued, "to attempt to conceal true conditions, for it is fair to assume that lenders on mortgage, especially the large title companies, maintain accurate and expensive systems to properly guide them in arriving at average and just valuations, and the broker, if he persists in repetitions of this character, will sooner or later find himself classed with the unreliable."

Following this address President Harsen spoke of the good work done in the past by the real estate classes, and referred to the great volume of business transacted in the mortgage loan branch of the brokerage business, making interesting comparisons.

Remarks by Mr. E. A. Treadwell were in relation to the stringency of the money market, as applied to mortgages, and his allusion to various foreign systems of periodical reduction of principal were alike interesting and instructive.

THE REALM OF BUILDING

Windows in All Tenement Rooms.

RULING OF THE TENEMENT HOUSE DEPARTMENT UPHELD.—COMMISSIONER BUTLER ANSWERS CERTAIN CRITICISMS.

THROUGH A decision just handed down by Supreme Court Justice Bischoff the Tenement House Commission is upheld in enforcing the provision of the law which calls for the placing of a window in every room of a tenement house. It will have a widespread effect upon building operations in the greater city.

The decision is in effect that the court will not interfere with the judicial discretion of the commission. John O'Leary, a builder, who is erecting a row of tenements on Cambreling av, the Bronx, applied for a mandamus to prevent Commissioner Butler from compelling him to place windows in alcoves which, according to his plans, were formed by the peculiar construction of the buildings.

The Tenement Commission objects to these alcoves for the reason that tenants are in the habit of stretching curtains in front of them, and thus creating a bedroom without light or air. It is contended that if alcoves are thus turned into bedrooms they must be provided with windows. In objecting to builders' plans which did not provide such windows the commission has been in conflict with many architects throughout the city. The test case brought by O'Leary was therefore watched with much interest.

AN INTERVIEW WITH COMMISSIONER BUTLER.

In issue of the Record and Guide of September 8th last, there appeared a communication from Mr. Louis Berger, president of the Brooklyn Society of Architects, condemning and protesting against the action of the Tenement House Department in holding up some one hundred and fifty sets of plans, on the alleged ground that the plans are drawn in violation of the law in showing interior bedrooms without the required amount of light and ventilation. Mr. Berger also protested against the interpretation of the law by the Tenement House Department in refusing permits for buildings on the ground that the plans contain "alcove" or "L-shaped" rooms, etc. These and further statements by Mr. Berger were answered by Commissioner Butler this week in an interview with a representative of the Record and Guide. Mr. Butler said:

"With regard to the charge that the administration of the Brooklyn office is in the hands of people who are not practical men in matters pertaining to construction of tenements, and that Mr. Sweeney did not pass a Civil Service examination for the position he now holds, it may be said, that while it is true that Mr. Sweeney did not pass such an examination, his career as a builder and manufacturer of building materials, and his experience in the several building departments, furnish sufficient evidence as to his ability to fill the position he now holds. The following facts may be cited: Mr. Sweeney has held his present position in the Tenement House Department since March 3d, 1902, and has certainly had ample opportunity in that time to become conversant with the requirements of the Tenement House Law. Prior to this he was in the Building Bureau of the Board of Education for a period of three years, and prior thereto had been in the Building Bureau of Brooklyn for a period of four years. As the heads of other departments are not directly concerned in the treatment of plans no further reference to this matter is needed.

"Whether a plan examiner is termed an official plan examiner or just an ordinary plan examiner is immaterial, if the results accomplished are all that may be called for by the law. The men occupying the positions of plan examiners have had experience and training in the Department, and the business has been fairly well looked after up to date. There have been delays, it is true, but they were due chiefly to two causes. The unusual amount of work that came into the bureau from early in the season until some time in June, and the fact that we had lost two examiners who had been in the Department for several years and who were competent and experienced men. New men had to be selected to fill these vacancies, and it took time to meet this need. Another reason for delay was the inefficient condition in which work came into the Department from the architects. Many of the architects were more anxious to get their work into the Department than to properly prepare it, or to make the necessary corrections after such enterings were made. There were on October 1st about 33 new building plans on file which had not been examined, and none of them dated back of September 24th.

"That there has been a lack of sufficient force of inspectors in the field is true, but this deficiency cannot be looked upon as any hardship to builders, unless they expect the inspectors to supervise the conduct of their work and act as foremen for them in forcing compliance of contracts with sub-contractors, and to make up for the deficiency of knowledge concerning construction work characteristic of many of the builders. If the builder did his work properly he had nothing to hope for or fear from the inspector.

"On the question of concrete there is considerable friction between the Department and some of the builders. It is unnecessary to make an extended explanation to anyone familiar with the business of building on this score. The term concrete is rather indefinite, but the Tenement House Department will never permit a mixture of sand and gravel to be foisted upon it as concrete.

"No changes involving any alteration of the law have been made in the Tenement House Department. It has been found necessary at times to deal with problems arising from novel conditions of a minor character, and others not provided for by law, but all such cases have been treated individually and with a view to carrying out the spirit of the law and doing no injustice to the individual. All such decisions are made by the Commissioner or with his approval.

"The case which Mr. Berger cited is one that comes directly within the scope of the Commissioner's order that all such requests should come from the owner and the information be given out in the Bureau of Records. There is no instance where such information was refused when so requested. Among other reasons for the issuance of this order is that of protection of owners and builders from the schemes of unsuccessful and competitive sub-contractors.

"As to the criticism of the treatment of cases not coming within the requirements of section 93. The treatment has been and will continue to be, that where there is no sewer in a street the Department will insist that a cesspool be provided. Looking at it from a sanitary point, it does not seem that this is any hardship. It may be 'arrogant,' but it is not so 'offensive' as if there were no means provided for taking care of sewerage.

"With regard to the question which was agitated by the Brooklyn Architects' Association and referred to in the Record and Guide, concerning the character of plans objected to by the Department, it is only necessary to state that last month—September—Mr. Justice Van Kirk, of the Supreme Court of the 2d District, denied the motion of the builder who attempted to force these plans upon the department, and during the present month a similar attempt upon the part of a builder in the Bronx met with a like fate." The following is a copy of the decision in the latter case, as copied from the Law Journal of October 20th:

SUPREME COURT, SPECIAL TERM, PART I.

(N. Y. Law Journal, Oct. 20th, 1906.)

By Mr. Justice Bischoff.

People ex rel. O'Leary v. Tenement House Dept.—Whatever my individual opinion might be as to the question decided by the respondent when determining that the spaces delineated upon these plans are "alcoves" within the Tenement House Act (Laws 1901, chaps. 334 and 335; Laws of 1903, chap. 179), there was undoubtedly room for the conclusion which has been reached, and the court cannot, by mandamus, control the judicial discretion conferred upon a subordinate tribunal (People ex rel. Francis v. Common Council, 78 N. Y., 33). It is quite apparent that the respondent possesses judicial powers in the determination of the question whether plans submitted comply with all the requirements of law (Tenement House Act, sec. 121), and the point has been so ruled (Kiesel v. Crain, Law Journal, June 27, 1905, Special Term, Part I., Greenbaum, J.). Motion denied, with $10 costs.

Milliken Bros. Staten Island Plant in Operation.

Milliken Bros., Incorporated, of No. 11 Broadway, who are erecting adjacent to their present plant on Staten Island seven or eight structures, including furnaces, blooming and finishing mills, 1-sty in height, estimating in cost several millions of dollars, began operations with the open hearth furnaces on Wednesday of this week, turning out steel castings. This marks the starting up of the new plant which will turn out the first structural steel ever made in the boundaries of Greater New York. This plant will make a complete line of all kinds of structural steel, also steel billets. The blooming mill, it is expected, will begin to operate within a few days, and soon after that the structural department will open. The Pennsylvania Steel Co. supplied the eight hundred tons of rails for the tracks, including switches. The order for the yard locomotives, of which there are five, has been placed with the H. K. Porter Co. For full building particulars and descriptions, see issues Dec. 2, 1905, and Dec. 23, 1905.

Percy Rockefeller's Fireproof Residence.

Plans for a novel fireproof residence, to be erected at Greenwich, Conn., for Percy Rockefeller, a nephew of John D. Rockefeller, have been completed by Hiss & Weeks, 111 5th av, Manhattan. The house will be 213 ft. long and 70 ft. wide at its greatest width; the frame and floors will be constructed of reinforced concrete, using round steel bars for the same, by the Reinforced Cement Construction Company, 1 Madison av, Manhattan.

CROSS-SECTION OF OUTSIDE WALL, SHOWING CONSTRUCTION OF FIREPROOF TERRA COTTA IN PROPOSED RESIDENCE FOR PERCY ROCKEFELLER AT GREENWICH, CONN.

The novel feature in the construction of the building will be that of the walls and partitions, which will be built of fireproof terra cotta blocks of a special design, made by the New Jersey Company, 11 Broadway, Manhattan, who have the contract to furnish them. The interior walls will be built up with these fireproof terra cotta blocks, as also will the outside walls, but the latter will be considerably thicker and finished on the outside by a stucco applied directly to the specially designed terra cotta blocks, that are corrugated, thus doing away with the use of wire lath or any other device to hold the plastic cement.

The outside walls will consist of two tiers of terra cotta blocks. The outside tier of the walls will be formed with 8-inch blocks, while 4-inch blocks will make up the inside between which will be a 4-inch air space running the entire height and width, as shown in the accompanying illustration. This special feature in the oddity of construction and material to be used, it is claimed, will make the house warm in winter and cool in summer, besides being thoroughly fireproof, waterproof and earthquake-proof.

In this mode of fireproof construction a wide field in fireproof terra cotta can be covered, and many manufacturers of these lines of building material will watch the result with great interest. It is understood that 850 tons of fireproof terra cotta will be used in the construction. The total cost will be between two and three hundred thousand dollars.

Thirty-Fourth Street Section Not Overrated.

Regarding the 34th st section, Messrs. Pocher & Co., of 40 West 34th st, expressed the opinion this week that this section is not at all overrated, and that there are many merchants who are desirous of locating in this immediate vicinity, but that there are not enough stores to supply the demand. In some few instances the rentals asked are more than the merchants are willing to pay at present, but it will not be very long before all store vacancies will be rented, even at present prices which are asked for vacant stores.

Mr. Pocher added: "We do not believe that the actual value of this section is fully understood by all, and the few who do foresee value in paying present prices, in reality are securing very low rentals.

"Three or four years ago it was an easy matter to pass along 34th st, and the crossings on 5th av and Broadway, but now, on account of the increasing traffic, it is necessary to have a number of policemen at all crossings, to prevent loss of life, on account of the immense traffic. There are ten times as many people passing at the present time as there were three years ago, and when the various proposed improvements are completed in this vicinity, such as the Pennsylvania Railroad depot, and the other large buildings now in the course of erection, there will be more people passing in this vicinity, we believe, than in any other part of the city.

"Lofts in this vicinity do not rent as readily as they should, as we believe prices asked are a little bit too high. We believe the prices asked now for lofts will readily rent them in a few years from now, and if the rentals asked for various lofts are slightly decreased they can be rented at the present time.

The Air-Lock.

AS IT IS NOW USED IN FOUNDATION WORK—WORKING PRINCIPLES EXPLAINED.

IN under-water work by the pneumatic or caisson method, the workmen excavate the material, deposit the concrete and do other necessary operations in a large room or working chamber below the water level. This working chamber is practically a diving bell. The water is kept from entering the working chamber or caisson by compressed air. The compressed air being so regulated that the pressure of the air balances the pressure of the water. It will be seen from this that the greater the depth of water the greater the required pressure of air.

The compressed air is introduced through an ordinary pipe which fills into the working chamber. It is also necessary to provide means for the men to enter the working chamber as well as to come out of the working chamber without the escape of any quantity of this compressed air. To accomplish this some form of an air-lock has always been employed.

The air-lock is a boiler-like structure connected with the working chamber by a steel pipe. This steel pipe is sufficiently large to allow a man to go through, and to allow a bucket to be hoisted through it for the handling of dirt or concrete. At the bottom of the air-lock or the portion attached to the top of the pipe or shaft, there is another opening affording connection between the interior of the air-lock and the pipe or shaft. At the top of the air-lock there is a corresponding opening affording communication between the interior of the air-lock and the open air. Both of these openings are provided with doors closing the openings so that when the door is closed no air can pass through the opening. It is evident that if both the doors are open at the same time the compressed air in the working chamber and in the pipe, or shaft connecting the working chamber with the air-lock, could escape by passing through the opening in the bottom of the air-lock into the air-lock and then from the air-lock to the opening in the top of the air-lock to the outer air; so that in practice one of the doors is always kept closed to prevent the escape of air through the air-lock.

To understand the working of one of these air-locks, let us suppose that the lower door is closed and the upper door is open. In this case, the interior of the air-lock will be in direct communication with the outer air and any person can enter the air-lock by simply climbing down through the open door. If he wishes to continue his trip into the trying atmosphere of the compressed air in the working chamber, it will be necessary for the open door to be closed and pressed firmly against its seat in the upper head of the air-lock. Through the small pipe compressed air is allowed to flow into the interior of the air-lock, which being a confined receptacle, gradually fills up with compressed air and the pressure in the air-lock gradually changes from zero, or atmospheric pressure, to the pressure of the air in the working chamber. When the pressure in the air-lock is equal to the pressure in the working chamber the lower door of the air-lock can be opened, or in practice it drops open of its own weight. The person in the air-lock is then free to pass into the shaft or pipe connecting the air-lock with the working chamber, and by climbing down would eventually find his way into the working chamber.

The reverse process of coming out of the air-lock is equally simple, as a man wishing to come out, enters the air-lock through the open lower door, then closes the lower door and opens a small valve which allows the compressed air contained in the air-lock between the two doors to escape, and when it has all escaped the upper door drops by its own weight and the air-lock is again open to the exterior air.

The above is a description of a simple air-lock and explains the theory and use of an air-lock. But the mountain air-lock is a much more complicated affair. Because of the increased use of this method of constructing the foundations it is becoming necessary to use an air-lock which will allow a bucket or tub to be used for the hoisting of rock, boulders and dirt from the working chamber to the outer air, and also to allow a similar bucket filled with concrete to be taken from the outer air into the working chamber. For many years this was done in a primitive manner by placing the materials that had to be passed through the air-lock in canvas sacks. These canvas sacks were lifted in by men and laboriously carried down the ladder or lowered by men with ropes.

The improved air-lock is the invention of Daniel E. Moran, Civil Engineer, who has been for the past twenty years in charge of important operations of this kind. He conceived the idea of passing a bucket through an air-lock, without in any way detaching the bucket from the supporting rope. This was accomplished by an ingenious arrangement of the upper door. In the first air-locks of this kind the upper door was divided into two equal halves; each half was separately controlled by a lever in the outside of the lock. When the two halves of the upper door were closed they made a practically tight combination, closing the opening in the upper head of the air-lock, except that in the exact centre in the opening in the air-lock there was a similar circular opening between the two doors formed by each door having a semi-circular opening cut in the door; through this opening the air could escape freely. When not used for the passage of a bucket through the lock the opening was closed by a brass stuffing box through which a hoisting rope passed. In other words, the bucket was suspended on the original hoisting rope connected with the derrick as it would be for ordinary use in any location. But immediately above the hook in the end of the hoisting rope was a brass pipe-like stuffing box, the outside of which actually fitted the opening in the doors. To pass the bucket through the air-lock it was lowered into the air-lock, the two halves of the upper door being open. The upper doors were then closed around the brass stuffing box, forming a tight joint with it and also with each other and with the opening in the air-lock. The pressure was then introduced into the air-lock until it equalled the air pressure in the caisson or working chamber, when the lower door fell open. Then the bucket was lowered through the pipe or shaft into the working chamber, the rope slipping through the stuffing box, and the stuffing box, of course, remaining securely held between the two doors.

This was a great improvement in air-locks which has greatly revolutionized the pneumatic caisson methods and has facilitated the use of the caisson for the foundation piers and large buildings in the city.

Subsequent to the introduction of this improved air-lock, Mr. Moran has simplified and improved the original design, and in all of the larger enterprises with which he is connected the Improved Moran Air-Lock is used. In this improved air-lock the double doors and the stuffing box are dispensed with, and yet, nevertheless, the air-lock will pass a bucket or any object suspended from the derrick.

Winfield S. Gilmour Buys 177 Broadway.

BROADWAY.—Through the efforts of Warren & Skillin, the Century and United States Realty companies as joint owners sold to Winfield S. Gilmour No. 177 Broadway. The building has been occupied for some time past by Crouch & Fitzgerald, of which corporation Mr. Gilmour is president. While the price paid is not definitely known, it is believed by those in a position to judge, to compare favorably with the sale of 181 Broadway, which was recently acquired by John G. Wendel for approximately $425,000. Brokers are of the opinion that other surprises on this block will be sprung before the holidays. It is stated that Mr. Gilmour reasoned that in order to enjoy the continued prosperity which his corporation has done in the past by reason of its occupancy of a building so centrally situated, it seemed the part of wisdom to make this purchase. The building is a 5-sty affair, 25.3x100. The sale is an important one, and indicates implicit faith on the part of the downtown merchant in the future value of lower Broadway real estate.

Tenant Buys 179 Broadway.

BROADWAY.—Broker B. Davis has sold for the Century Realty Co. and the United States Realty & Improvement Co. 179 Broadway, adjoining the Crouch & Fitzgerald purchase, alluded to elsewhere. The buyer in this instance is Geo. S. Keith, of the Walkover Shoe Co. As in the case of 177 Broadway, the purchaser in this transaction is the present occupant. There is no question as to the desirability of the property, and operators who are known to be conservative say that in its present shape this building will bring not less than $25,000 per front foot in a short time. Conditions are changing so rapidly below Fulton st that news of this nature is no longer surprising.

Another Important Fifth Avenue Sale.

5TH AV.—By virtue of an option of purchase the Raimon Co. have bought from Horace A. Hutchins the Knabe Building, southeast corner of 5th av and 39th st, at a price said to exceed $1,250,000. The building is eleven stories in height, fronting 49.5 on 5th av and 125 ft. on 39th st. The Union League Club is opposite. In commenting on the price said to have been paid for the above, real estate men regard same as representing a fair value for this location. The predictions of many old time operators that 5th av would eventually be the leading business thoroughfare now seem to be rapidly materializing.

This is the only 50-ft. plot on 5th av above 34th st, and this side of Central Park, available for business purposes. The Lotos Club members have decided to locate their new home in the forties on a side street, and are willing to pay not exceeding $200,000 for the ground, the building to cost approximately $200,000.

Elliman stated that this sale was a continuance of the purchases which have already been made on this block. It was related that an owner whose family suffered from mental derangement undertook to erect a private sanitarium at 154 and 156 East 70th st, being on the south side, but when only partly completed was stricken down, the construction ceasing where it was. This was bought up and has since been resold to Mr. Stephen H. Brown of the New York Stock Exchange, who has about completed a 40-ft. front American-basement dwelling at an approximate cost of $100,000. Nos. 158, 160 and 162 were also bought up and remodeled from flats into private dwellings. A Broadway-Mercer Street Property Sold at Auction.

No. 449 Broadway, running through to 26 Mercer st, 25x200, was sold at auction by James L. Wells at the Vesey st auction room during the week for $134,000, being exactly $26.80 per sq. foot. The successful bidders were S. H. Stone and D. & H. Lippman. The property was owned by the Boos Estate, and was sold in partition by order of the Supreme Court.

As a rule, the announcement of a Broadway auction sale attracts considerable attention, and in the past has been a magnet which draws a substantial class of investors, but, contrary to the general supposition, there were perhaps fewer buyers in attendance at this sale than expected. The building which covers this plot is an old one, and its condition not so good as it might be, standing greatly in need of repairs. Real estate agents who make a specialty of the management and rental of stores and lofts in this location, and who are familiar with the exactions of the average tenant, say that the building is in need of a general overhauling, and that in order to secure permanent tenants it will be necessary to spend considerable to put the structure in proper shape. Notwithstanding this, having purchased the property at a very low figure, the buyers, after making alterations, will, it is said, be able to show a handsome profit on the investment upon disposing of same at private sale.

It is interesting to note that the land with improvements thereon stands on the assessment books at a valuation of $145,000, being an amount which exceeds the sale price by $11,000.

Forty New Houses for Montclair.

Parish, Fisher & Co. sold for F. D. Lambie to Aaron W. Godfrey a tract of 5 acres on the south side of Anderson Park, near North Mountain av, upper Montclair, N. J. Mr. Godfrey, by former purchase of 13 acres, now controls about 18 acres, which he will improve at once. The erection of 40 houses, as a start, will be begun at the earliest possible date in the spring, for which cement and concrete will be largely employed.

Ready for Delivery.

The Record and Guide Quarterly, covering the period between July 1 to Sept. 30, 1906, will be ready for delivery on Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1906. In addition to the record matter which this publication has always contained, there has been added to the conveyances the grantee's address, and under each mortgage will be found the name and address of the attorney loaning the money, making this publication an invaluable real estate directory, which should be in every broker's office.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Brokers in general report an increased demand for medium size lofts in the central part of Manhattan, but say that space 100x100 is hard to get.

Mr. S. Carman Harriot has become a member of the firm of John M. Thompson & Co., real estate brokers, with offices in the United Building, 212 Broadway, Manhattan.

M. & L. Hess, 643 Broadway, Manhattan, report that lofts 75 to 100x100 are very scarce at the present time, and that small space 50x100 between 14th and 23d sts is bringing $3,500.

The 130th Street Corporation (real estate) has incorporated with a capital of $100,000. Directors are: L. L. Seidman, Brooklyn, and A. Schlesinger and H. Fenichel, of Manhattan.

The office of F. & G. Pfomm has enjoyed a brisk business this fall, but they say that while the volume transacted is not quite so large as that of 1905, still it compares well with the business closed in 1904 during the same period.

The manager of the loan department of one of the large title companies complains of the extreme dullness in their business at the present time. "It is so dull," he said, "that many of us are sitting around practically doing nothing."

The firm of L. Tannenbaum, Strauss & Co., 640 Broadway, Manhattan have been enjoying a good business in the rental line this fall, and they speak favorably as to the outlook for continued prosperity. They note that lofts containing 10,000 square feet are becoming scarce.

Pocher & Co., real estate brokers and agents, of 40 West 34th st, will remove the offices on Nov. 1 to larger quarters at 126 West 34th st, just west of the Herald Square Hotel. This firm has for years successfully managed many parcels of real estate, mostly in the West Side section.

Record and Guide Quarterly

The annual number of the Record and Guide Quarterly contains all the legal records for the past year concerning real estate and projected buildings, arranged alphabetically and numerically, with invaluable annotations. These are supplemented by tables of important transactions, with typical prices, covering the past quarter of a century or more, accompanied by expert comments; also by a list of realty corporations created during the past two years, with officers and the enterprises in which they are engaged. The whole makes a volume of reference which no real estate man can afford to be without. It should be on every desk and in every library. Its cost is as nothing compared to its value as a time-saver. This important work can be obtained, with three quarterly numbers, for the comparatively small sum of $20. It is published by the Record and Guide, at Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey St., where interested parties may see it and have its uses explained to them. If you cannot call, drop a postal card to the Publisher, or call him up on telephone, 3157 Cortlandt.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE
14-16 VESEY STREET, :: :: NEW YORK

An order confirming the report in the matter of two rapid-transit routes was handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court on Wednesday. One of these is the Jerome av 4-track subway, from 166th st to Woodlawn Cemetery, and the other is the route from Bronx Park to the White Plains road.

Mr. Veiller, of the firm of Chambers & Veiller, of 353 5th av, says that renting is very active in business circles throughout that section of the city. Although mortgage loans are still hard to procure, he reports the real estate market as being in fine shape, with but one other difficulty, and that is a lack of available business property at moderate rentals.

Many real estate brokers are under the impression that the terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad is to be on 34th st west of 7th av. "This is a mistake," observed a well known brokerage firm, "and the impression should be corrected at once. The general station will be at 7th av and 33d st, the small arcade provided for on 34th st belonging to an allied company."

The majority of brokers occupying offices in 42d st seem to be giving their main attention to the sale of acreage in Westchester County. They advance convincing arguments as to the certainty of rapid changes in values in the territory mentioned. "Very little real desirable vacant property can be purchased now at prices which prevailed last spring," said a well-known firm. A careful inquiry proved the truth of this statement.

—Parish, Fisher & Co., 149 Broadway, Manhattan, who are watching very closely the transition which the Pennsylvania district is undergoing, predict many surprises in the future. It will be remembered that this firm was identified with the recent sale of the northeast corner of 7th av and 33d st, and it can be stated that they are in a good position to know pretty much what is going on. The cost of the McAdoo Tunnel Co. purchases in 32d and 33d sts, as well as on 6th av, will probably reach the enormous total of $7,000,000.

—On Nov. 2 the Board of Estimate will give a hearing in the matter of the proposed addition to Claremont Park. The park now has an area of some 38 acres, and in it is the Zbrowski Mansion, containing the administrative offices of the Park Department of the Borough of the Bronx. The proposed addition would be bisected in one direction by College av, to which the city has already taken title, and in the other direction by East 171st st and East 172d st, both of which have been legally opened. None of these streets has been improved, and there is but one house on the land which it is proposed to take. About one-fourth of the area is covered with large trees. The present assessed value of the land is $103,050, but in view of the recent large increase in real estate values in this part of the city, it is difficult to estimate what would be the cost of its acquisition.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in Section 2, Block 482, Lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows; The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

October 19, 20, 22, 23, 24, 25.

THIS week's extreme dullness in the Stock Market afforded too good an opportunity to get up an election scare to be neglected by the bears. In their efforts the bears were aided by the demand for higher wages by nearly all classes of railway employees. The officers of the New York Central lines denied, however, that their employees were asking for higher pay and shorter hours, though New York Central sold on Wednesday at 126 ³/₄, making a new low record for the year. Other roads said to be involved are the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Central Railroad of New Jersey, Reading, Pennsylvania and Erie. The failure to increase the dividend on Steel Common was also a contributing cause of weakness in the Stock Market, yet many think that the Steel Corporation directors deserve credit for having moved cautiously in the matter of the Common stock dividends. This, with the great earnings as per the quarterly statement issued this week, could easily have been done, but, on the other hand, it is considered better to wait until the money situation is more settled. It is undoubtedly true that the New York election is being watched both here and abroad, and the effect on financial sentiment is not to be wondered at. There is, of course, always the fear of tight money in November and December, and it will be strange indeed if real estate and building operations will not be made to realize the money situation before the end of the year. Our securities are heavy abroad, based on apprehensions that the Bank of England may again raise its discount rate. Call money has again been performing its gyrations touching the nine per cent. rate. What has been lacking in excitement on the New York Stock Exchange has been made up by the curb market in mining activity, which has been unprecedented, and there is every reason to believe will continue for some time. Notwithstanding the prevailing great prosperity in business generally throughout the country that the dividends being paid are very conservative, so that in spite of the disquieting features referred to, the prospect in the near future cannot be looked upon as otherwise than favorable.

THE lease of the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and 31st Street, which was announced over a week ago, has not received the attention which it deserves. It is stated that the lessee will erect on the plot a ten-story business building, and if such is the case it will be the first important business building to be situated on Madison Avenue between 27th and 34th Street. But it will not be the last. The Record and Guide has frequently pointed out that this particular part of Madison Avenue was inevitably destined to be improved with loft buildings. So far, no such improvements have taken place. The new buildings erected on Madison Avenue between 27th and 34th Streets during the past few years have been, with one exception, apartment hotels, and that exception consists of a woman's athletic club. Moreover, the improvements in the side streets adjoining Madison Avenue have also been, for the most part, apartment hotels, although some few business buildings have been erected near Fifth Avenue. It is evident, however, that this whole section is becoming much more valuable for business than it is for hotel purposes. The new wholesale district between 14th and 23d streets, and from Broadway to Sixth Avenue, is now tolerably well occupied. The overflow from this district must find the needed room north of 23d Street, and loft buildings are already being erected between Broadway and Sixth Avenue. But the available area west of Broadway is not large, and the streets on the East Side will necessarily be engulfed in this irresistible stream of business expansion. Fifth Avenue is, for the most part, given over to the retail trade, and prices thereon are so high that very few wholesale merchants could afford to pay the necessary rentals. But Madison Avenue is admirably adapted to their purposes. It is a convenient neighborhood, situated near to the most important retail shops in the city, and space can be secured on this part of Madison Avenue at comparatively reasonable prices. Neither is it to be supposed that the property owners will offer any resistance to its improvement with loft buildings. A large proportion of the old brown-stone buildings have of late years been occupied as boarding houses, and there has been no attempt to erect modern residences on Madison Avenue south of 34th Street. North of 34th Street the property owners are determined that business shall be kept out; but the building of tall business edifices is precisely the best thing that could happen to the property owners on lower Madison Avenue.

IN SPITE of an increase of $13,000,000 in the municipal budget for the coming year, the tax rate will remain at about the same percentage as that of the present and the past two years; and this is a matter for congratulation. There has been a disposition to criticise the administration because it has, as it were, claimed credit for keeping the tax rate down, on the ground that the tax rate is a deceptive indication of the actual size of the tax bills. It is true that the tax rate is a deceptive indication of the size of the tax bills, which depend, of course, on the scale of assessed valuations as well; but in the present instance the average assessment of real property in New York City has not been unduly increased. On the contrary, it still remains at about sixty-eight per cent. of the market value of the real estate. So far during the current year the market value of the real estate sold at the price of which was expressed in the deed was $58,077,637, and the aggregate assessed valuations of these same properties was $40,550,275. The consequence is that if the tax rate remains the same the average property owner will not have his taxes increased, except in so far as such an increase may be justified by the increased value of his property. The financial administration of the city is justified in congratulating the city that, in spite of its constantly expanding responsibilities, the tax rate remains the same, and it should be the aim of the administration to keep the increase of the budget down to the amount of money which can be raised by the application of the existing rate to the increase in the aggregate valuation of real and personal property. That is a safe rule, no matter what criticism the application of it may incur from those who fail to understand its validity.

THE PROJECT for an elevated road connecting the Williamsburgh and the Brooklyn bridges has been finally killed so many times by the Rapid Transit Commission that we are inclined to be skeptical about the decisiveness of its recent slaughter. But if a sufficient number of the members of the Rapid Transit Commission are unalterably opposed to it, the least that body can do under the circumstances is to take prompt action on the next most effective remedial measures. The decision not to authorize the elevated road must mean that the additional means of communication between Brooklyn and Manhattan is to be supplied by subways. Consequently, the tunnel already laid out, practically paralleling the Brooklyn Bridge, should be authorized as soon as possible, and it should be connected in some effectual manner with the subway system of Brooklyn and that of Manhattan, and with the termini of the Williamsburgh, the Manhattan and the Blackwell's Island bridges. It is doubtless an unfortunate thing that Brooklyn must wait for effective relief until such a tunnel can be completed and properly connected, but if the connections are adequately made Brooklyn will be the gainer in the long run. The elevated connection was, we believe, a means of temporary relief, justified by the acute character of the existing congestion, but it would only have been a "make-shift," which, compared to some more effective means of connection, would soon have been a hindrance rather than a help to the development of Brooklyn. The abandonment of the make-shift will mean that every tunnel and bridge connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn, the old Brooklyn Bridge alone excepted, will be treated merely as links in a general system of rapid transit connecting every part of the three most populous boroughs one with another. Such a system is undoubtedly the complete and satisfactory solution of the problem, and immediately steps should be taken looking towards its consummation. In the meantime a good deal can be done to increase the efficiency of the Brooklyn Bridge, and no time should be lost also in adopting the necessary measures looking in that direction. By the use of a scientific switching system at the Manhattan terminus the existing congestion could be much relieved, and this relief will be still further increased by the completion of the municipal tunnel and those which are being built by Mr. Belmont and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. In this way the delay which must necessarily elapse before complete relief can be obtained will, we trust, be safely crossed.

THE TERMS which the street railways of Chicago have offered to the Common Council of that city are, from our New York point of view, truly astonishing. The companies practically promise to make all the improvements necessary to an efficient transit service in Chicago without asking for any regular extension of franchise. They are perfectly willing, that is, to spend the money on the necessary improvements and to accept the lease of the franchises merely on good behavior. Of course, if they are to be dispossessed they must be remunerated for their expenditures, but in the meantime they are ready to pay a sufficient rental for the franchises and to trust to the efficiency of the service for the continuation of their leases. Of course, the reason for this humble frame of mind is that the street railway franchises have largely expired, and that the city of Chicago consequently holds the winning cards in the game. Furthermore, the enmity excited by the street railway companies in that city, which gave such a boom to the movement in favor of municipal ownership, has taught the companies that they must make heavy sacrifices in order to placate public opinion. Evidently, the only way to bring street railway companies to reason is to use violence. The officials of the Interborough and Metropolitan companies in this city behave as if a condition of public opinion well disposed towards them was not worth any sacrifice at all. They run just as few cars as they possibly can, and they assume an uncompromising attitude in all their negotiations with the municipal authorities. If they persist in this state of mind, there will be only one effective way to "treat them"—and that will be to follow Chicago's example. It is true that New York will not have such good cards to play as had Chicago, because the Interborough-Metropolitan company is secure in the possession of its present franchises, many of which are perpetual; but the city has one weapon which it can successfully use, and that is the weapon of the new subway extensions. The building of a belt line running down the West Side and up the East Side of Manhattan and connected by crosstown tunnels at the important streets would constitute the most serious kind of competition for the subway and the elevated roads, and this weapon should not be surrendered until the local railway combination begins to show some appreciation of its position as a public servant, instead of a public master.

Felix Isman's Latest Purchase.

The recent purchase by Mr. Felix Isman, of Philadelphia, of the southeast corner of 5th av and 42d st, is regarded as convincing evidence of the growing preference real estate operators are showing for high-class investment property on that avenue. That Mr. Isman in the selection of his latest acquisition has displayed a good knowledge of values and conditions is unquestioned. On good authority it is stated that the purchaser has been offered $300 per square foot for the corner building now occupied by the Columbia bank.

"There is no question," said a well known operator, in analyzing the situation, "but that this is the best corner on 5th av between 23d and 50th sts, not excepting the famous site occupied by Benjamin Altman. Geographically, 5th av at the 42d st crossing is nearer the new business centre, now so rapidly forming, than is any section to the southward.

"Then too, within the last year or so, the improvement of 42d st from Broadway to the Grand Central depot has been nearly equal to that of 5th av, and as a thoroughfare it is better situated than 34th st, being the great receiving and distributing highway for one of the large continental railroads. In addition it has the advantage over other cross streets in its possession of ferry terminals and subway stations, all of which materially affect the value of the property in question."

The total area of the southeast corner of 5th av and 42d st is 7,325 sq. ft., for which Mr. Isman paid $1,550,000, or $211 per square foot. Allowing for plottage and superior corner location, the price secured compares favorably with the figure obtained for the Lotos Club sold last week, 50x100, which brought $750,000 (or $150 per sq. ft.), and 572 5th av, 25x100, which was sold to H. A. Budd for $350,000 (or $140 per sq. ft.).

Mr. Isman is considered to have used these sales as well as others in the locality as a basis of appraisal, and although it has been inferred that he acted in accordance with his now famous doctrine, that "you can be 75 per cent. wrong and still make money in Manhattan real estate," there are those who believe that in this instance, at least, a modification is necessary, and that when you are 99 per cent. right you cannot help making money in investments of this character.

DEVELOPMENT OF LAND TENURES

By LAWSON PURDY

In addressing the Real Estate Class at the Young Men's Christian Association this week, Mr. Purdy said that their interest in the history of land tenures was twofold. As men who expect to buy and sell land for themselves and as brokers for others they would need to know something of the law of real estate, and in order to have an intelligent idea of the law as it is to-day in New York it was necessary to know something of the history of its development, especially under the feudal system of our English ancestors. Secondly, that they were most deeply concerned with the economic and social regulations which affect the prosperous conduct of their chosen business. In tracing the growth of real estate law Mr. Purdy spoke in part as follows:

"In the earliest times in England it is probable that there was no ownership other than a tribal ownership, and even that was not permanent. With a knowledge of agriculture tribal wandering ceased, village communities were developed, and gradually by custom there came security and permanence of possession. Immediately before the Norman Conquest, a great part of the land was still owned in common, but there was security of individual possession and freedom of transfer by deed or will. The Norman Conquest brought a great change, but the change was not fully effected until twenty years after the battle of Hastings. There are various theories as to why and how this change was brought about, but we know that in fact the country was organized on a military basis. Great lords held directly of the King and parcelled out the territory of which they were the chief tenants among their sub-tenants. The great lords agreed to fight the King's battles, and on his part the King agreed to protect them in their holdings. Similar reciprocal obligations bound together the lords and their tenants.

"In the old oath of homage we have the origin of the words in our warranty deed, that the grantor will 'warrant and forever defend' the title. The ancient lords made this same promise, and if the tenants were dispossessed they were bound to find for him land equally as good.

"To these feudal tenures also we owe the words in our modern deed, to him 'and his heirs' forever. It is obvious that when military defense was the main purpose of a grant of land, the grantor selected one to hold the land who was a fighter and in whom he could place reliance. The grant was for life only, for the lord would not surrender his power to name the person who was to fight for him in case of need. In course of time it became common as a matter of custom for the eldest son to succeed his father, and by reason of this custom it became common to provide in the grant itself that the grant should be to the tenant and his heirs. Indeed, these words 'and his heirs' were necessary in the State of New York until the year 1830. If the word 'heirs' was omitted the grant was for life only.

"It was not long after feudal tenures were established before the lords endeavored to hold the land as absolute owners instead of mere tenants at will of the King, and in the same way those who held of the lords endeavored to render their titles more secure and to avoid the service which was the original occasion for the grant. Part of the struggle was to secure the right of alienation and the right to dispose of the property by will. For nearly two hundred years there was no power to alienate an entailed estate, and it was not till the reign of Henry the Eighth that the old Saxon power to devise was restored by statute.

"During all the feudal period the chief contest was between the King and the lords, and as is usually the case, the rights of the common people suffered in the fray. When feudal tenures were finally abolished in 1655 the whole burden of supporting the state was practically thrown upon the landless, and then began the struggle of modern times to secure equality of rights and equality of opportunities for all the people regardless of their birth.

"Because of their legacy from the feudal system, the people of England today are cursed with a condition of land monopoly which checks development, overcrowds the cities, and produces the fearful conditions of the submerged classes described by General Booth in 'Darkest England.'

"Those interested in the development of the real estate business as a business may learn from the history of England the conditions which are necessary for their business. There must be as perfect freedom of transfer as law and private enterprise can produce. The power of alienation must not be suspended for any considerable time, and we have learned that lesson in the State of New York to such good purpose that the power of alienation cannot be suspended beyond two lives in being and twenty-one years thereafter; a lease of agricultural land for more than twelve years is void and a lease of city land for more than twenty-one years is taxable as personal property. Freedom of transfer is not an end in itself, but is necessary to diffuse the ownership of property, and it is obvious that the more concentrated the ownership the less real estate business successful, besides earning for yourselves a satisfaction in life which mere narrow self-seeking can never give you."

[An interesting discussion followed the lecture, of which the foregoing is but a summary. A week ago Mr. Foley, after giving his lecture, entered into a discussion with the class that lasted more than one hour, and this week Mr. Purdy answered questions for over half an hour. It is but fair, then, to state for the educational department of the Y. M. C. A. that the Record and Guide cannot reproduce all that goes on at these meetings in Course I., and that the reports of the main portion of the lectures, or some of them, as they appear in this paper, should not be accepted as a substitute for actual attendance. We urge everybody desiring to perfect himself in the deep knowledge of real estate, which is probably the foremost calling in metropolitan life today, to attend one or more of the several courses now being given at the West Side Y. M. C. A. The man that gets on is the one who is always studying something new. He takes up new studies every year of his life. He starts in on a new language or a new fad at seventy as eagerly as when he was seventeen. A fellow that does not keep on there will be, and the greater the number of owners the more real estate business there will be. Freedom of transfer and diffusion of ownership, however, are not enough. These are essential, but there must also be the greatest possible prosperity of occupiers. To secure the prosperity of occupiers you must be vigilant to protect them from taxes imposed on processes of trade or on capital engaged in production. Even before the time of railroads and telegraphs the taxation of capital was sufficient to drive it away and decrease population in other countries. Now that we have such easy means of transportation and communication men and money easily find places where the greatest profits are to be made, and the greatest success of the real estate business will be brought about by making this city the place where it will be best and most profitable for men to work and for them to enjoy their capital.

"Accustom yourselves to take a broad and not a narrow view of the real estate business, and in order that you may take the broadest view consider what it would be for your interest to do if you owned the whole of Manhattan Island. If you did own the island, you would make it just as attractive as possible, and you would get back from those you allowed to live and do business here every dollar that the privilege was worth. You would not harass your tenants with arbitrary, unequal and oppressive exactions. You would not hamper them in their business any more than the owner of an office building would in these modern days make separate charges for cleaning offices and windows, for heating and lighting and riding on the elevator.

"You may be sure that by seeking the highest welfare of all the people and seeking to secure the equal rights of all of them, you will thus be doing the most to make your own business suc-

going to school in some manner after he graduates from the academy, the scientific school or from college, misses uncountable good things. Cultivate a receptive mind, and you will keep young and be prosperous—and happy.]

The Bronx Improving.

There is undoubtedly a better feeling about the condition of the market in the Borough of the Bronx, although it is not expected that conditions will materially improve until after election day. The tenancy in houses west of 3d av and north of 149th st, is now said to be exceptionally good.
